Senate, House Sponsors Fear Disorders' Effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rioting in New York, Cleveland, Chicago and other cities is undermining support for civil rights legislation in Congress, sponsors agree privately.

Although they are reluctant to comment publicly on the matter, influential senators feel that resentment against the lawlessness that has swept Negro slums has built up resistance to enactment of any measure "at gun point," as one of them put it.

For example, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., is telling friends that the disorders in Brooklyn have been very damaging to efforts to get legislative help of any kind for those penned up in the ghettos.

Difficult Road

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., still hopes that Congress will act on rights legislation. But he, too, concedes that the difficult road toward Senate approval is becoming more tortuous.

Javits and Kennedy have asked for action by the Community Relations Service to help deal with the New York situation.

Javits said in an interview the Johnson administration ought to act on an emergency basis to step up the antipoverty program which some Republican leaders have been criticizing.

"The quickest and most direct route to the Negro on the street is through the antipoverty program," Javits said.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan contends that the Johnson administration promised more than it could deliver in the anti-poverty program and now is in a period of inaction on it that does nothing to alleviate the situation in the slums.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois has taken the position that the civil rights bill offers big city Negroes few solutions to their problems.

He said a provision of the bill banning racial discrimination in the sale and rental of housing — with some exceptions — "won't build any new housing that they need." Dirksen opposes that section of the measure.

Although President Johnson has urged citizens to refrain from violence and has pledged to do everything in his power to alleviate "evil conditions" in the cities, some members of Congress think he ought to do more.

Seven Dead In Coal Mine Explosion

MOUNT HOPE, W.Va. (AP) — Seven coal miners were killed here Saturday in an explosion that jarred the Siltes Mine of the River Co. in southern West Virginia.

After five hours, rescue workers found the bodies of five miners about 1 1/2 miles from the entrance. The other two miners had been found earlier.

A New River Co. spokesman said he was not sure how long it would take to recover the remaining five bodies. Their identities were not released.

Identified as one of the earlier victims was Luke Bowyer of nearby Maple Fork.

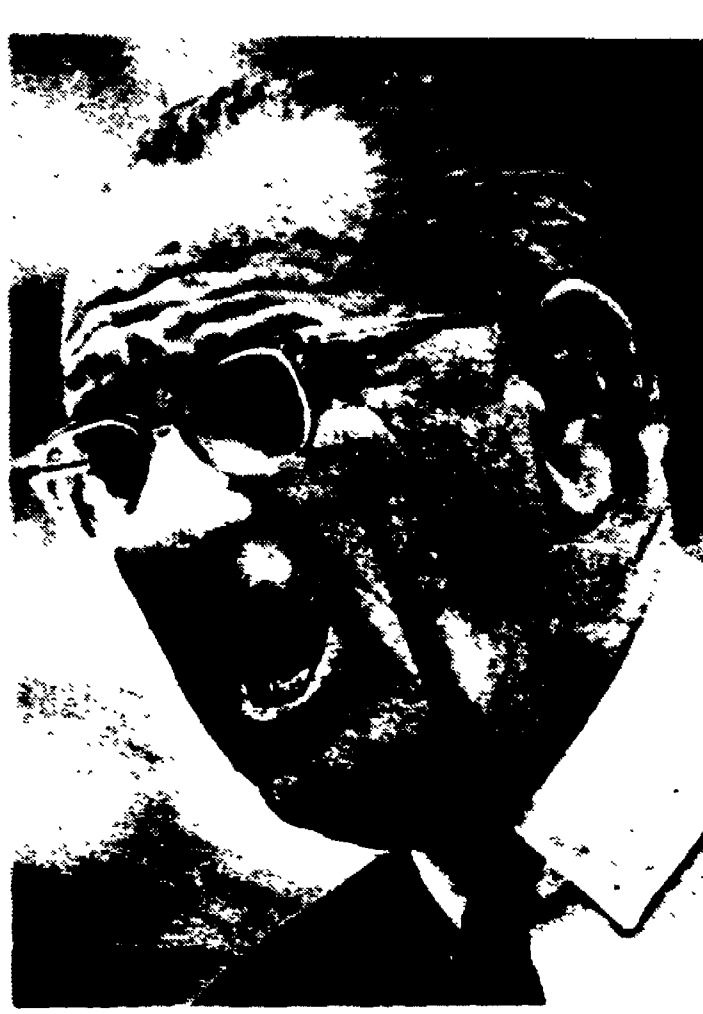

A crowd of about 400 persons — some of them weeping women — crowded around the mine's entrance hoping for good news from the rescuers. But the rescuers reported to the surface that the remaining five were dead.

About 23 other miners were inside the mine when the blast occurred. They all escaped.

At least nine others were reported injured, either by the explosion or from breathing noxious fumes during the rescue operation. None was reported in serious condition.

New York Riots Leaders Pledge 'To Cool It Off'

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor John Lindsay exacted pledges from youth leaders Saturday "to cool it off" in the East New York section of Brooklyn, hit by racial disorders almost nightly for a week.

"This may not solve the problem of East New York," Lindsay said after a three-hour meeting with more than 50 poverty program and now is in a period of inaction on it that does nothing to alleviate the situation in the slums.

Early Saturday, gunfire from an automobile carrying four Negroes wounded two white men standing on a street corner. Scattered incidents erupted as whites and Negroes clashed.

1,700 Policemen

About 1,700 policemen patrolled the racially seething East New York slum area Friday night. Several officers were hurt and 15 persons were arrested.

After the meeting with community representatives, including about a dozen youths, Lindsay announced: "It's been agreed by everyone here to make every effort for peace, to cool it off, to calm it."

Lindsay had called them to City Hall for a frank discussion of the problems in the area, which he said "has a history of neglect."

The community is troubled by change, he said, resulting in mistrust and tension.

"Mainly I think there is a fear that exists," Lindsay said. "Everybody recognizes there is so much to do. What's needed is a massive rebuilding of this great city."

Leaders Shake Hands

Milwaukee Man Killed in Action In Viet Nam War

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The parents of a Milwaukee Army helicopter pilot received notification Friday evening that their son was killed in action Wednesday in South Viet Nam.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Peters received a telegram from the Defense Department stating that their son, David, 22, died after his aircraft was shot down by Viet Cong small arms fire.

The younger Peters, a warrant officer, enlisted in the Army on July 1, 1964, completed flight training, and was sent to Viet Nam last October.

"He had only 76 more days left to finish his tour in Viet Nam," his father said. He added that David had written enthusiastically in recent letters about his plans to finish college after his release from military service.

Viet Cong Lob Mortar Shells On Hospital

Reds Suffering Heavy Defeats in Other War Sectors

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong mortar crews lobbed 20 or more shells at a U.S. military complex east of Da Nang Saturday night as if to draw attention from beatings that Communist troops were taking in other sectors. Several Marine helicopters quickly returned the fire.

A U.S. Marine spokesman said the shells had wounded seven men, damaged four helicopters and caused some slight structural damage at a 400-bed Navy hospital. Flares lighted the sky for the response by the Leatherneck gunships that halted the attack.

The hospital, a Seabee compound, and a Marine helicopter make up the complex, 300 miles northeast of Saigon. A similar attack there last October killed one man, wounded 100 and damaged 40 helicopters. The area is two miles from Da Nang. The strategic U.S. air base at that city was unaffected.

Hit Viet Cong

Elsewhere, U.S. infantrymen lashed at the Viet Cong in scattered actions, and Marines cut down 14 more of Hanoi's regulars in Operation Hastings, boosting the roll of counted enemy dead in that nine-day battle near the 17th parallel to 582.

U.S. jets pursued the air war against North Viet Nam. The American command reported an A4 Skyhawk from the carrier Oriskany had been shot down in the area of Vinh, 180 miles north of the border. The pilot bailed out at sea and was rescued. The Skyhawk was the 306th plane officially listed as lost over the north.

Other Developments

Among developments in the ground war:

Several battalions of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division pounced by helicopter on entrenched Viet Cong in jungles 25 miles north of Saigon and overran their bunkers in a freight that carried on into dusk. A spokesman described the operation as fast and furious. He said American casualties were light in the opening stages. He had no word on Communist losses but reported the infantrymen had captured quantities of machine guns and ammunition.

U.S. Marines, now holding nine prisoners from Operation Hastings, quoted one as having said an infiltration trail big enough for a truck and well covered.

So You Saw a UFO, Eh?

But It Really Was a Weather Balloon

Thousands of Fox Valley residents officially entered the space age Saturday evening with sightings of a supposed Unidentified Flying Object, and many of them woke up this morning with stiff necks.

The UFO, to the relief of a few but the undoubted dismay of most, apparently was a weather balloon, released — according to the latest word — somewhere in the Dakotas.

The balloon first was sighted by the U.S. Department of Commerce Weather Bureau at Austin Straubel field, Green Bay, which reported in the late afternoon that its altitude was about 30,000 feet. Sightings followed throughout eastern Wisconsin during the remaining hours of the night.

Manitowoc viewers insisted it was above their city, as did viewers throughout the Valley and as far south as Oshkosh. Oshkosh police reported a sighting at about 50,000 feet and "heading southwest from Green Bay."

Angular Shape

The balloon, partially deflated, did not look like a balloon because of its angular shape.

Valley police departments and The Post-Crescent offices were swamped by telephone calls from persons with tips that a UFO was in the area. Some insisted it was about to land, others that it was hovering over their houses.

A Kimberly man, who refused to give his name or address lest he be labeled a crank, sighted the object hovering "a couple thousand feet" over Kimberly.

Others reported that it was hovering above Lake Winnebago, Hortonville, Sherwood, all the Fox Cities and as far west as Waushara County.

Solar Reflection

Viewers, while professing to take an objective interest in the UFO, apparently were somewhat swayed by the balloon's odd shape and bright reflections of sunlight.

According to Appleton Police Department records:

—At 8:03 p.m., a resident on N. Richmond Street in Appleton said it was hovering above his field.

—At 8:06 p.m. it was reported above East Marquette Street, about a mile to the east.

—At 8:10 p.m., it was seen over Little Chute — farther east, but traveling southwest.

—At 8:16 p.m., it was back over Appleton.

The police department quit taking names and addresses after that, as all five telephone lines were constantly busy.

It was indicated by a weather bureau official at Truax Field Madison, that the high altitude of the balloon was responsible for viewers' beliefs that it was above many places at the same time.

FT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — President Johnson watched a realistic demonstration Saturday of how the war is being fought in Viet Nam, then told troops of the fighting 101st Airborne "Screaming Eagles" Division that American fighting men "have turned the tide of battle."

"The initiative is now with us — not with the enemies of freedom," the chief executive said.

Johnson, after watching a demonstration of how helicopters come to the aid of hard-pressed friendly forces, stood up in a jeep and reviewed some 5,000 of the 101st Division's troops.

As he reviewed the troops, the band struck up "The Tennessee Waltz."

Rain Falling

Rain was falling as Johnson arrived at Ft. Campbell after speeches in Indianapolis, Ind., but he stood hatless and without a raincoat as helicopters demonstrated how they operate under war conditions.

In his speeches in Indianapolis, Johnson defended his policies in Viet Nam and told Negroes they are hurting their own cause by violence in the streets in major cities.

Johnson also called anew for "restraint and responsibility" by both business and labor to ward off increased inflation.

The President also inspected a battle-equipped helicopter. Viet Cong weapons captured by troops of the 101st, presented decorations to veterans of the Viet Nam war, and chatted in.

Another Death Recorded in Riot-Torn Area of Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A Negro died Saturday from gunshot wounds in a pre-dawn shooting that fanned anew the smoldering fury of five nights of sniping and bombing on Cleveland's East Side.

His death — the fourth in the six days of unrest — came as President Johnson warned in Indianapolis that riots breed tyranny and would boomerang against those starting them.

The Negro was Benoris Toney, 29, father of five children. He had been struck in the face and his eyes destroyed by the shotgun blast from a passing car loaded with white youths. Toney died 11 hours later in a hospital.

Six whites were arrested minutes after the shooting in a humberyard parking lot about 3 a.m. The shotgun charge had smashed through the passenger side window of Toney's car. He apparently had been trying to get away from a pursuing car.

The shooting followed a relatively quiet night in the strife-torn area, where police and National Guardsmen had toughened security.

The shooting was two miles from the seething Hough — pronounced Huff — area, the hotbed of the rioting. Police, reinforced by 1,750 Guardsmen, had sealed off the area, but despite that sporadic sniping and disorder crept nearer white ethnic pockets.

Police had 400 patrolmen in squad cars and on foot in the riot area, and 1,000 Guardsmen with bayonets fixed backed them up.

The Guard refused to say whether it would move more troops into the area, but 400 Guardsmen were returned a day early from summer training at Camp Grayling, Mich., and held in readiness at a nearby Cleveland armory over the weekend. A spokesman said they could be mobilized for riot duty if needed.

Following the same day-to-day pattern, Hough resumed its normal daylight position Saturday.

Culvert Crash Youth Dies in

Ruben Flores, 11, Killed Sleeping in Truck-Camper

WILD ROSE—An 11-year-old Texas boy sleeping in the rear of a pickup truck-camper was killed about 4 p.m. Saturday when the vehicle struck a steel culvert.

Four other children riding in the back suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Killed was Ruben R. Flores, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gumaro Flores, Mission, Tex. He was dead on arrival at Wild Rose Hospital, due to head injuries.

According to Portage County authorities, the family of eight migrant farm laborers were traveling north on State 22 four miles north of here when the father lost control of the vehicle and ran off the road, sideswiping the culvert.

The boy was sleeping in a bunk when the right side of the truck was torn off by the impact.

Three members of the family were riding in the cab of the truck, with the five children in the rear of the home-made camping unit.

The family arrived in the area only two days ago, and were seeking work as farm laborers.

Consolidated Sales Total Up

Six-Month Figures Hit $59 Million, $8 Million Increase

WISCONSIN RAPIDS — Sales for Consolidated Papers, Inc. during the first six months of 1966 totaled $59,032,981, compared with $50,959,634 for the same period a year ago. This is an increase of $8,073,347.

Earnings were $5,541,552, up from $3,557,695 recorded for the first six months of 1965. Per share earnings amounted to $2.18 compared with $1.29 last year.

Consolidated operates an Appleton division which employs about 275 workers. The firm manufactures sulphite pulp and chemical by-products.

Full Capacity Consolidated's capacity at Appleton was attributed to operating at full capacity, price improvements, and substantial investments in operating property made in the last several years.

Total assets employed in the business at the end of June amounted to $409,148,734.

"Enamel paper orders from both the commercial printing and magazine publishing fields required a seventh capacity operation," President George W. Mead II said.

Price increases on selected grades put into effect in the second quarter are providing firms, he added. Coated text book and label grades are being test-marketed prior to their introduction nationally.

Sales of laminated plastic, paperboard, paperboard products, coated packaging papers, and sulfite pulp were also ahead of last year, Mead said.

$26 Million Construction A $26 million construction program of a new kraft mill, power complex started last April, Mead said work on the modernization and expansion project is well under way.

The new facility scheduled for start-up late next year will replace the present sulfite mill and produce 300 tons of kraft pulp per day. Construction also has begun on the $2.5 million plant addition at Stevens Point Division which will produce the new carbonless paper.

Formal groundbreaking ceremonies were held July 7. Mead said Consolidated entered the third quarter with a good

A major phase of the program is a pipeline to Lake Winnebago, which would be a primary source of water.

Construction on what promises to be Appleton's largest apartment building complex probably will get underway within the next month.

A building permit application for Kessler Development Corp., Appleton, was approved this morning by Charles A. Magnette, city director of inspection.

The Milwaukee corporation intends to construct what eventually will be a $3 million apartment building complex from 1800-1810 W. Marquette St., in the Gillett Highlands subdivision, west of Kiwanis Park.

Initial phases of construction, estimated to cost about $1 million according to inspection department records, will consist of 132 units, including 73 single bedroom apartments and 59 units with two bedrooms. The complex will be known as Riviera Apartments.

Church-State Education Aid Gap Narrows in State

Millions of Dollars Channeled To Schools Through Projects

MADISON, AP — The once wide gap between church and state in support of Wisconsin education slowly has narrowed to a very thin line.

Despite deep-seated separatist views of public and church education, millions of dollars are now channeled through church projects to the state's public schools and parochial schools in Wisconsin.

St. Norbert College, a Roman Catholic institution, received nearly $1 million from the federal government to erect a science building on its West De Pere campus.

Marquette University in Milwaukee, 213 needy students were awarded $63,550 during the last academic year from a state-supported tuition grant program.

And Wisconsin's attorney general ruled last week, there is nothing to stop a mobile classroom unit outfitted by tax money from pulling up to the curb next to a parochial school where pupils may come out and use the special facilities offered.

"Wisconsin's private and parochial schools can't receive state aids directly," said Archie A. Buchmiller, deputy superintendent of the state Department of Public Instruction.

"But they can participate in programs operated by local public schools," he said.

The state's constitutional ban on funneling state funds directly to parochial schools still is staunchly maintained, but the long-standing federal refusal has become increasingly lax in the last several years.

From the national government, parochial and private schools and religiously affiliated groups now are eligible for matching grants in a variety of programs, while students attending such institutions can count on substantial scholarships and loans.

Buchmiller cited several examples of means by which parochial and private institutions might receive benefits from state programs financed by public tax dollars without tripping over the fine line drawn by the constitutional prohibition.

He said non-public schools

Church Group Asked to Blast U.S. Air Attacks

Geneva Conference Report Labels Bombs Unjustifiable

GENEVA, AP — A world conference of Christian church leaders was asked Saturday to condemn a U.S. military build-up and air attacks in Viet Nam as unjustifiable.

At the same time, a group of American laymen and theologians called on President Johnson to order no reprisals if captive U.S. airmen are brought to trial as war criminals by North Viet Nam.

The massive and growing American military presence in Viet Nam and the long continued bombing of villages in the South and of targets a few miles from cities in the North cannot be justified, said a report from the section of the World Conference on Church and Society that is studying structures of international cooperation.

James Jung, an assistant in the state Commission for Higher Education, said this was an attempt to aid the students, not the institutions they might attend.

"We are trying to give the students a greater freedom to choose his own institutional environment," he said.

In other words, the amount given the student might make the difference between his going to a public institution or the religiously supported school that he wouldn't be able to afford to attend without the grant or loan.

Two of these programs, based primarily on needs, are just getting underway and figures are not yet available on the amount given to students attending parochial schools, Jung said.

Buchmiller cited several examples of means by which parochial and private institutions might receive benefits from state programs financed by public tax dollars without tripping over the fine line drawn by the constitutional prohibition.

He said non-public schools

Incomes Up, Unemployment Down Observers Believe Business Boom Will be Heard for Rest of the Year

WASHINGTON, AP — Boom in business, relatively low unemployment, rising incomes and rate during the third quarter, up the total rise during the three-month period. The second quarter was even more dramatic.

Price increases accounted for $6.5 billion — 60 per cent — of the rise in GNP.

Here's how a few major economic indicators reacted during the first half of this year:

Gross National Product — The value of all goods and services produced in the economy years. The June index reading increased by $27.6 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $732 billion, a record, but that cost $10 in the 1957-58 base.

Unemployment — The unemployment index never exceeded 4 per cent of the total labor force during any of the last six months and actually dropped to 3.7 per cent in February and April. By June the total number of employed persons had risen to 75.7 million, compared with 71.2 million last January.

First Quarter — But in the first quarter of this year, prices increases accounted for $6.4 billion or 38 per cent of the total rise during the three-month period. The second quarter was even more dramatic.

Father Shot; Authorities Seek Suspect

DELAVER, AP — A father of four children was wounded fatally Saturday and Walworth County authorities said they were seeking a man seen running from the shooting scene.

Coroner John Griebel said Franklin D. Minor, 29, who died minutes after he was found, had been shot near the heart with a small caliber weapon. The bullet pierced a lung, Griebel said.

Minor died a few hours after having reported to police he had been in an argument with another man near a tavern late Friday.

Sheriff Alex Johnson said several persons were being questioned, but that there was no actual suspect.

Johnson said neighbors heard shots, and that a woman saw a man running from the scene.

Minor was found on a sidewalk near the home of his estranged wife and their children.

The victim, employed at a Janesville automobile factory but who had not worked for six weeks, died without speaking to the persons who reached his side, Johnson said.

Not the Flying Kind
Washington Suffering
Summer 'Bug' Problem

By BEN PRICE
WASHINGTON (AP) — A sort of safety, including organized of nervous complaint induced by the public exposure of various where human life must be at "bugs" is besetting Washington stake this summer.

The condition, known locally as "the bug flap," apparently has affected the hearing of a number of federal agents, all across the country. Some of them had been accustomed to eavesdropping on other people's conversations.

The flap — government slang for a state of uproar — stemmed from complaints over the use of electronic eavesdropping equipment — bugs — and wiretaps by federal agents.

As a result of the flap the Federal Bureau of Investigation maintains it is now using wiretaps and electronic bugs only with the written permission of the attorney general.

The Internal Revenue Service's school for special agents on wiretapping, electronic snooping and lockpicking has been closed.

Special Cases

The Food and Drug Administration says its intelligence kits — tiny broadcast stations with tape recorders on the receiver's end — are now locked up and can be used only in very special cases.

At the Department of Justice, assorted crime cases reportedly are under review to ascertain whether any of the accumulated evidence was obtained through the use of wiretaps or bugs.

What is going to result from all this in the way of new legislation, executive department orders or court rulings is, for the present, guesswork.

There has been speculation that, as a result of the Fred Black Jr. bugging case, Washington is about to witness an attempt to bring the FBI under the more direct control of the attorney general.

While the FBI is theoretically already subordinate to the Department of Justice, it has long operated as a sort of independent fiefdom under its director, J. Edgar Hoover.

The current flap has been emerging gradually over the past 16 months, since the Senate subcommittee on Administrative Practice and Procedure began hearings into complaints that federal agents had invaded the privacy of individuals.

But what raised it to a major flap was the May 24 appearance by U.S. Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall before the U.S. Supreme Court. There he disclosed that the FBI had bugged the Washington hotel quarters of Fred Black, a public relations man and onetime associate of Bobby Baker, former Democratic majority secretary in the Senate.

Black Convicted

Black had been convicted of evading $91,000 in income taxes and given a prison sentence of 15 months to four years. Baker is awaiting trial in December on charges of larceny and tax evasion.

Marshall hinted in his statement to the Supreme Court that the FBI had bugged Black's quarters without the knowledge of the attorney general.

The Supreme Court, which on May 4 had declined to review Black's conviction, immediately ordered the Justice Department to explain in detail all the circumstances surrounding the bugging, including the person responsible.

On July 13, the Justice Department filed an answer with the high court, saying the bug had been planted with the authorization of J. Edgar Hoover.

The Justice Department confirmed that Hoover had been authorizing the use of electronic eavesdropping under legal and written orders of attorneys general, but through the administration of the Justice Department.

Hoover gave his permission, Marshall testified in cases he heard, to the security, unskilled labor, said, "Bugging" was approved, the Post-John H. Meyer of Colorado said, in the Department of Justice.

Distinction

There is a distinction between wiretapping and bugging.

In wiretapping the actual terminal points of a telephone line are bridged to permit a third person to eavesdrop. This is the usual practice although induction coils can also be used.

A bug operates independently of the telephone system. It is a tiny microphone which can be connected directly by wire to a listening post. Or it can be a tiny, battery-powered broadcast station with a range of nearly three miles in some instances.

The 1934 Federal Communications Act states that it is illegal to tap telephone conversations between two persons without the knowledge of either and then divulge the contents of that conversation to anyone else.

There is no federal law regulating bugging although the Federal Communications Commission established a regulation in May that anyone, other than law enforcement officers, using the broadcast devices could be fined $500 a day for each day of illegal use.

The federal courts have ruled repeatedly that evidence gleaned through the use of wiretaps is inadmissible on the grounds that it violates the constitutional ban against compelling a person to testify against himself.

Every state has laws against trespass and breaking and entering. The planting of a bug without the consent of an occupant of a dwelling place or office usually requires an act of trespass or breaking and entering.

Prohibited

The federal courts have ruled that evidence acquired through the use of bugs planted in such fashion is prohibited under the Fourth Amendment's ban on illegal search and seizure.

Despite all this there is considerable evidence before the courts that some federal agents have been undeterred by either the law or the court's rulings in the past in their use of wiretaps and bugs.

There has never been a federal prosecution of a federal agent for wiretapping. The Senate subcommittee's records indicate that at least 13 federal agencies, excluding the Department of Defense and the Central Intelligence Agency, whose preoccupation is supposedly with the collection of foreign intelligence data, have acquired some means of eavesdropping on conversations.

With the development of the current flap, the use of these gadgets, the subcommittee's investigators said, apparently came to an abrupt halt.

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — The human brain is a "honey of a computer," a psychology professor told an educational conference on computers in the classroom. It has several billion circuits, it can operate four hours on the energy from a single peanut, it is completely mobile, it occupies less than a cubic foot of space, and it is produced by a "cheap, unskilled labor," said, "Bugging" was approved, the Post-John H. Meyer of Colorado said, in the Department of Justice.

Can't Forget to Help Themselves, Too

How Do You Learn to Help Poor?

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY
WASHINGTON, AP — How can you help the poor without making them dependent on the state?

That question has plagued welfare workers for a long time. It was the subject of Queen Elizabeth I's famous speech to the poor in 1562, when she said: "The beggar is the curse of the land. He is the most hateful creature that God ever created."

It is still a question in modern America, and today it is a very real one. The American public has a right to know how the welfare system works, and how it can be improved. The system is a complex one, and it is not always clear how it works. The system is a complex one, and it is not always clear how it works. The system is a complex one, and it is not always clear how it works.

High officials here freely acknowledge that there are abuses in the system. But they insist the percentage is low. Among the statistics they cite here are a couple:

Seventy per cent of the men and women who draw unemployment insurance checks find jobs within a week of leaving the office. But they insist the percentage is low. Among the statistics they cite here are a couple:

Made Errors

In aid to families with dependent children, a big category of relief, a nationwide survey showed only 54 per cent of the families were drawing benefits for which they were eligible. A big share of these cases represented not fraud on the part of the recipients but administrative errors.

In the history of relief in English-speaking countries, 1601 is an important year. That was when the famous Elizabethan poor law, designed to cope with the problem of vagrants and the idle and disorderly, was enacted.

It called for the levying of parish taxes to provide work for the able-bodied, apprentice training for poor children, and handouts to the aged and infirm.

Over the years, abuses — including the payment of unconditional doles and the exploitation of poor people farmed out to contractors — became widespread, and the cost of relieving pauperism skyrocketed.

In 1834 a new poor law was enacted, based on the principle that the able-bodied should get relief only in workhouses where conditions were purposely made more miserable than the lot of the lowest paid laborer outside.

The cost of relief then fell markedly, but revolutionary ferment surged. However, the movement failed and gradually Britain muddled through to the kind of welfare state it is today.

Payments Down

Turning to the present-day United States, payments under unemployment insurance have been decreasing as the country enjoyed a boom, while other relief costs have been going up. As Congress broadens relief laws, states do likewise, the population increases and the cost of living rises.

Take a brief look first at unemployment insurance, a system

Marathon Develops Knit Towel

A revolutionary industrial towel has been developed by personnel of American Can Company's Marathon Products plant, Neenan Menasha, and will be commercially marketed by 1967.

The new product, made of specially prepared strands of paper which are knitted together, is reported to be highly absorbent, tough and durable.

American Can Co. reports the towel, which is called the "Marathon," is equally suited to heavy or delicate cleaning and it can be repeatedly washed or cleaned and reused.

The new towels will be marketed in a standard size of 12 by 17 inches and packed 200 to the bale.

Court Turns Down Claim Book Decreased Literary Rights' Value

NEW YORK, AP — A judge has turned down the claim of Mrs. Hemingway, widow of Ernest Hemingway, that A. E. Hotchner, author of "Farewell My Concubine," violated her literary rights by using her name in the book.

In ruling Friday against Mr. Hotchner, State Supreme Court Justice Francis P. Murphy Jr. said Hotchner had not violated a "confidential" relationship, as asserted in the suit against Hotchner and Random House Inc.

Hotchner, working with Hemingway in adapting Hemingway's works for movies and television, said the suit charged use of certain material in the book violated that relationship and reduced the value of the author's literary estate.

term, consisting of 50 varying state setups under federal coordination.

In 1965, a total of 4,815,000 workers drew one or more weeks' compensation checks out of a much lower number — more than one-fourth went to the elderly. That is barely more than one million stayed on the rolls until they exhausted their benefits.

In 1964 — 5,496,000 drew one or more checks, 1,673,000 exhausted benefits.

In 1960 — 6,753,000 drew one or more checks, 1,693,000 exhausted benefits.

In 1958 — 7,941,000 drew one or more checks, 2,599,000 exhausted benefits.

In the same seven years, average benefit checks rose almost seven dollars a week, yet total of benefits dropped $17 billion a year.

The picture of diminishing spending charges markedly when one turns to public aid — distinct from unemployment insurance and from Social Security benefits, financed by payroll tax.

Expenditure on public aid, which the federal government and the states and communities share, rose from $2.8 billion in fiscal 1954 to an estimated $6.1 billion in fiscal 1966.

Public Aid Up

Old age assistance is the biggest item in this form of relief, then aid to families with dependent children. It also includes aid to the blind and disabled.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department says there are about 7.5 million persons getting public aid, of whom 2 million are aged, 3.5 million are children, 1 million are their parents.

The potential for putting people to work lies in the one million parents, one official said, and most of these are women. Experts say 200,000 is a liberal estimate of the number of women who can be moved off these relief rolls and made self-supporting.

Repeatedly, social workers encounter relief mothers who have little education, no skills — distinct from unemployment insurance and from Social Security benefits, financed by payroll tax.

Increasingly it becomes clear that education, job training, medical aid and counseling in family problems are keys to making some public charges self-supporting.

Dr. Ellen Winston, U.S. commissioner of welfare, said recently that reports from 10 states and the District of Columbia for a three-month period in 1965 indicated state and local welfare departments had some success with employment training. A total of 3,462 public assistance cases were closed and 17,133 men, women and children were no longer dependent on government for the necessities of life.

Training Programs

An official report on training programs under the economic opportunity act contains such case histories as these:

Minnesota — Mr. K was a 25-year-old man with a wife and child. An eye problem flared up requiring surgery, took all his savings. He lost his job. He came to the welfare agency, hopeless and withdrawn because he had to ask help. Arrangements were made for him to complete college, getting credits he needed for a degree. He is now a social worker, earning $450 a month, in place of the $207 his family got on relief.

Kentucky — Mr. X had worked in the mines most of his life. He was trained on a country bridge repair project. After one year, he sought employment on his own, and found a $2.91 an hour job with an engineering firm in Indiana.

But these are only drops in the bucket and a vast deal more has to be done.

Job Training or Re-Training has proved of some success in putting young people to work or finding new jobs for men and women displaced by automation or technological changes. But training programs under the Economic Opportunity Act have just

Mauldin Views Chicago Race Riots

Despite Bill Mauldin's background as a cartoonist and war correspondent in World War II, Korea and Viet Nam, he was hardly prepared to find himself covering a military operation literally in his own back yard.

When racial violence broke out recently in Chicago's West Side, Mauldin left his wife and children at his own South Side Chicago home, took a short taxi ride, and attached himself to the 3d Infantry Brigade of the Illinois National Guard. The Guard was called out Friday by Gov. Kerner at the request of Mayor Daley and Police Supt. Orlando W. Wilson, who felt that the situation was getting out of control.

Mauldin spent eight or 10 hours with the guard, mostly in a jeep patrolling the disturbed area, carrying his camera and sketchbook, until 2 o'clock Saturday morning. At 6 a.m. Saturday he arrived at his office, somewhat bleary-eyed and unshaven, as befits a correspondent back from the field, and began completing his visual impressions which appear on this page. At 3 p.m. he reported that he was stretched out on his living room sofa. Local wars do have their good points.

Maier's 'Great City Crusade' Has Implications in Valley

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The city, in its struggle with the suburb for more revenues, has been offered new weapons for its arsenal. It appears only a matter of time before Fox Valley municipal leaders begin considering the offer.

Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee, since taking office, has sought ways out of a dilemma in which he sees the city required to meet growing demands for services while its sources of income are either increasing too slowly or diminishing.

Late last month, he launched what he has christened a "Great City Crusade" which includes a new assault on the legislature and the governor's office to win changes in the way the state divides aids and tax monies among municipal governments.

He has couched his arguments in terms of unjust distribution of state aids and shared taxes — favoring the suburbs and short-changing the major metropolitan centers. He has already warned where the battle lines will be drawn. "Our greatest enemy in this effort," he predicted, "will be a suburban-oriented civic conscience."

by Mayor Maier's research staff.

One of the Milwaukeean's arguments, for instance, has been that a community's tax collections to some extent indicate the extent of its need for revenue to finance the services its citizens demand. He complains that while Milwaukee collects 24 per cent of the state's total property taxes, the city receives only 17 per cent of the aids of tax shares.

"By this test, Milwaukee fails to receive $30,000,000 a year from the state of Wisconsin," he declared.

Should Get More

He bluntly announced the belief that his city deserves an additional 7 per cent of the $440,000,000 presently returned to the local governments each year.

As in the case of the Milwaukee area, the largest municipality in the Fox Valley — Appleton — turns out to receive the least equitable returns from the state, based on the city's total tax collection as compared with its portion of the valley's total state rebates.

Figures compiled for eight valley communities, based on information gathered by the Fox River Valley Regional Planning Commission, indicated total 1966 property taxes for the area of $17,924,515.

Of this, Appleton last year collected $8,055,384, or 45 per cent. Yet, following Mayor Maier's arguments, Appleton collected only 41.1 per cent of the state rebates divided among the eight communities. Appleton's share was $3,301,519, out of a total returned of $8,020,274, according to FVRPC data.

At the opposite extreme is the Village of Combined Locks, which collected 2.66 per cent of the taxes but received 5.7 per cent of the rebate pie when it was sliced by the state.

More Here, Too

If the system were entirely equitable, the Milwaukee argument would contend, Appleton should have received a slice nearly 4 per cent larger, amounting to an additional $320,000. The village, applying the same reasoning, should have been supported by about 3 per cent less, deducting some $240,000 from what it received from Madison.

Another indicator of how the system works is the degree to which each community is supported by state rebates. Again, the city and village are at opposite extremes. The breakdown of the portion of each community's total revenues for 1965 which were comprised of state aids and shared taxes is as follows:

Appleton, 29 per cent; Neenah, 30.7 per cent; Menasha, 31 per cent; Kaukauna, 34.5 per cent; Kimberly, 22.4 per cent; Combined Locks, 49.1 per cent; Town of Menasha, 34.3 per cent, and Town of Neenah, 31.2 per cent.

The effect of comparing each community's share of the total population in the Valley with its level of rebates yields similar results. Again, they parallel on a less spectacular scale the statistics cited by Mayor Maier, with some communities with small percentages of area population getting larger shares of the rebates.

He has also complained that, "within the metropolitan area there can be tax islands because the cost of municipal government is subsidized by the state at the expense of the citizens of the central city."

Common Knowledge

It is common knowledge that taxes are lower in some suburban Fox Valley areas than in the cities.

Of the eight municipalities already listed, neither the Town of Neenah nor the Town of Menasha last year levied any property tax for its own municipal purposes. All their collections were used to operate schools, pay their share of county government costs or to finance other expenditures not directly for running the local government.

The merits of the Milwaukee mayor's proposals to remedy the city's financial problems will be debated with growing intensity.

This fall's state election campaign will surely include discussion of his proposals, if only as a result of his announced intentions to sound out the candidates for governor for their views.

His intentions to comb the state for support in other city administrations is also timed to mesh with the election, and the political implications of the timing are obvious.

Fox Valley mayors, questioned for their views on the subject, had little to say at present. One obvious reason was that they had not yet been contacted by the Maier staff and informed of the possible gains to their home communities.

That they had not apparently sought to gather the information for themselves may possibly be explained by the less biting nature of the tax and aid discrepancies in the Valley.

Concern Present

But concern over the need for local sources of revenue has been present for some time.

Mayor George Backlet of Appleton said he believed the local property tax rate had passed an endurable level when it rose above $50 per thousand of locally assessed valuation.

Mayor Kenneth Holmes of Menasha, whose city is grappling with the effects of industry moving outside the city limits and taking substantial portions of the tax base with it, gave evidence of his concern by revealing he has given an employment tax considerable study.

The extent to which Mayor Maier can expect support in the Fox Valley remains to be seen. That his program will be discussed with interest here seems assured.

Little Known

Although some of Mayor Maier's suggestions might have applications in the Fox River Valley, there is apparently little knowledge or interest yet among local officials in his stratagems.

One of the valley's top ranking city officers, when asked to comment on the "crusade," said frankly he was totally unaware of it. Others were only dimly familiar with the proposals.

Mayor Maier has announced his intentions to seek support from other communities that would stand to gain by his suggestions.

An official in the Maier administration, who has worked closely with the mayor since the Crusade was initiated, said the preparations for the fight for new legislation have gone so far as to calculate on a computer which communities stand to gain and which might lose, in order to single out potential allies and opponents.

Full scale efforts to enlist support from other cities are planned this fall.

At the heart of the Maier package of proposals has been the argument that the state tends to discriminate in favor of the small community, at the expense of the major metropolitan centers such as Milwaukee, in distributing aids and shared taxes.

Applying his argument to the local situation yields similar results, though less spectacular than those produced

Today's Memories Are of County Fairs And Hilton Hotels

BY JOHN TORINUS

The evening I spent at the Outagamie County Fair during the very successful Appleton Night promotion brought back a lot of nostalgic memories. A visit to a county fair is an experience all of us should renew at least annually. For here is an American tradition of the healthiest sort.

When I was a youngster I lived just across the Fox River from the fairgrounds in West DePere. The annual fair was an event which all of us of that age anticipated for some months in advance.

For one thing it was a source of cash income and in those days cash was a difficult thing for a youngster to come by. By dint of frequent visits to the office of the fair secretary I had won a position as an usher in the grandstand, and in the four days of grandstand shows this produced a cash return (without deductions) of some $10. I had the added advantage of free transportation there and back. All I had to do was row my old Kidney klinker-built rowboat across the river.

There was also the exciting opportunity of winning cash prizes for various exhibits. I had various specialties, carefully selected after several years of searching out those classes in which there were apt to be very few entries. Snow apples was one and my mother had a very fine snow apple tree. Crooked neck squash was another. Very few people in those days raised crooked neck squash.

I tried tomatoes on several occasions but here the competition was much stiffer.

The field in which I really cleaned up though was my grandmother's baking and jelly-making. I formed a partnership with Grandma. She would do the cooking and baking and I would see to it her products were carefully delivered and entered.

Whereas I usually had to be content with a red ribbon for crooked neck squash (there was one other grower who consistently outranked me) and this would return a prize of $2 against my $1 entry fee. Grandmother's entries would sometime bring in $10 to $15.

Net result was that the fair produced almost a guaranteed cash flow for this youngster of $25 to $30. And that would finance a lot of 10-cent hamburgers.

A friend has forwarded me a column by Charles McCabe from the San Francisco Chronicle with which I totally agree.

McCabe writes from Paris where he attended the grand opening of the new Conrad Hilton Hotel. A few quotes will give you the gist:

"It is one of the commonplaces of the travel dodge that Americans go abroad to stay at home.

"And we have even heard of some heroic travelers who, with the aid of American Express or some other dandy travel organization, have circled the globe without ever seeing a single damned native, or eating anything other than foot-long hot dogs downed with bourbon and ditch.

"The motto of most of my fellows who come to Europe seems to be, 'Don't travel, but say you do.'

"For these laddies Hiltons are bliss. I do not say Hilton hotels, though the Hilton people do. These things are not hotels. They are boxes for Americans to hide in, when they're abroad.

"Connie Hilton and his like have built considerable fortunes on a formula which consists in abating the Yankee's restlessness while at the same time avoiding an even greater evil: homesickness.

"Those accommodations and amenities which are booked to the hilt this summer are the ones which are least like Istanbul and Tashkent or Dublin or Edingurph (or whatever city the traveler finds himself in) and most like the Dubuques and Scottsdales, which the journeyer never left, and never wants to.

"Here I am at the entrepreneurs latest sandbox, the Paris Hilton, watching the same dreary old formula going into practice, as the cash registers go ting-a-ling. It ain't francs, either old or new, that make the jolly noise. It's the good old Yankee dollar.

"On the recent opening night Hiltonists from all over get mildly sloshed on sourmash in the Western Bar, as they looked up at lassos and cattle skeletons suspended from the walls. They put on cowboy hats and bandannas and sat down in Le Western, in the basement, to a dinner of barbecued beef, fried onion rings, Millionaire potato salad, fried apple pie with country butter and six-shooter coffee.

"Man, this is living," they said, one and all.

"As one observer at opening night put it, 'There is a whole society of people who rarely set foot outside a Hilton because what is there out there that isn't either dirty or dangerous? It is very unsafe to leave a Hilton except to go to the airport and fly to another Hilton. Everyone knows that.'

I refuse absolutely to stay in a Hilton Hotel even in this country. My last experience some 15 years ago was the time it took me longer to check in than it had taken me to get from here to Chicago.

But I know travellers in this area who are the kind McCabe writes about. One couple this spring became deathly ill from eating hamburgers in a so-called American snack shop in Rome.

The only really poor meal we had on our whole recent trip was in an American plan hotel on the Italian Riviera. It turned out the hotel catered to Englishmen and the chef was British. Can you imagine serving beef kidneys on the shore of the Mediterranean?

Hoffa gets the Teamsters Union to pay his court costs. Jimmy figures it's only fair—he's given his lawyers plenty of work, so why not give union members the business too?

Thousands of Volkswagens are called in for mechanical checks. There's no safety problem, though—it's just time to change the rubber bands that you wind up to make the car go.

France will build its own communications satellite. It's a De Gaulle economy plan—now he'll be able to say "no" to the whole world at once.

Space scientists say frog eggs develop normally in orbit. They'll hatch into space frogs—great on the long jumps and experts at landing in the big pond.

A Los Angeles radio station gets FCC approval to broadcast advertisements almost 16 hours a day. The other 8 hours will be public service time—for listeners to rush out and buy the products.

There are no indications on the horizon that any further government action is being contemplated such as a further increase in the discount rate or even credit controls. In fact the interest rate increases already accomplished are doing an effective job of tightening up credit generally.

But a further deterioration in the value of the British pound which could lead to devaluation would have serious repercussions in this country.

'Luci, would you mind if I didn't dance at your wedding. . ?'

Sen. Nelson Wants to See Action In Developing Northern Wisconsin

Editor, Post-Crescent:

By all accounts, the conference at Ashland on June 3, "Developing Without Destroying," and its accompanying publicity, succeeded in sparking widespread enthusiasm for action to preserve and enhance the natural beauty of northern Wisconsin.

The question is now, "What next?"

As everyone knows, the enthusiasm generated by the best of conferences can be lost before any concrete action is begun. It is vitally important that this not be the fate of the spirit and ideas generated at the Ashland conference.

Hopefully, this meeting, attended by 225 local businessmen and officials and professional planners, will be only the first step in a continuing, long-range campaign to bring economic health to the North while preserving its unique qualities of natural beauty.

Local leadership is crucial to this goal, but I. University Extension, Northland College, and others are anxious to assist in every way possible.

It appears there are three major ways in which this office can cooperate with a new and concerted effort to help northern Wisconsin.

First of all, we must press for passage of the legislation directly affecting the area. The Apostle Islands National Lakeshore bill, which I introduced last year, is among the most important. A favorable report on the proposal is expected very shortly from the Interior Department and hopefully public hearings can be held this summer. The St. Croix and Wolf River scenic riverway bills will also receive my careful attention.

Other legislation affecting the North — water pollution measures, rural community development legislation, recreational development legislation — will also receive my active, strong support.

Second, this office will do everything possible to see that Wisconsin benefits fully from the programs of the Economic Development Administration and the Upper Great Lakes Regional Development Commission. The commission can be vitally important to the North in carrying on its special task of trying to make the North the new land of opportunity.

Third, this office will continue to emphasize its willingness to work with local planning groups and local units of government in making the most effective use of federal grants and loans for planning, public works, economic and social development, and the like. We should explore the possibility of a clinic in northern Wisconsin at which federal agency officials could talk with local people about their assistance programs.

In all of these efforts, I will be in close touch with University Extension, Northern College, and other organizations and individuals who are following up on the ideas suggested at the conference, and the ideas generated by the enthusiasm for action it has created.

This is a challenging and exciting time for northern Wisconsin, too long burdened with serious economic problems. Outdoor recreation, though certainly not the entire answer to northern Wisconsin's economic troubles, does hold great hope for a bright future for the area. Northern Wisconsin is within driving distance of 50 million people in the Midwest who, according to all estimates, will have an increasing desire for recreation and relaxation in the beautiful out-of-doors.

Now is the time to plan to receive them in northern Wisconsin, and to receive them in a way which will encourage them to come back again and again.

Calls Cat Ordinance Senseless, Unneeded

Editor, Post-Crescent:

When I read of the recent proposal to put a restraining ordinance on cats, I said to myself, "What next?" If this proposal goes through, it won't be long before we will have a general ordinance which states: 'If it moves, tie it up.'

I don't understand how anyone with a conscience could ask a cat owner to place his cat in a defenseless position at the end of a rope, easy prey to every stray dog which may happen to come along. We have a beautiful golden retriever for a house pet. He is a kind and loving dog, but unfortunately his love doesn't extend to the cat world. If he should accidentally get loose and come upon a cat that was tied up, I can say without hesitation that he would kill it.

I also feel that such an ordinance would place a great hardship on cats in securing homes. Persons who would ordinarily take a cat as a house pet will hesitate because of the burdensome effect of the ordinance. Cats are natural born roamers and keeping them unduly restrained is regarded as cruel and inhumane by many people, and rather than be a part of it, they won't have a cat at all.

I wonder about people who won't rest until a senseless, unnecessary ordinance is enacted and then sit back while someone else has to break his neck trying to enforce it. I certainly feel sorry for the person who has to track down a cat on the loose. It seems like an impossible task to me.

We are overlooking completely the value of cats in controlling the rodent population in the city. And cats that are tied up can't do this valuable and important job for us. Remember:

For want of a cat
The town had rats

I am a resident of the 18th ward from which the cat ordinance proposal was made by Alderman John Steidl, and I have never been bothered by cats, although there are several in the neighborhood. Occasionally one will pass silently through our yard, but I don't mind because I don't happen to believe that I own the whole gosh darn world like some people do. Also, I'm not sitting by the window waiting and watching for pussy to place her paw in my yard. I'm too busy working.

Manawa People Saw Same Light Night as Prof. Read

Editor, Post-Crescent:

After reading the letter of Wm. F. Read, I decided that possibly I and several others with me may have seen the same light, although it was at an earlier time. I would say approximately 8:45 p.m. We were gathered at the Zander Bros. Farm home which is located northwest of Manawa. Suddenly we saw this bright light approaching from the southeast and it seemed to be coming straight toward us in a slow and easy manner, then it slowly disappeared behind the horizon. At the time we saw this it was one large bright orange light. And it stayed that way as long as we could see it. Could there possibly have been two such lights in the same general area?

What's With the UGLDC?

There is often an understandable lag between the political enthusiasms for a new program and the time the program can gear itself into action, particularly if the federal government is involved. But the Upper Great Lakes Development Commission seems to have all but vanished except for the optimistic statements left in its wake.

The commission, perhaps it might be restated, was formed to direct long-range economic planning for 119 counties of Northern Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and Northern Minnesota which have common troubles from such factors as the depletion of its iron ore and the lack of replacement employment.

The idea dated from the last visit to Wisconsin and Minnesota of President Kennedy. Sen. Gaylord Nelson was one of its champions in gaining congressional approval.

Five months ago, Wisconsin Gov. Warren Knowles, Michigan Gov. George Romney, and Minnesota Gov. Karl Rolvaag were summoned to Washington for a Department of Commerce ceremony to launch the commission. Except for several home-town suggestions for the best place to establish the headquarters for the Tri-State commission, there has been nothing but silence since.

Organization of a regional planning approach for the problems common to the three states seemed to be sound during the struggle to get the commission authorized. Conditions, while improved in some localities, are little different now. Questions about what is causing the delay are in order.

Lynda Bird and George

It was rumored that Lynda Bird Johnson's trip to Spain and Germany, a graduation present from her parents, was also one of the age-old attempts to put a lot of miles between the President's daughter and a suitor not approved by her parents. Certainly George Hamilton, while handsome, personable and apparently rich, is no political boon to President Johnson.

Back when Hamilton's draft status became public and it was discovered that he had been exempted because his induction would place a hardship upon his mother living in a mansion, Hamilton expressed interest in going to Viet Nam, not in uniform exactly but on a tour to entertain American troops. Somehow, after vitriolic letters began to be published in newspapers from American paratroopers and marines whose families did not live in the opulence of Hamilton's mother, the idea was discarded. It appeared likely that any Hamilton appearance at an air base in the jungle would be greeted either by a lot of cat calls or a boycott.

Now new pickets have shown up around the White House. They represent the "ad hoc committee to draft George Hamilton." Actually he is now 26 and the current policy is to catch American young men at 18 or 19. But the Johnsons have probably learned one thing that a lot of parents could have told them and saved them the expense of that European trip. Out of sight, out of mind can be easily countered with distance lends enchantment.

The Futility of Escalation

The futility of escalating the war in Viet Nam has once again been demonstrated by the North Vietnamese reaction to the U.S. bombing of oil storage tanks in Hanoi and Haiphong. President Ho Chi Minh ordered a partial mobilization of North Viet Nam. He said any efforts for Viet Nam peace talks were "out of the question" and that the North Vietnamese people must be prepared to face some destruction in the country. "The war may continue for many years, but we will not bow," Ho said. He also made an appeal for more material and moral support from Communist allies.

And what has been the reaction from the Johnson Administration? Silence. Once again, its justification for escalating the war appears questionable. Since February, 1965, when the Administration first began bombing North Viet Nam, it has justified each escalation on the grounds that the action would curtail or halt the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into South Viet Nam. Instead, each escalation has been accompanied by an increase in the number of troops and amount of material moving to the South.

Where does this reciprocal escalation lead and what does it mean? It appears that both President Johnson and Ho Chi Minh are increasingly committed to seeking a military victory which is unattainable. A military victory even implies the destruction of the Vietnamese population and countryside. And yet, President Johnson seems determined to gain this victory. In a speech in Omaha the day after the bombings of the oil storage tanks, he said "the air attacks on military targets in North Viet Nam have been imposing and will continue to impose a growing burden and a big price on those who wage war against the freedom of their neighbors." He also said that "there can be only one decision in Viet Nam and that is this: We will see this through; we shall persist; we shall succeed." These are frightening words considering that top military men in the Defense Department are urging further escalation of the war effort. Their recommendations include closing the Haiphong harbor, destroying the three largest jet airfields in the Haiphong-Hanoi area, and bombing power plants and industrial facilities considered important to the war effort.

Fiscal Troubles in Britain

The fiscal crisis in Great Britain poses serious questions for financial authorities in the United States where we are trying to trip lightly along the tight wire of tightening up the national money supply to control inflation and at the same time keep our unprecedented period of prosperity going.

Prime Minister Wilson hurried back to London from his conferences with Soviet leaders in Moscow to inaugurate a series of measures designed to head off the terrific pressure on the shaky pound sterling. The British budget will be cut back drastically again, principally in spending for British forces overseas. Taxes will be increased. Domestic industry will be pressured to cut production for home consumption and increase export trade.

It is the prime minister's hope that these measures will restore international confidence in the British pound. But there is real doubt that his hope is justified by the facts. The pound has been moving constantly downward on foreign exchanges.

If the moves designed by Wilson's cabinet do not do the job the only recourse left open to Britain would be to devalue the pound. And that could set off international repercussions which certainly would have adverse effects on the value of the American dollar.

The economies of the leading nations in the Free World are now so closely related that any significant fiscal developments in London are of immediate concern in Washington. As an example, several weeks ago the British increased the discount rate on borrowing in that country from 6 to 7 per cent. The fear immediately arose in this country that the higher interest rates in Britain would attract American capital to the further detriment of our balance of payments, already a critical problem.

Interest rates in this country in recent months have reached levels near or at an all-time high. There has been a drastic drying up of money available to borrowers. This tight money policy was originated by the Federal Reserve Board late last year in order to put a mild brake on our continuing inflation. But in applying such brakes there is always the danger that economic expansion will be not only slowed down but reversed.

Wing Breaks Badger Stunt Pilot Killed

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — Stunt pilot Bill Adams, 43, of Menominee, Wis., was killed Saturday in a plane crash during the finale of a show dedicating Porter County Municipal Airport's $1 million jet runway. Witnesses said a wing of Adams' Stearman biplane collapsed at an altitude of about 1,000 feet. The plane plunged to earth, buried its propeller 10 feet in the ground and caught fire.

Cause of the wing collapse was not determined.

Adams' wife was among an estimated 35,000 persons watching the show. Earlier in the show, Adams had flown upside down 20 feet above the ground to cut a ribbon opening the new 6,000-foot runway. He was only two maneuvers from the end of the show when his plane crashed.

Adams said before the show he had $55,000 invested in the plane. His extensive modifications included replacing a 210-horsepower engine with one of 450 horsepower.

Adams' manager, Doug Cameron, said Adams was performing an outside snap roll when the wing collapsed. He said the fabric appeared to go first. Cameron said: "Bill died doing what he wanted to do."

Speck Shows Improvement Accused Murderer Sits Up for Meals; Court Date Thursday

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard Speck, accused of murdering eight student nurses, showed continuing physical improvement Saturday as prosecutors arranged their evidence for presentation to the grand jury.

Saturday's medical bulletin said Speck's fever was absent for the second consecutive day and that "his heart rub is no longer present."

Speck has been diagnosed as suffering from pericarditis, an inflammation of the membranous sac that encases the heart.

For the first time since his arrest Sunday, Speck sat up in bed Friday for his meals.

Carried Semiconscious Speck was carried semiconscious into the Cook County Hospital Sunday suffering from self-inflicted slashes on his left arm and right wrist. Transferred to the city jail hospital, he suffered a seizure that at first was diagnosed as a possible heart attack.

Speck has a date in the felony division of Circuit Court Thursday to face a formal charge of murdering Gloria Jean Davis, 22, of Dyer, Ind. Miss Davis is believed to be the first of the eight young women killed July 14 by an armed intruder in their townhouse dormitory.

There were reports that State's Atty. Daniel P. Ward would take evidence in the case before the grand jury Monday.

Actor Cliff, 45, Dies in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Montgomery Clift, the handsome film actor who won fame for his roles of a sensitive young leading man, died Saturday in his East Side Manhattan apartment, police said. He was 45.

In his private life, Clift was regarded in Hollywood as a sort of maverick, who long scorned the customs of stars but never lost his box office attraction.

During his career he played opposite some of the world's greatest actors and actresses and in 1953 won a nomination for an academy award for his support role in "From Here to Eternity."

In all the years that he made a good living out of Hollywood, Clift never lived there. He spent much of his time in New York and on board cruisers and other ships he had owned.

LBJ Defends Policies, Hits Racial Violence

formally with wounded veterans of the war.

45,000 Watch

Military authorities estimated 45,000 persons were on hand to see Johnson, his wife and daughter in the city. Johnson was here as the commander in chief of the new military force, our nation has ever placed in the field of battle.

He said that while the nation's military forces make it almost impossible for the Communist forces in the field, our diplomats are pushing for a way to make an honorable peace seem desirable to the Communist leaders in Hanoi.

From Ft. Campbell, Johnson flew to Lawrenceville, Ill., then motored to Vincennes, Ind., to sign a bill establishing the George Rogers Clark national historical park in memory of the Revolutionary War general who helped open up the Northwest Territory.

Other Speeches

After a drive back to Lawrenceville, he flew to Louisville, then motored to Standifer, Ky., and Jeffersonville, Ind., winding up a fast-moving day of speech-making and handshaking which the White House described as non-political.

By way of emphasizing it, Johnson brought with him from Washington a congressional delegation from the area, which included Republicans as well as Democrats. Among them were Kentucky's Republican senators, Thurston B. Morton and John Sherman Cooper.

The President made three speeches at Indianapolis, defending his Asian policies and speaking out against street violence.

"Our country can abide civil protests," he said. "It can improve the lives of those who mount that protest, but it cannot abide civil violence."

Protestors Present

Between 25 and 30 persons protesting against Johnson's course in Viet Nam were bundled into a sheriff's bus after Johnson left the Indianapolis Monument Circle. A sheriff's deputy said they might be detained overnight on a charge of breaking up a public meeting.

One of the demonstrators carried a sign, "War on poverty, not on people."

One of those herded onto the bus was James Dinsmoor, an Indiana University professor who ran unsuccessfully for Congress this spring. Police Capt. Charles Sherman said Dinsmoor was charged with interfering with police. Bond was set at $500.

Pro-Johnson Crowd

The demonstrators had been kept half a block away while Johnson spoke. When they first tried to move into the circle, Police Chief Noel Jones told them, "This is a pro-Johnson crowd. I'm damned if we're going to have a riot."

Departing from his prepared speech at Monument Circle in Indianapolis, Johnson noted a Viet Cong attack on a U.S. Navy hospital in Da Nang and said, "That is typical of the way the Communists fight."

In this country, he continued, there are people who denounce U.S. air strikes against oil storage depots near Hanoi and Hanoi, but he said these people "remain strangely silent" when hospitals are attacked.

On another domestic problem, Johnson said in Indianapolis that his administration "has not this country. The public address shirked its own responsibility in announcing called no special at the fight against inflation." But he added that the government cannot do it all and "must have restraint and responsibility they expect from the government."

101st Airborne

In his speech for some 5,000 troops of the 101st Airborne Division, some of whose units are fighting in Viet Nam, Johnson said the turning of the tide of battle in Viet Nam "must have surprised no one as much as the leaders in Hanoi."

He added: "For we know from captured documents that the foreign visitors, including Pre-troops from North Viet Nam were taught that Americans face the trials of a guerrilla war; that they would not stand up in close combat."

"I suspect that at this very hour someone in Hanoi is busily revising those estimates."

Egypt Displays Military Might On Anniversary

Parade Features New Soviet-Made Red Missiles

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser showed off everything from his famed camel corps to new Soviet-made air-to-ground missiles Saturday in a mammoth military parade marking the overthrow of King Farouk 14 years ago. The display had a markedly Soviet air.

While 300 new Soviet-supplied MIG-21D jets and four Tupolev TU-16 jet bombers winged overhead, the TU-16s carried new, bright red missiles under their wings.

The camel corps, which patrols the Egyptian deserts, followed up marching paratroopers and infantrymen.

Nasser, in the reviewing stand, appeared in fine humor as he watched the men and machines stream past.

The MIG-21D all-weather jets and the TU-16 bombers are new to the United Arab Republic Air Force.

Military experts said the missiles on the bombers never had been shown publicly before in this country. The public address announcer called no special attention to them, but military experts said it was clear Nasser wanted to show them off. They noted the missiles were painted bright red.

Also on prominent display were Egyptian-made Zafer (Victorious), Kaher (Conqueror) and Raed (Pioneer) ground-to-air rockets.

With Nasser in the grandstand were Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, deputy commander in chief of the armed forces, other top military commanders, Premier Zakaria Mohieddin, and the foreign visitors, including Premier Abdel Rahman Bazzaz of Iraq and Sherif Beicassem, Algerian National Liberation front leader.

In a brief address, Amer declared that political differences between Arabs "all will dissolve when we undertake the sacred cause to liberate Palestine."

Aid Men in Viet Nam in Casting Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department is making a special effort to see that the men in Viet Nam know about and have opportunity to exercise their rights to vote by absentee ballot in this year's primary and general elections.

The effort is part of the general activities the department has carried on for 10 years under the 1955 Federal Voting Assistance Act.

That law was designed to facilitate the use of absentee balloting procedures by both those in the armed services and federal civilian employees away from home at election time.

Viet Nam is getting particular attention because of the problems of time and distance.

"We are concerned about Viet Nam and have a special program on," Stephen S. Jackson, deputy voting coordinator in the department, told a reporter.

"If anybody deserves to vote, the men in Viet Nam do."

Milwaukee Will Get $35,000 For Bicycle Trail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milwaukee County will receive $35,000 from the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund for construction of more than four miles of bicycle trails along Lake Michigan.

The money is part of a $367,136 grant for urban trail construction made public today by the Secretary of the Interior, Stewart Udall.

Wisconsin will match the federal grant with an equal amount of money.

Police Force Braces for Religious Clashes in Northern Irish Capital

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Police braced Saturday night for possible new outbreaks of violence from Protestant extremists after clashing twice with angry mobs in 24 hours. A weekend police alert was in effect for this strife-torn capital.

The first clash occurred at midnight near the jail where the Rev. Ian Paisley, firebrand Protestant leader, is confined for refusing to pledge to keep the peace. Several persons were hurt and 16 arrested before police dispersed demonstrators trying to march on the jail.

Hours later, a second protest march on behalf of Paisley and two jailed Presbyterian colleagues got out of hand when about 100 youths, defying their leaders' appeals, broke away and tried to invade Catholic sectors of the city.

When they broke through a cordon, police turned water hoses on them.

Peru Signs Pact on Racial Discrimination

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Peru has become the 21st country to sign the international convention for elimination of all forms of racial discrimination. It was approved by the General Assembly last Dec. 21 and becomes effective 30 days after 27 countries have ratified it. None of the signers has yet made its ratification.

'No Progress' in Airline Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal spokesman reported "no progress whatsoever" Saturday toward settling the 16-day-old airline strike. Union and management negotiators blamed each other for the impasse.

Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds said that if any other industry were involved, he would be prepared to declare that "nothing could be done," but that the heavy public interest involved demands that "we keep trying, trying and trying."

Reynolds said he hopes both sides will note the comment Saturday by President Johnson in an Indianapolis speech that the freedom to bargain collectively also involves a duty to bargain responsibly.

2,400 Drivers Get Guidance

MADISON (AP) — Motor vehicle officials said Saturday they had succeeded in counseling 2,400 poor drivers in the first 3 months that the program has been in operation.

One driver had no chance to benefit from the project, said Motor Vehicle Commissioner James Karns. The motorist was killed in a traffic crash while officials were trying to arrange a counseling session with him.

The program was set up after the Legislature ordered counseling talks with drivers who had piled up enough traffic convictions that they were halfway to the point of losing their licenses.

Karns said the Motor Vehicle Department lifted the licenses of 23 motorists who ignored notices to come in for counseling.

Slates New Conference On Viet Nam Conflict

MADISON (AP) — Republican congressional candidate William B. Smith has scheduled a news conference for next Tuesday to report on his 10-day trip to South Viet Nam.

Campaign aides to the Madison alderman said Smith would return Monday night. He left unannounced for Asia last week after filing for Congress and said in a statement issued after his departure, "Throughout my public career, I have sought to get to the heart of a problem."

Smith is unopposed for the Republican nomination to try to unseat Rep. Robert W. Kas-tenmeier, D-Wis., this fall.

His campaign aides reported Smith talked with Wisconsin political differences servicemen, U.S. officials and Vietnamese citizens, as well as when we undertake the sacred cause to liberate Palestine."

RCA Setting Up TV Station in Congo

Geiberger Surges to 4-Stroke Pad Over Wysong in PGA Test

Pennel Snaps World Record In Pole Vault

Surpasses 17-6 on Last Try in International Track-Field Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Pennel bettered the world record of 17-4 set by Fred Hansen of Rice, now retired, in record in the pole vault Saturday at the USA-USSR meet here July 24 with a leap of 17 feet, 6 1/4 inches.

Earlier in the meet, Australian Track and Field lion Ron Clarke won the 5,000-meter race, but his time of 13:28.4 failed to threaten his own world record of 13:16.6.

Most of the crowd remained to see the pole vault and Pennel, who will celebrate his 26th birthday Monday, made it on his third and last try.

Pennel's record first was announced at 17-6. When the bar was remeasured, however, the record height was found to be 17-6 1/4.

It broke the pending world mark of his roommate, Bob Seagren, who cleared 17-5 1/2 at Fresno, Calif., May 13, 1966.

Snead Falters to 75 for 214; Player, January Share Third With 213 After 54 Holes

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Lean and hungry Al Geiberger, avoiding bogeys as if they were a plague, grabbed a four-shot lead over dark-horse Dudley Wysong Saturday as the years finally took their toll of Sam Snead in the third round of the Professional Golfers Association championship.

Rifling his irons like a siege gun, the 6-foot-2 1/2 inch Geiberger fired a two-under-par 68 over Firestone's scorched acres for a 54-hole score of 208.

This sent him spinning past the 54-year-old sentimental favorite, Snead, co-leader and leader through the first two rounds, and four big blows in front of the 27-year-old Wysong, a pro of three years playing in his first PGA, who shot the best round of the tournament — a 66 for 212.

Thrilled Golfing Millions

The aging Snead, whose play through the first two days as-tounded and thrilled golfing mil-lions, held on gamely until he reached the 625-yard 16th hole.

There he cut his third shot approach to the green a bit too thin and the ball hit into the fronting pond, about a yard short of fair territory. He took a muscle injury. The American B-team of George Gaines, Charlie Greene, Charles Mays and Adolph got in first in 40.1 but was disqualified because it was not an official entry.

Koufax Garners 17th Triumph, Halts Mets, 6-2

New York Manages Just Eight Hits as Sandy Fans Seven

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sandy Koufax scattered eight hits for his 17th victory Saturday as the Los Angeles Dodgers snapped the New York Mets' seven-game winning streak 6-2.

Koufax, who has lost five games, had to struggle even though the Dodgers staked him to five runs in the first three innings. Maury Wills drove Met starter and loser Bob Shaw, 7-9, from the mound with a two-run single in the second inning.

Koufax walked five, struck out seven and threw the unusually high total of 168 pitches.

Singles by Jim Barberi and Wills, a sacrifice fly by Willie Davis and a wild pitch by Shaw gave the Dodgers two runs in the first inning.

Wills' two-run single in the second inning followed a single by John Kennedy and a double by Nate Oliver. In the third, Lou Johnson singled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Oliver.

The Dodgers scored a seventh-inning run on a double by Willie Davis and a sacrifice bunt by Johnson.

Koufax lost a shutout in the second inning when Ron Swoboda and Larry Elliot hit singles and Jerry Grote lofted a sacrifice fly.

Yank Old-Timers Beat Dodgers as DiMaggio Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe DiMaggio celebrated the 25th anniversary of his 56-game hitting streak Saturday by driving in a run with a double as the 1941 Brooklyn Dodgers beat the 1941 New York Yankees 2-1 in the 1941 Old-Timers game at Yankee Stadium.

A crowd of 35,000 looked on as DiMaggio's sacrifice fly drove in the winning run. The Yanks came out of the corner of my eye, but I didn't see who it was.

Marines Find Viet Nam War Grinding Task

Squad and Platoon Dominate Conflict Of Endless Patrols

By ROBERT D. OHMAN

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — To U.S. Marines the war in Viet Nam is a grinding task that has brought many days of frustrating operations, death to 1,100 of the corps — and some slowly developing rewards.

This, for the Marine, is the war of the squad and platoon, of endless patrols and trail ambushes. The occasional big firefight with a band of guerrillas suddenly and ends quickly as the Viet Cong fade away. Then it is back to probing and pressing forward, foot by foot, the line of Marine control.

The reward may be a brief freight with a band of guerrillas who leave their dead as they flee, a successful ambush, or the smiles of village peasants who a week ago lived under Viet Cong domination.

Five Areas

The 56,000 Marines are fighting in the five northern-most provinces.

Operating out of three combat bases with full Marine air support, the Leathernecks have methodically expanded their perimeters from a wavering six square miles at Da Nang in March 1965 to 960 square miles at Da Nang, Chu Lai and Phu Bai.

This system of seize-and-consolidate has brought criticism from some military critics. They contend the Marines are not fulfilling their traditional role of assault troops who seize the objective and then move on.

A Marine spokesman observed: "We have a simple goal. It is to control the area where the people are. We will lose 'X' number of Marines, but the solution is just a matter of time and diligence."

The Marines at Phu Bai, 45 miles north of Da Nang, have extended their perimeter to 85 square miles. At Da Nang, the major Marine base, the Leathernecks have a 600-square mile perimeter and are pressing north and south. At Chu Lai, 50 miles south, the Marines control 275 square miles.

Could Close Gap

"We could close the gap between Da Nang and Chu Lai in five weeks," the spokesman said, "but it would mean steam-rolling conventional warfare — breaking everything up. And we're trying to win these villages to the government's side, not destroy them."

Lt Gen. Lewis W. Walt, commanding general, has told the Marines they are fighting three battles: against the North Vietnamese or Viet Cong main forces; against bands of guerrillas, and to win the people's loyalty to the government.

Against the main force, the first problem is to find the enemy battalions or regiments. With the Viet Cong reluctant to field any large units for a toe-to-toe clash, the Marines are specializing in counter guerrilla tactics.

"These guerrillas are the foundation of Communist strength here," the spokesman said. "Without the guerrillas collecting taxes, rice and intelligence and intimidating the villagers, the main forces would be ineffective."

To counter the guerrillas, the Marines have 500 troop units operating day and night, ranging from companies to four-man fire teams. They can call in air-planes and artillery fire.

Their lonely, isolated battles do not draw headlines.

Choose Guerrillas

Gen. Walt has made it clear that he believes action against the guerrillas will determine the fate of the five northern provinces. One of his staff officers says: "If we had the choice of killing 100 guerrillas or 300 North Vietnamese soldiers, we would take the guerrillas. They can't be replaced."

The third fight on Walt's list involves the loyalty of the 2.75 million people living in this area.

The line between a civic action program and a tactical operation is often slender and uncertain, and the Marines have mated the two with enough success that they are being copied by other American military units.

Former Braves May Play in All-Star Game

Democrats Plan Tilt At County Stadium After Majors Finish

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee County Democrats have approved a plan for an all-star baseball game at County Stadium at the close of the major league season. The game would be between a team composed of former Braves and Milwaukee Brewers and a team of local sandlot stars. Johnny Logan, former Braves infielder, was named general chairman of the October event. The idea was presented to the party's executive board Wednesday night by County Chairman Richard J. Steinberg. Steinberg said William Anderson, stadium manager, believed that the game "could draw 25,000 to 30,000 people" because "fans are hungry for baseball."

The game would benefit Democratic party coffers. Steinberg said plans hinge on Logan's ability to recruit the players. Logan said Eddie Mathews told him by telephone that he was willing to appear. Presumably, Mathews would have to get permission from the Braves' management.

Steinberg said Logan hoped to recruit Mathews' teammate, Henry Aaron, former Braves' Felix Mantilla and Andy Pafko, now with the Philadelphia Phillies, and Rick Reichardt of the California Angels, a former University of Wisconsin star.

State Justices to be Heard on Antitrust Suit Rule Wednesday on Braves

By JAMES R. POLK Associated Press Writer
MADISON (AP)—In the gold-arneped, marble hall of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, baseball learns Wednesday whether its antitrust conviction shall stand. It is a decision made a month ago, but kept sealed in secrecy behind the unyielding drapery of courtroom dignity and protocol. The National League and its 16 clubs have asked the court to overturn a Milwaukee court's verdict finding them guilty of violating Wisconsin's antitrust law. The lower court told the league to give Milwaukee an expansion team next year or bring back the Braves. Ignored Deadline The league ignored the deadline for submitting expansion plans to the lower court and the Braves were ordered to return in mid-May. But the order was suspended while the appeal was argued before the seven justices of the Wisconsin Supreme Court. The court heard arguments June 9. On July 1 the justices announced they would interrupt their summer vacation to reveal their ruling Wednesday. Supreme Court sources said the decision in all likelihood already had been made when the Wednesday date was set. But the lengthy opinion had not long been written. So closely guarded has been the secret of the decision that the secretaries of the court say they do not even know which of the seven justices is writing the opinion. At 9 a.m. (CDT) the justices will file into the ornate, marble-walled court chamber and take their seats in the high-backed chairs with the curious wooden carvings including a small, bearded face of a horned devil behind each judge's head. Their oral order will be read. It may be only one sentence: judgment affirmed or reversed. Then, the bulky, written opinion will be taken out of the clerk's office vault in the clerk's office. Both sides think the dispute is likely to go to the U.S. Supreme Court regardless of Wednesday's decision. The National League was contended, Milwaukee will have victed April 13 after a month suffered a crippling setback to its campaign to force baseball, under shotgun escort if necessary, to come back to the only city ever abandoned completely by the sport in modern history. Another antitrust suit is pending in federal court in Milwaukee, but it has been left to gather dust while state officials press for speedier action in Wisconsin courts. Officials think they need the state conviction and court penalties to force baseball to talk compromise. Should that weapon be stripped from Milwaukee this week, County Stadium may remain the nation's only 48,000-seat arena for police and firemen's benefit baseball games.

Whitfield Blasts 2-Run Homer in 7th for Victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fred Whitfield slammed a two-run homer in the seventh inning, bringing Cleveland a 6-5 victory over Detroit and ending the Indians' four-game losing streak. Hank Aguirre, followed Ray Oyler's error on Chuck Hinton's grounder and wiped out Detroit's 5-4 lead.

The Tigers, aided by a throwing error by Larry Brown, jumped off to a four-run lead in the first inning. Norm Cash's double drove in the first run, Mickey Stanley's grounder with the bases loaded scored another, and when Brown threw toward first trying to make it a double play, the ball bounced into the stands. Willie Horton and Cash raced home. Jake Wood's triple in the second after Don Wert walked added another Detroit run. Cleveland starter John O'Donoghue, surviving the rough start, blanked the Tigers over the next four innings while his mates were narrowing the gap. The Indians picked up two runs in the third and added two more in the sixth—one of them when Rocky Colavito led off with his 20th homer.

Community College Idea Again Gets Blast of Heavy Opposition

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Once considered a dead issue, the community college idea is again the target of heavy opposition in Wisconsin in the debate over the future course of vocational-technical education, and public policy affecting the 60 per cent of high school graduates who do not now enroll in colleges or universities.

Rejected four years ago by two leading state educational policy planning groups, the community college plan has again been raised in discussions between the legislature's interim education committee, the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education and the State Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education over the development of a districting plan for the location of new technical institutions throughout the state.

The concept, which holds that two years of liberal arts and technical education can be offered side by side in an institution under the same administration, has drawn stiff resistance from powerful members of the Wisconsin Assembly.

Principle Told

The community college principle, as widely adopted in other states, provides liberal arts to college transfer courses in the same instructional programs with associate degree technical courses. Students unwilling or unable to enter a full four year college or university enter a community college and earn some credits that may later be transferred to a baccalaureate institution, while acquiring a technical education for vocational training.

Supporters maintain that the community college allows a student unsure of future plans to enroll in a vocational training course while taking some liberal arts courses also. If he proves to be a successful liberal arts student and so desires, he may later transfer those credits to a college or university for baccalaureate or basic course requirements.

That advantage allows a student time and experience in considering a college education, while learning a trade which can support him if he chooses not to go on for a four year degree, they maintain.

Perhaps the greatest advantage of such program, supporters say, is that it provides the basic elements of a liberal arts education to that portion of the population that chooses not to pursue a university degree. With the expanding scope of modern technology and the leisure time now available to the American working man, they say, it is as necessary for a computer programmer or an electronics technician to possess a command of English or of American institutions as for a chemistry professor.

Opponents argue that the community college system would add unnecessary expense to the state's higher educational budget, and would create additional liberal arts institutions to a collection of state facilities already among the most generous in the country. The University of Wisconsin campuses, the state universities, and the two year centers of the two systems adequately serve liberal arts education, they maintain.

Heavy Burden

To add community colleges through a technical school system would add a heavy burden to the state educational budget, which already accounts for more than half of Wisconsin's annual expenditures.

Special studies of the legislative council education committee and of the CCHE made essentially this point in independent examinations of the need for community colleges about four years ago.

Administrators of community colleges tend to be biased in favor of either the technical or liberal arts aspects to their schools, some critics maintain, according to individual backgrounds of the officials. This bias tends to produce insufficient consideration of the system with which they are unfamiliar, according to those opposing the institution school system if community of a community college plan education are too important to risk slighting, they continue.

A leading spokesman for this position is Assemblyman David Obey (D-Wausau), who may become co-chairman of the powerful legislative Joint Committee on Finance in the 1967 session if the Democrats maintain their control of the lower house and if the present co-chairman, George Molinaro (D-Kenosha), decides to step down and some of its members are vehemently opposed to the concept. So much so, that we have heard threats to abolish (it) by legislative action, if the idea were pushed any further. These legislators I have in mind are by no means powerless or newcomers in this field."

Renew instead a 1961 plan for the establishment of a two year branch campus of the state university system in Rhinelander and couple with it in the same buildings a completely independent technical institution under the administration of the state vocational system, Wendt said.

That is exactly a plan proposed by Obey to avoid the problems caused by possible lack of interest on the part of vocational administrators in liberal arts programs.

Studies Criteria

Shortly before that Coordinating Committee meeting, Obey had joined with a number of other leading Democrats in signing a letter to both the Coordinating Committee and the state vocational board warning those agencies that the legislature would not be wise, the new community college system be created by means of the technical institute system law. Among those signing the letter was Milwaukee, chairman of the recreational, social and interim education committee.

The letter also noted that Democratic majority leader Frank Nikolay, an avowed state close to a community opponent of the concept, agreed with its message. Nikolay had earlier gained inclusion of a plank opposing the community college plan in the 1966 state Democratic party platform.

Greco chairs the committee which is making an independent study of the criteria being used to establish the technical school system. Recognizing that it has no formal control over the state vocational board and the Coordinating Committee in making those decisions, it intends to maintain a vigil over any possible moves toward such a system.

The Coordinating Committee formally opposes the development of the technical education system into a community college plan. At a recent education committee hearing at which strong opposition was voiced to the community college principle from practically all sides, CCHE executive director Angus Rothwell said that, "These are associate degree programs where a person goes out and gets a job, not one where he goes on to a liberal arts institution."

But the actions of the Coordinating Committee suggest that as a group the body may believe it will win the argument over whether something close to a dual track system might be established in the state.

In March the committee chairman, former Gov. Walter Kohler asked for a study of the possibility of uniting many of the new technical institutes with two year centers of the UW and the state universities.

A week ago, the committee adopted a report prepared by its staff that suggested that while complete unification would not be wise, the new technical institutes should be located as nearly adjacent to existing two year facilities as possible. The two systems should share many facilities, including libraries, laboratories, and other educational facilities.

But a small adjustment of such a system would bring the state close to a community college system.

Much of the recent opposition to the community college plan was triggered by the adoption by the vocational board of criteria for the technical schools prepared by an area development committee of state analysts. The basis for almost all the other criteria for the system was proposed institutional enrollment based on the number of technical students who were expected to be enrolled in 23 general education courses judged to be necessary for an adequate liberal arts background for work in today's society.

Today only two local vocational schools in Wisconsin are allowed to offer liberal arts college transfer courses, but under the wording of the technical institute law, it might be possible to set up a districting map which would create other schools with such a set of technical school criteria on the number of liberal arts courses to be offered in such an institution looked to some suspiciously like an attempt to foster a community college system.

Reconsideration

In reaction to the complaints that followed the area development committee reconsidered the criteria and redrafted the basis for the system on the number and types of associate degree courses. The number of students determined to be necessary to support such a school came within five per cent of the number of students calculated in the original method, so the much debated criteria were not altered significantly.

But a storm was raging by the time the tactical change was made.

After the change was made and the Coordinating Committee policy position had been set, state vocational chairman Philip Lerman repeated his personal support of community colleges.

For the Sportin' Life

Casual Clothes Take on Pretty Airs

BY JEAN OTTO
POST-CRESCENT WOMEN'S EDITOR

NEW YORK — The Sportin' Life has become a way of life for American women. Their busy lives and sports enthusiasms parallel those of their masculine friends — and designers are aware they want to look just as fashionable and feminine at a football game as they do at a formal dance.

Members of the New York Couture Business Council who previewed their fall lines here this month drew as much applause from the nation's fashion press for their casual and sporty offerings as they did for their beaded evening gowns. It's part of the realistic acceptance of the notion that women want to look pretty whether they are sitting around a hearth fire or making a grand country club entrance. Women have come to have a fashion image of themselves that cries for consistency. This season designers complied.

Set the Pace

Originals, the first to preview its fall collection at the show, set the pace. The first number paraded by an Originals model was a pants suit of white gabardine, with a flared coat back belted in blue. From then on it was pea coats with brass buttons, epaulette shoulder treatments, stripe and solid combinations, plaids in wools and worsteds, meltons, tweeds that combined camel and gray, lots of red in shades from bright to brick to hot pink, oranges from squash to pumpkin to apricot, combinations of green and navy, or turquoise and olive.

There were vinyls too, in coats and pants, often with their own matching hats.

Sporting is not all pants. It often means casual little T-shirt dresses, banded at neck, sleeve and hem with knitting or crocheting touches.

Wide wale corduroy was prevalent in sports clothes shown by Lynn Stewart and Mr. Pants at the Harpers Bazaar breakfast at L'Etoile Restaurant.

Fun Accents

Top styling centered around garrison pants and skirts, with jackets teaming with both for two completely different looks. The poncho was a fun accent, especially when styled with four corners and dipping front and back. Pants flared slightly at the bottom, hats and boots were in matching plaids, gray flannel trousers were worn.

The young coat at left, with its low belt that goes not quite all-round, is in camel, with a matching hood for warmth and fun. The design is by Jackie Stuart and the fabric by J. P. Stevens, who entertained the fashion press at a luncheon during press week.

Hats for the swinging set have become something more than a way to keep the head covered and the ears warm. The Millinery Institute of America showed that hats are a part of the total look the young are going for at a brunch at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel during press week. The one at left is by Zimcker, in an arcole knit with smartly tasseled top. At right, by Adolfo II is a hat that's young and fun, in vinyl. It has its own wrap-around glasses.

The pants suit is at its most feminine in finger tip length jacket and wide trouser leg. The one at left by Nat Kaplan is in a Stuart plaid. The shoes are by Golo, with Mary Jane styling and tiny contrasting heel.

Turquoise wool is the basis for the casually designed but very elegant ensemble at left by Junior Sophisticates. A high roll collar and overblouse styling are fashion notes for the jersey top.

The longer jacket is growing in importance this fall. It was interpreted by Hannah Troy in a three part shaped suit of black and white herringbone over a boxed black silk blouse during the presentation of her fall collection in New York.

Hot Arkansas Governor's Primary Has Not Developed as Everyone Expected

By JOHN R. STARR
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — When Gov. Orval Faubus, king of Arkansas politics for 12 years, announced in March that he would not seek a seventh term, you heard it everywhere. There'd be a dozen candidates. It'd be the hottest governor's race we ever had.

That was the word from the political experts—and from people in the street, too.

Well, there are nine candidates—seven Democrats and two Republicans—seeking to replace Faubus in the governor's office.

But there's no real heat in the race in either party as the July 25 primary election date draws near.

Newspapers have complained about the lack of fire in the campaign and rallies are not drawing crowds.

One candidate speaking to about 300 at a tomato harvest festival, observed that the crowd would be cut in half if he saw the imported supporters went home.

Private polls taken by the candidates reportedly show Jim Johnson, 41, of Conway more than 50 per cent of the Democratic vote is uncommitted. He is pledged to help the nominee regardless of who he is in the general election. He has made no public move of support for any primary candidate.

The seven-man Democratic field offers the voter a broad choice of backgrounds but little in the way of issues.

The candidates are Brooks Hays, 67, of Little Rock, a former congressman and advisor to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson; Frank Holt, 55, of Little Rock, a former prosecutor and attorney who left a $20,000 a year post on the Arkansas Supreme Court to run for the $10,000-a-year governorship; Jim Johnson, 41, of Conway, an ardent segregationist and states' rights who, like Holt, as a Democrat in 1954 but who left the State Supreme Court to change parties this year, he ran. He was defeated by Faubus in 1956.

Dale Alford, 58, of Little Rock, an eye doctor who served four years in Congress after harassing Rockefeller who has, for beating Hays in 1958 and who the most part, ignored McMillan unsuccessfully against Faubus in 1962.

Republicans contend that McMillan was put into the race to harass Rockefeller who has, for beating Hays in 1958 and who the most part, ignored McMillan unsuccessfully against Faubus in 1962.

The civil rights issue has been treated sparingly as all candidates have maintained from the start that it should not figure in their attitudes toward Faubus this race.

Johnson, however, reminds white voters of his segregationist stands and frankly admits that he is not campaigning in the Negro community. Hays, whose position of moderation in has led Johnson, Sulcer and the 1957 Little Rock desegregation crisis was a factor in his defeat by Alford, is making the strongest bid for Negro support.

Negroes number about 100,000 among the 687,631 persons qualified to vote in the primary under a new voter registration system which replaced the poll tax last year.

Hays on the left of the political spectrum; Holt in the middle; Rockefeller polled about 44 per cent of the vote in 1964 and he has kept virtually intact the campaign political organization he built time taking Faubus to task for that campaign.

Gemlichkeit at Elkhart Lake

Siebken Resort, A Family Tradition

BY DOROTHY RICHTER

Gemlichkeit best describes Siebken Resort, Elkhart Lake, the same hospitality that pervaded the place when Herman Siebken took over the hotel 50 years ago.

The Victorian hotel with its wide verandas, green lawns dotted with white ornamental benches under tall oaks, the German type food, plus hospitality style and comfort, all this and more, are responsible for 50 years of continuous service to summer vacationers. The catalyst for this sum total is Ollie Siebken Mueller, the owner.

To employees and guests alike, she is "Miss Ollie."

In 1914, Herman Siebken left Germany and came to the United States with his wife and four small children. During two years in Milwaukee he yearned for his old profession, hotel keeping. Answering a newspaper ad, he visited Elkhart Lake and succumbed to the Village, the spring fed lake and the Victorian hotel buildings in their beautiful wooded setting. He bought the property from Owen A. LaBude.

Quiet Elegance

Siebken visualized a resort that catered to the wealthy families of Milwaukee, Chicago and St. Louis — a place that exuded comfort, class without ostentation and simple elegance. With his European training as a guide he set about to realize his dream. There was much to accomplish. The hotel accommodated 16 guests. The main building was built in 1890. Potbelled stoves furnished heat.

First he added two small bathrooms, then a porch, the first of four additions that, today comprise the present dining room. There was a continual program of enlargement. Present accommodations are for between 80 and 100. In 1925, Siebken had central heating installed in the main building.

The resort business built steadily. Siebken took in salesmen in the winter to help defray expenses.

He Took Chances

"Father was the public relations man, mother ran the kitchen. It sometimes appeared that father didn't work because one couldn't see what he did — like bringing in conventions. He was a gambler who had visions. I guess I take after him," says energetic Miss Ollie.

"The resort business has changed," she observes, sitting at the family dining table in the inner dining room where she dines with her daughter, son-in-law, and two young grandchildren, Laurie and Lisa. The phone on a table at elbow rings constantly. A yard man brings a lawn chaise cushion. He wants to know where to have it repaired, another reports that a rewiring job has been completed. "That's my life for the summer months; it takes a winter in the South to recuperate," she said.

"In the early days whole families came, usually by train, to stay from a week to a month. There were trunks full of beautiful clothes. Everyone dressed for dinner and there was a parade of people to meet the 7:45 train each evening — like a boardwalk," said Miss Ollie.

Chauffeur Quarters

Guests who came by automobile were driven by liveried chauffeurs who were quartered nearby.

"There was plenty of excitement in those days. Things were really swinging. Pinepoint, Schwartzes and Ostoffs resorts were in their heyday. Each resort had an orchestra. Many a young hopeful got his start as an entertainer at these resorts. Shelly Berman, Forest Tucker and Ford and Hinds, among them.

Summer Opera

The theatre building on the northeast corner of the block-square property thrilled villagers and summer guests with the voices of great German operatic stars. Opera was followed by summer stock companies. Today, the old theatre has been donated for use to the Harand Camp of Theatre Arts by Miss Ollie.

There was plenty of dancing and gambling. In the plush casino of Schwartz Hotel the devotees of the whirling roulette wheel, and other forms of gambling, gathered nightly.

When Herman Siebken died in 1932, daughter Ollie was well qualified to run the establishment for her mother. She had been trained as kitchen helper, waitress, hostess and bookkeeper. She had done the bookkeeping since she was 14.

Retained Old

After the mother's death in 1941, Miss Ollie bought out the interests of her brother and two sisters. She was faced with an immediate decision. The buildings had become shabby — should she keep the old atmosphere, or modernize. She decided on the old. Her love of antiques dictated the decor.

There was much to be done, new floors to be laid, the kitchen to be modernized according to State regulations and each bedroom must have its own bath. The old wine cellar adjoining the inner dining room was converted to small pine-paneled cocktail bar hung with old brewery signs.

Then came decorating. Miss Ollie is an inveterate collector of antiques. A small six-sided building bordering the front sidewalk that had served as a shop of imported linens, became an antique shop.

Antiques are encountered everywhere. Inside the lobby door, a dough box and brass milk pail and three foot-tall glass candy jars. Behind the registration desk, cabinets filled with antique dishes and glassware brighten the walls. A sampler is dated 1812.

On Display

Two rooms adjoining the lobby display Mrs. Mueller's choice antiques. She is proud of a Biedermeier credenza, four original Hitchcock chairs and several tureens and steins. A gandy welch and a white iron stone tureen are now on display at Wade House.

The kitchen, two dining rooms and cocktail bar are on the ground floor. The inner dining room with six tables is part of the original 1870 structure. The outer dining room is the much enlarged "L" shaped porch. There is seating room for 200. Most eye-catching of all the antiques in these rooms are the 30 Victorian hanging lamps with hand painted shades. They, in addition to electrified wall bracket lamps, provide illumination.

Antiques Prevail

Antiques are everywhere. There is a rack of fancy cups and saucers, another of mustache cups and shaving mugs. There are shelves of colored glassware, a rail holds a collection of pitchers, another has pierced rimmed plates, there are large cookie molds and ornamental iron used ingenuously and there are trivets. On a handmade iron meat rack hangs a collection of copper utensils. A cupboard filled with tea leaf and other ironstone dishes is painted and gaily with Pennsylvania Dutch designs.

Mrs. Max Fernekes, wife of one of Wisconsin's leading artists, spent many days at the resort decorating cupboards, walls, dough trays, dry sinks and rocking chairs. She surprised Miss Ollie with a series of eight murals for the recreation room walls. They lightheartedly tell the story of the Siebken family from the time of crossing the Atlantic Ocean to the present.

It is in the food department that Siebkens really shines. There is home baked rye bread, sauerbraten and schmitzels and there are the many delicious deserts, all home made. Then there are the open-faced sandwiches of ham and cheese on the large slices of rye bread, served in the German bar in the old theatre building. Three German singing groups spend a week each entertaining the guests.

Sound Advice

Everywhere there is evidence of Mrs. Fernekes art work. On the barfront, guest are advised, "According to the gospel of Jeremiah and St. Martini, a slow drink is better than a dry sermon, so let us be full of true Christian Brother's spirit."

In the kitchen, there are 12 workers, two of them who call

Times have changed since chickens arrived live early in the morning and disturbed everyone with their clucking until they were dispatched by the kitchen crew. Getting pans in which to bake the 10 to 12 pound loaves of rye bread that mother baked in a brick oven in the beginning was no problem to her. Today, Miss Ollie must have them specially made.

"But there are compensations, while we can't get the old time home cured hams, our roast beef comes trimmed and the lamb chops are cut to size — 1/2 pound apiece," she said.

Mother didn't need an accountant, but today the complicated tax system and social security deductions make one a necessity.

Miss Ollie speaks of selling out and going into the antique business but the resort business is in her blood. Retirement does not seem imminent.

Sentiment, Excitement Surround Plans For Wedding of President's Daughter

BY FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ladies of the valley are planted, the cook has baked a sample cake and had it approved, the choir is rehearsing. Everything is about ready for Luci Johnson's wedding to Patrick J. Nugent Aug. 6.

It's going to be a wedding of sentiment and history.

You couldn't get more sentimental than President Johnson's 19-year-old, blue-eyed, black-haired daughter, Luci.

And having a President's daughter hold a reception in the White House is something that hasn't happened in 52 years.

Luci said she was getting nervous as the big day loomed closer.

Very Happy

"But," she said, "I'm not just nervous. I'm happy, excited, filled with hopes, dreams, desires — a conglomeration of emotions, including a little bit of apprehension and a great deal of happiness."

Her 23-year-old fiancé was kept busy on active summer duty with his Air National Guard Reserve unit in Savannah, Ga., until shortly before the wedding.

The President was described as "awfully glad to be getting a son at last."

Mrs. Johnson has spent anxious months planning, working on her daughter's trousseau, coping with every detail, including the big decision: no television from the church and limited press coverage of the wedding scene.

Seven months ago — on Christmas Eve — the Johnsons announced from their Texas ranch that Luci, a nursing school freshman, was engaged to a tall, blond, good-looking, little-known young man from Waukegan, Ill.

History Major

Son of investment and insurance counselor, Gerard Nugent, and of Tillie Jocius Nugent, young "Paddy" was newly graduated from college, where he majored in history.

And so, at high noon Saturday, Aug. 6, before 700 friends and relatives, the President, in cutaway coat and striped pants, will escort his daughter down the aisle of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in northeast Washington.

Luci, originally Episcopalian like her mother, converted to Catholicism on her 18th birthday.

It will be a double-ring ceremony. "That's what 90 to 95 per cent of Catholic couples prefer nowadays," a spokesman for the Archdiocese of Washington reported.

Nuptial Mass

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle, 70, who rarely officiates at such occasions, will celebrate the 40-minute nuptial Mass for the President's daughter and her fiancé.

A lifelong friend of the Nugent family, the Rev. John Kuzinkas, 40, assistant pastor of the Church of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary in Chicago, will marry the couple in a 10-minute ceremony.

Heirloom Style

Luci, 5-foot-4, and slumped down "to please Pat" to 110 pounds and a size 7, has picked an elegant, long, white bridal gown. Her mother said it's "the kind you would hand down to your grandchildren."

The 12 bridesmaids, including Luci's 22-year-old sister, Lynda, the maid of honor, will wear gowns of blending pink. The 6-foot-1 bridegroom and his 12 groomsmen will wear formal morning attire.

Young friends and relatives will attend the bride and bridegroom, with two 5-year-olds serving as flower girl and ring bearer.

Nugent's father is to be standin' best man for another son, Marine Lt. Gerard Nugent Jr., on duty in Viet Nam.

A few things the Johnsons and the White House made plain about this historic wedding.

Not State Occasion

—It is a personal and family event, not a state occasion. Though the church could seat 3,500, they asked 700 to attend. They did not invite world figures, diplomats or officials unless they were close friends.

—Everyone invited to the church also was to be a guest at a White House reception afterward in the East Room.

—The church may be immense and spectacular, but Luci and Nugent picked it because they had often worshipped there together. They'll be the first couple ever married in the $21-million national shrine, built with donations from Catholics across the nation. Normally couples are advised to wed in their parish church.

Like any other parents of the bride, the Johnsons are footing the bill for the wedding. A family spokesman said the Johnsons long ago established a special account to handle all the wedding costs from engraving invitations to buying a trousseau. As to how much it's all going to cost, the White House said only, "Weddings come high now."

Heiress to at least half a million dollars herself, Luci announced early they'd live on young Nugent's income, which ranged from $93.50 a month on military service to $5,180 a year in a District of Columbia Education Advisory Commission. But he has improved his salary considerably since joining a new educational consultant firm here.

A Dream House

Luci this week announced she and Nugent plan to go back to school at the University of Texas after their wedding and take up housekeeping in a small, comfortable "dream house" they have rented in a nice neighborhood of Austin, Tex., near friends.

It's a one-story rambler type of old brick with another duplex unit attached. That raised speculation — unconfirmed — that their closest neighbors may be the Secret Service.

Luci says she'll do her own cooking and housekeeping, noting, "I don't think we're going to be in a position to have a maid."

Luci would not disclose the address of her dream house.

Limit Reporters

In planning this wedding,

Turn to Page 6, Col. 4

This is the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception where Luci Johnson and Patrick Nugent will say their marriage promises Aug. 6. President Johnson will walk the 400-foot aisle with his daughter. A combined choir of 100 voices will sing. Although the church will seat 3,500, only 700 have been invited to the ceremony, considered a personal and family event. All those invited to the church have also been invited to a White House reception. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Women Master Self-Defense Techniques

BY LUCY CRAIG
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A certain queasiness of the stomach, which can be attributed only to fear, is often felt on a dark, lonely street or in an unfamiliar place. Few women can say they have never experienced this feeling. Almost always fear can be greatly lessened, if not totally dispelled, by becoming acquainted with some of the basics of self protection.

The art of self-defense no longer is confined to the muscular, athletic person. The "ninety-seven pound weakling" can learn to defend herself as effectively as a hefty 200 pound wrestler.

The indispensable, built in, always handy weapon that many individuals depend on is the art of judo. Developed in Japan by Jigoro Kano, judo has rapidly spread throughout the world.

The Appleton YMCA, realizing the importance of self-defense, has initiated a course in judo for women. From 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday evenings, in an eight-week course, women are learning the basics of the art. The two hours are spent in rigorous and purposeful physical activity.

This summer, despite heat and other summer programs, 22 women have enrolled in the class. Winter classes are usually larger.

"I try to stress the importance of self-defense," says instructor Paul Michaelis, Clintonville. "Whether or not a woman realizes it, she has quite an arsenal in her purse. Fingernail files, combs, hair spray and a pencil all are quite effective in warding off a potential attacker." Fingernails, teeth, knees, elbows and a hearty scream should also be included in the list of available weapons.

Brown Belt Holder

Mr. Michaelis, holder of the brown belt in judo, learned the art in the Air Force. He also instructs the men's classes held Thursday nights.

"A woman has a distinct advantage once she masters the basics of judo. No potential attacker expects to be thrown by his victim. The element of surprise is overwhelming. The secret of judo is turning your opponent's strength against him."

The class begins and ends with the "gi", a ceremonial bow. The instructor and his assistant, Gary Maynard, then demonstrate the "ukemi", the practice of learning the correct way to fall. The students, known as judoka, are individually instructed and corrected when necessary. The shock of their falls is absorbed by the hard slapping of the floor with the arm. Otherwise, such a fall can be quite painful. The follow through with any throw is extremely important.

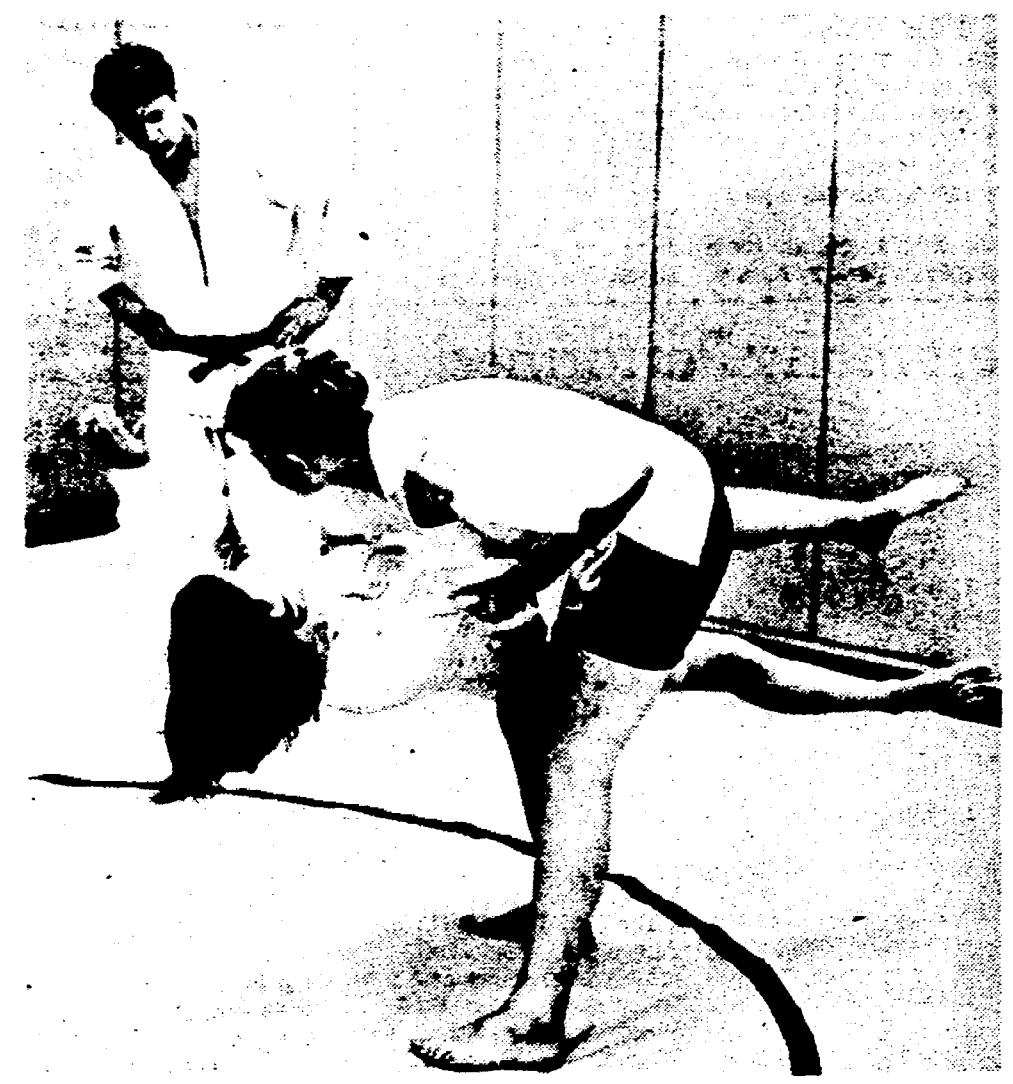

Paul and Gary demonstrate some of the self-defense throws a woman can use. Class members practice throws on one another, with the instructor watching. Two throws deal with defending against the front choke attack and the rear choke attack. In these two throws, the elbows and hands are the primary defense weapons.

The women have various reasons for taking the course. Mrs. Carl Berghult was attracted to judo because it was "novel and interesting." Miss Isabelle Weigel says, "I like to do different things. I think I'm going to study Karate too." Miss Jean Buchanan became interested because her brother was learning it. She added with a smile, "I can practice on him!"

Judo is an art with three important advantages. It is extremely good for the figure, has a relaxing effect on nerves, and is an effective weapon to have ready for that unexpected emergency any woman might face.

Some Economic Indicators Down; Others Show Continuous Growth

By GEORGE TAYLOR

NEW YORK (AP) — Some economic indicators pointed down this past week, but there were other signs business would boom along as usual.

The airline strike, heading into its third week, cast a shadow over some sectors of the economy as President Johnson prodded the negotiators.

Housing starts during June dropped to their lowest level in more than five years — falling to an annual rate of 1,288,000. It was the third straight monthly drop in housing starts which totaled 1,342,700 last year.

On the plus side were a rise in exports record industrial production, a flock of rising earnings reports — many of them records — and two midyear surveys forecasting continued strength in the economy.

Personal Income Personal income in June climbed $3.4 billion to a record $76.4 billion at an annual rate.

But living costs also went up three-tenths of one per cent, rounding out the biggest six months of rising prices in eight years.

The rise brought living costs up 17 per cent the first half of the year.

Within a single Seventh Avenue office building, dozens of women's ready-to-wear manufacturers have their showrooms. Buyers from throughout the country, sometimes in carpeted comfort, others in workroom atmosphere, select clothes for their customers at home. Choosing what will sell is always a gamble, for usually buying is done several months ahead of the selling season. Above, Mr. Fufeld enters the offices of Kimberly Knitwear, Inc. Above right, the salesgirl at Sportempos works from a rack of new designs as she shows the sportswear line. At right—the end of a buyer's day. Things were not really as blurred as the camera indicated, but the feeling is still accurate. Styles begin to melt into each other and it's time to end the day. Coordinating is no more important anywhere in fashion than in casual wear — for when all components of an outfit are obviously meant for each other, the look is one of more than informality. It's the element that has given the sporty look its place of prominence in every designer's line.

Seventh Avenue -- Mecca of America's Garment Industry

Local Buyers Invade Show Rooms Several Times a Year to Bring Fashions Home

BY JEAN OTTO
Post-Crescent Women's Editor

NEW YORK — It's a new look this year — completely different. The fur trims are marvelous.

What's doing with fake furs?

We're getting leopards, leopards and cheetahs. Three-quarter lengths. There are some fur-trimmed suits you should look at. They go $50 to $200. It's a complete outer look.

Suits are more complete too. Dress and jacket, or skirt, sweater and jacket. Beaver is the fur going out first on cloth coats. Then jaguar, mink and beaver.

The conversation is a prelude to a day of "making Seventh Avenue," that center of the women's apparel world, that strip of blocks from 54th Street to 40th with byways a few blocks on either side that delight to women who love clothes and that bustling center of the garment industry.

The streets are like no others in New York. Down the middle men push racks with dancing ropes, only minutes before bulging with manufacturers' new lines being delivered to showrooms. Sidewalks assume the aspect of barricaded jungles, through which one finds his way out of one maze and into another. Cars move at a creep, for they usually must keep pace with pedestrians. Packages are stacked at the curbs, waiting to be hauled inside hundreds of offices. Trucks, bumper to bumper, line the streets, to be emptied and replaced by others.

From all over the U.S. store buyers converge on these few blocks, carrying in their pockets and in their minds pictures of their communities, specific requests by certain customers, an idea of the social life at home and the buying habits of women there. It's their responsibility to meet the needs of the customer, and to nudge her gently along the lines to fashion and good taste.

If they succeed in their task of pre-choosing what their customers will want three or four months hence, their businesses prosper. If not, they lose money. It's a game of skill that takes time to learn, and even then is subject to the hazards of a whimsical buying public.

Most of the small shops and department stores around the country work through the offices of resident buyers, who keep many fingers on the pulse of fashion activity in New York. They know what's selling and where all across the country. They also know the name of every manufacturer and the price of almost every item. Each is an expert in his own small field — be it coats, suits, dresses or sportswear.

Resident buyers are advisors, contact-makers, appointment setters, trend artists and, often, friends.

Seeing Seventh Avenue on one's own would never do it justice. One has to be a part of the activity to know what really goes on. Herman Fusfeld of The Fashion Shop was on a buying trip in New York when the Post-Crescent covered the New York Couture Business Council's Fall Fashion Preview. It was a not to be overlooked entry into the world that lies behind the closed doors of the fashion world, where the work is done, where styles that will be in the stores are chosen, and where people from home work many times a year.

First stop for any buyer in the morning is his "office." At Henry Doneger Associates, Mr. Fusfeld talked with buyers in a number of departments. The women who have charge of the various desks look much like Appleton business girls, though they have a certain fashion consciousness that comes from being part of this Seventh Avenue world.

Ads, Sketches

Bulletin boards are in every office cubicle, some with sketches of new designs going out, others with the rough drafts of ads scheduled for such magazines as "Vogue" and "Harper's Bazaar." Wardrobe closets are half-open, revealing special items buyers want to be able to show shop owners from around the country. One of these is a rabbit fur coat in a pattern of browns and grays. Rabbit is going over big this year, a buyer named Ruth told Mr. Fusfeld. The two talked about the fur's shedding properties and decided that, however popular it might be in the larger cities, it would present problems for a small area merchant.

Buyers share a fashion excitement about this fall. They comment on immediate good reactions to whatever has gone out. In dresses there's been good activity on knits, and stores have bought early, evidenced by the fact that there are already reorderers.

Mr. Fusfeld went from desk to desk in his "office," making plans for whom to see that day and requesting appointments where they were needed. Then, towards 11 a.m., the merry-go-round tour of specific manufacturers began.

A call was scheduled every hour until 4 p.m., and there was no time to waste if appointments were to be kept. First stop was at Sport-Tempos, whose front door is near the back of the old Metropolitan Opera House. In a 20th floor office a salesgirl took charge, showing us to a table in a cubicle formed by a mesh screening, used for hanging the various items. The young woman, whose job is much like that of a saleswoman in a shop, except she sells in quantity and doesn't have to worry about sizes, showed the fall line. She asked questions about the kind of area to be served and the type of customer usually sold. Then she selected those items she thought would be of special interest.

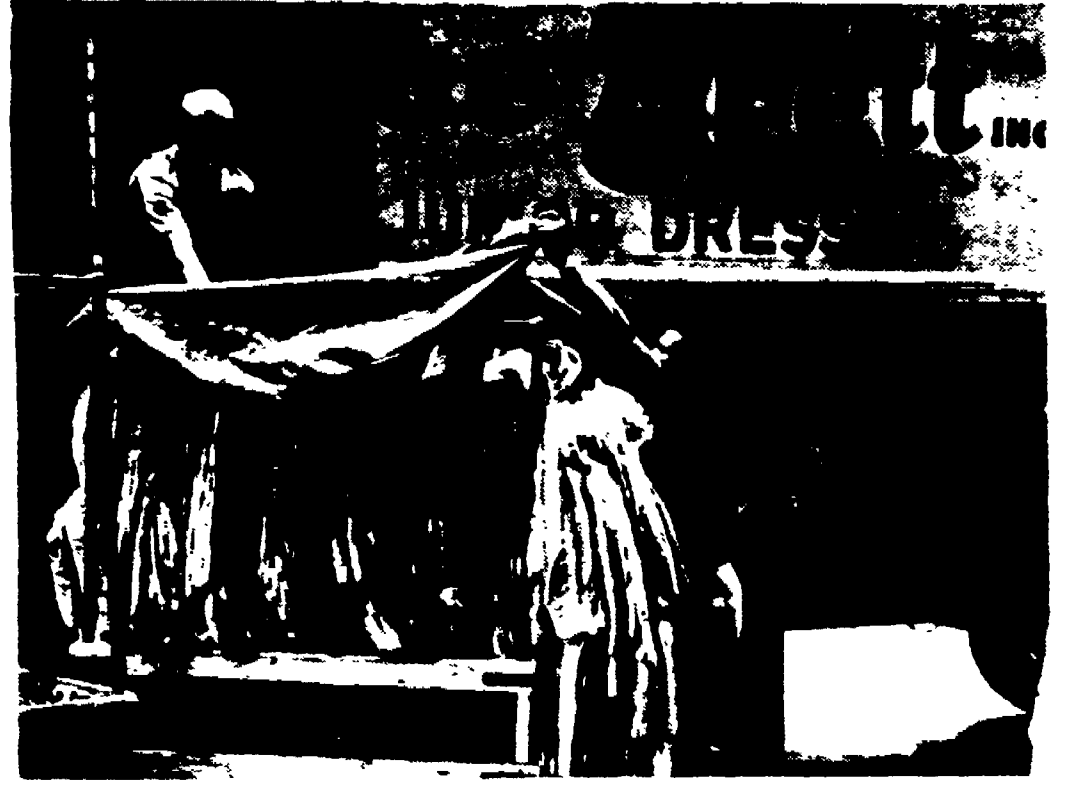

Color Blocks

Top of the list were pants suits, which she said she'd already seen worn in spite of the July heat. Sweaters com-

Roller Carts. Their frames and hanger bars temporarily empty, are pushed along New York's Seventh Avenue at the height of the day's rush. The major firms in the women's garment industry are grouped in this area, from 34th to 40th Streets, and local buyers can go from one to another without moving more than a few floors or few doors. Below, the unloading of trucks is a common sight, with the garments draped to insure their safety on the way to the showroom. At right, Samuel Richmond, president of Sue Brett Inc., makers of junior dresses, gives Herman Fusfeld of The Fashion Shop a personal showing of his new fall line.

White House Readies Wedding

The White House has had to cope with a deluge of requests from news media. But church coverage will be held down to a small pool of reporters.

Parents Pay

The reception will be a gala affair, with music, dancing and dining. The 700 guests will fill the historic formal rooms of the White House, with dancing probably to be featured in the East Room, where the cake-cutting ceremony also will be held.

Press coverage is being limited to a 10-minute view of the receiving line and a glimpse of the cake-cutting, so the Johnsons can feel free to celebrate with old friends and relatives.

To Honeymoon

The "President's Own" scarlet-coated Marine Band will provide some of the music and White House cooks are busy preparing special fare.

Every effort is being made in the White House to help the newlyweds get off on their honeymoon undetected.

There was one report they planned to tour the United States by car. Nugent has a new 1966 car and Luci a flashy, dark green, three-year-old one.

They were also offered use of the Acapulco resort residence of the president of Mexico.

Your Problems

Immediate Professional Help Necessary for "Borrower"

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't trust anyone with this information. If the story got out my husband could go to jail.

For years Ed made up names; has been "borrowing" money from the company he a streak of self-destruction that is all wool and a yard wide. Criminologists tell us some people want to get caught and be punished. They are, of course, ill and need treatment.

Talk to your husband at once. Unless he seeks professional help, the next voice he hears could be that of the district attorney.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As chairman of a telephone committee I have learned more about what goes on in the so-called "better" homes in the city than I would know if I had moved in with the people who live there.

Example: Me. This is Mrs. — Is your mother at home? Daughter, age 15. Mom ain't here. Call back. Bang goes deeper. Right now he owes the receiver. Example: two firm over $600. I am worried sick.

Ed makes a good salary and bonus but it's never enough. He buys unnecessary items like expensive binoculars, a satin smoking jacket and fabulous wall clocks. Our grocery bill has not been paid for six weeks. I'm ashamed to go into the store.

Last year Ed was almost caught but he got the money back in the nick of time. He seemed almost disappointed phone manners in a home speak that he didn't get into trouble. I volumes. I could write a book, can't understand it. Please advise me — Scared Stiff.

Dear S.S.: Your husband desperately needs professional help. Not only is he a compulsive buyer, but he has is inexcusable. The next time the phone rings, listen to yourself — and this means everybody.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was engaged in April. My fiancée's sisters and aunts decided to get together and give me one big shower. It was held last week — on my birthday.

The night before last my fiancée and I had a terrible fight and he hit me. He had hit me once before — three months ago and I swore that if he ever did it again we were through. I broke the engagement and, of course, the news spread like wildfire.

My ex-relatives to be called this morning and asked me to return the shower gifts. I feel that since they were given to me on my birthday they were birthday gifts, too. Am I right?

— Un-engaged

Dear Un: No. If you had not been a prospective bride would these people have given you "birthday gifts"?

Return everything. And congratulations on the bust-up. It was a wise move.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1966)

Split Entry Gives Extra Living Space

One of the many variations of the split level — the split entry provides an opportunity for the architect to use his imagination for an owner who wants something distinctive. Because the split entry is actually a ranch raised part way out of the ground there is more latitude for special exterior designing than is possible in a conventional split level. At the same time, the split entry gives a family more living space than a ranch because what ordinarily would be the basement is raised high enough to make it practical for additional rooms. Also, the garage is included within the structure and so does not require extra land.

Design G-46 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, three bedrooms, two baths, two porches and a two-car garage on the lower level. The upper level has a recreation room, laundry, two bedrooms, a bathroom, and a storage area. Excluding the entire garage area, there are 1,031 square feet of habitable space on this floor. Over all dimensions when inside the side porches are 72 feet by 32 feet 8 inches.

Here we have a split entry with a very contemporary design. But architect Rudolph A. Matern has given it a slightly medieval air with twin front chimneys flanking the double front entry doors. The horizontal lines of the roof, front entry canopy and outdoor living decks all add length to make the exterior very imposing indeed. Thanks to utilization of the lower floor, Design G-46 is ideal for a large family. There are three bedrooms on the upper or main floor, two more below — a addition to a private bath with a layout accomplished with no sacrifice of space from the living, recreation or working bedrooms have a generous amount of closet space. A few steps up from the second bath on this floor has an unusually long vanity.

Floor Plans: Complete indoor-outdoor living is available on the upper floor of this split entry house, with six rooms and two side porches, but the large family can utilize all the extras, including two bedrooms and a recreation room, on the lower level.

outdoor dining as well as plain closets, with direct front and rear outdoor access. Note how the limited use of stone gives the exterior a strikingly handsome look. Not one of the big advantages of a split entry or raised ranch is the windows on the lower level are just as spacious as those upstairs, a prime livability factor. The kitchen has every modern convenience and is large enough to accommodate a breakfast table, which is located at a dining room sector, the kitchen balcony-type rail next to a rear or the bedroom wing without stairway. A rear service door, crossing any other rooms. The located at the stairway's mid-living room is 23 feet 4 inches level, gives easy accessibility to long and has a fireplace and either level from the outside, three attractive front windows. The lower level has two but perhaps its chief charm lies bedrooms with a bath between in the fact that it has an and a large recreation room outdoor deck which stretches along the entire side of the house. This deck, or outdoor porch, adding further to the porch, can be entered through indoor-outdoor living concept of sliding glass doors from the this home. Also on this floor are dining room as well as the utility room, laundry, two-living room and so is handy for car garage, storage rooms and

In the Mid-80 Degree temperatures Saturday afternoon, two Neenah firemen were overcome by smoke inhalation as they fought a blaze at 864 Zemlock Avenue. Roger Tornow, above, was helped by two Neenah policemen as he was administered pure oxygen on the front lawn near the house. The fire destroyed the central portions of the upper floor of the Wayne Fletcher home. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Smoke Fells 2 Firemen at Neenah Blaze

Both Recover After First Aid; Fire Extinguished

NEENAH — Two firemen were overcome by smoke while fighting a Saturday afternoon blaze in a Neenah home.

The fire destroyed the central portions of the top floor of the Wayne Fletcher house at 864 Zemlock Ave., but three members of the family, thanks to a telephone call from a neighbor, escaped injury.

"I have no idea how it started," Mrs. Fletcher said while watching the firemen extinguish the flames. "I was sitting in the living room reading when my next door neighbor called."

Mrs. Fletcher alerted her daughter, Lori, 6, and son, Michael, 8, who was in the basement, and they left the house while the smoke billowed out of the upper level of the story and a half frame house.

Billows of Smoke
The fire department arrived with three rigs after calls by two neighbors. They found smoke pouring out of the vents on both ends of the upper story, but no flames.

When they tried to get at the source of the fire on the upper story, they found an attic door without a knob, and were forced to chop through the roof.

There were few flames until the hole was chopped through the roof. Then a tongue of flames shot up through the hole and forced fireman Roger Tornow off the roof. He walked under his own power, but had to be administered oxygen.

A second fireman, Steven Williams, was working in the thick smoke on the second floor when he became woozy from smoke inhalation. He, too, was stretched out on the front lawn of the home to receive oxygen. Both recovered quickly and went back to work on the fire.

Chief Ferd Disterhaupt said the fire started in a small attic on the upper floor behind a book case. Since there was no wiring in the area where the fire started, he said he believed the probable cause was spontaneous combustion.

Two Menasha Youths Injured as Motorcycle Overturns on Gravel

NEENAH — Two Menasha youths were injured Saturday morning when the motorcycle on which they were riding overturned after hitting gravel, police said.

Injured were John Hovey, Appleton Road, who was driving, and Anthony Slomski, Manitowish St., owner and passenger of the 1966 motorcycle, police said.

The accident occurred at 1:30 a.m. while the pair was riding on Fairwood Drive. They rode to Theda Clark Memorial Hospital where they were treated as outpatients.

Whey Ignites at Foremost Dairy

Appleton firemen were called to Foremost Dairies, 935 E. John St., at 8:46 p.m. Saturday after powdered whey became too dry and ignited by spontaneous combustion.

Fire department officials said the fire was contained in ducts leading into the bins and damage was considered light, however an estimate had not been prepared.

Two pumper trucks and a ladder truck were at the scene for one hour and nine minutes.

Medicare Causing Theda Clark to Plan $5 Million Addition

Expansion Plans Moved Ahead Five Years, Trustees Explain

NEENAH-MENASHA — With present 310, a growth of nearly three times in bed space. Four years ago the capacity was just 189 beds, and $4.6 million addition was made to bring it to the present total.

The striking increase in medical needs at the Neenah-Menasha hospital is demonstrated by the fact that from 1960 to 1965, just fifteen years, the hospital will have increased some five and one-half times in size as measured by bed capacity.

"Cannot be Ignored"
"Theda Clark has grown a lot faster than we expected," G. L. Aldridge, hospital administrator said. "We had hoped until 1975, but facts cannot be ignored and we have to act now," he said.

The six-story addition, now on the drawing board, will provide 110,000 square feet of additional space. Turn to Page 3, Col. 4

Moved Up Five Years
Under a revised set of long run projections it was found to be necessary for operation by 1970, moving the "master growth plan" up by five years. Isometric drawings show in building block style what the hospital will look like by 1965—when there will be more than 800 beds compared to the

Laws Overdue For Traffic From Farms

Traffic Officer Urges Special Caution by Youth

Legislation governing the age of agricultural implement operators is long overdue, according to Traffic Lieut. Lowell Veitch of the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department.

Veitch, commenting on National Farm Safety Week which begins today, explained that while motor vehicle laws require other drivers to be 16 before obtaining a motor vehicle operator's license, there are no restrictions governing agricultural equipment.

"Youths of any age are given the tremendous responsibility of operating these vehicles without their having the benefit of maturity, sufficient knowledge of their vehicle and traffic safety laws," he cautioned.

In view of the existing situation he urged both automobile drivers and farm equipment operators to exercise special caution during the summer harvest season.

Activity Increases
Activity in the rural areas and on state, county and town roads near municipalities increases each year, requiring renewed safety precautions, he said.

Veitch praised agricultural groups such as 4-H and Future Farmers of America for their programs on safety which, he said, tend to help reduce accidents. Further precautions are necessary, however, he stressed.

He urged farm workers to operate vehicles on the shoulders of roads where possible instead of in the regular lane of traffic.

"Acquaint yourselves with the traffic regulations before taking the road," he said.

Man Stricken After Fighting Blaze on Farm

Lloyd Wolf, 72, Of Black Creek Dies Saturday

BLACK CREEK — Lloyd Wolf, 72, died of an apparent heart attack about 2 p.m. Saturday during an attempt to extinguish a fire which he had started in brush near the edge of his farm.

Wolf, route 2, apparently started the fire with hay which had been cut Friday and had been left in the nearby field to dry. When the fire got out of hand, he apparently ran to the barn, a distance of about two blocks, to get pails of water to put the fire out, according to Outagamie County Coroner Bernard Kemps.

After realizing that the effort was futile, Wolf apparently was on his way back to the house to call the Black Creek fire department and collapsed in the barn, Kemps said.

Found on Floor
Mrs. Wolf, noticing that the water pump kept running, went to the barn to investigate and found her husband on the floor. A neighbor was contacted and called the fire department.

According to Fire Chief Edward G. Shaw, about 1,000 gallons of water was used to extinguish the fire.

Police Investigate Break-in at Firm; Desks Ransacked

Appleton police are investigating a break-in at the Schultz Manufacturing Co., 724 Outagamie St., reported Saturday morning.

Entry was discovered by Kenneth Dougherty, who operates a business in a portion of the building.

Investigating police said entry was apparently gained by forcing a door. An apparent attempt was made by breaking the door window and reaching through to the latch. The attempt was apparently unsuccessful, as the latch was out of reach of the average person, police said. Pry marks were found on the door frame.

Desks, filing cabinets and the safe were ransacked, police said. Initial investigation reported nothing missing. Company officials said there was no money left on the premises.

Wisconsin Average at 60 Per Cent

BY BILL KNUTSON Post-Crescent Staff Writer

More than half of all drivers killed in 1965 highway accidents in Outagamie, Winnebago and Calumet counties had been drinking just prior to their deaths.

The rate of drinking driver fatality accidents in the three-county area closely parallels the state ratio.

According to figures compiled by the safety division of the Wisconsin Motor Vehicle Department, 60 per cent of drivers killed on Wisconsin roads had demonstrable volumes of alcohol in the blood.

Local figures were supplied by coroners Bernard H. Kemps, Outagamie County; Art. C. Miller, Winnebago County; and LeRoy Hughes, Calumet County. All three coroners have been working closely with the motor vehicle department in a relatively new program whereby blood of accident victims are sampled for alcohol content.

Obvious Menace
The trio of coroners said the drinking driver, a source of concern for law enforcement agencies throughout the nation, is an obvious menace in their respective counties.

Kemps, whose efforts for getting a centralized alcohol-blood testing program in the state paid off in 1964, said that in 1965, six of nine (66 per cent) of drivers killed in Outagamie County had been drinking just prior to their accidents.

Among this number, three drivers had blood alcohol levels above the .15 per cent rating, which is accepted by Wisconsin courts as evidence of intoxication. The alcohol percentages ranged from .02 to .33.

Outagamie County recorded 27 traffic deaths last year, tying a record set in 1952.

Kemps, former president of the Wisconsin Coroners Association, explained that of the seven drivers killed in the county so far this year, two had been drinking. One had a blood alcohol content of .17 and the other had .30.

In 1964, when Outagamie had 26 traffic deaths, it was established that 58 per cent of the 12

64-Year-Old Man Hurt as Cars Collide On Neenah Street

NEENAH — A 64-year-old man complained of a sore shoulder after the car he was driving was involved in a near head-on collision Saturday night on W. Main Street.

Total damage to the two cars was estimated at more than $1,000.

The accident occurred at 8 p.m. when the car driven by Nicholas Gilbert Jr., 17, 209 N. Park Ave., was traveling east on Main and was struck by a car driven by Donald H. Severson, 224 Stevens St.

After the impact, the Gilbert auto careened into a utility pole on the south side of the street.

Severson was advised to see a physician. Damage to the Gilbert auto was estimated by police at $200 and to the Severson car at more than $1,000.

Red Tape Proves to be Biggest Obstacle for Medicare in Fox Cities

BY TOM GARDNER Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Red tape and paper work are proving to be the major problems associated with administration of Medicare in Fox Cities hospitals. In nursing homes, however, a lack of information is the main obstacle.

The major fear voiced by some hospital spokesmen before the program went into effect on July 1 — shortage of beds and some strain on already harried professional personnel — has not developed.

Administrators say patient loads have not risen significantly, but the increase in clerical and administrative work has been substantial.

Transfer Forms
Though Medicare forms are similar to those for private insurance companies, there are more of them. Extensive refiling and record changing are required to transfer forms for Medicare patients who represent 25 per cent of the total number hospitalized, in the four Fox Cities hospitals. Hospital officials spend many hours coordinating administrative procedures with representatives of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW). Cost agreements, patient eligibility criteria, reimbursement arrangements, and plans for future outpatient and extended care programs consume the most time.

Hospital administrators feel not enough time has passed to judge the effects of Medicare. However, none have encountered serious difficulties so far.

Increased Duties
Glen B. Knutson, personnel and public relations director at St. Elizabeth Hospital, terms the increase in clerical and administrative duties a "situation rather than a problem."

John Shepard, administrator at Appleton Memorial Hospital, said, "clerical work has not been extreme."

Spokesmen for Kaukauna Community and Theda Clark Memorial Hospitals said the increase in paper work may make larger clerical staffs necessary, but no additions have been made to date.

All administrators agree agents for HEW and the Appleton office of the Social Security Administration have been very cooperative and provided them with adequate information.

Lack of Information
Nursing homes, affected primarily by state Medicare, are suffering from a lack of information.

Administrators are seeking to determine what arrangements are being made to cover those expenses previously taken care of by the old age assistance plan. This plan was replaced by state Medicare, but the details have not been interpreted and conveyed.

Charles Barnum, administrator of Family Heritage Nursing Home, Appleton, explained how lack of information can be a real problem. Many nursing homes are adding facilities to

Germany Crux of Dilemma Cold War Problems Unsolved

OSHKOSH — Although the Cold War has ended, none of the major problems of that war has been solved, according to a former Czechoslovakian diplomat.

Benes, who was a guest lecturer at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, last week, is the nephew of the late Eduard Benes, who was the president of the Republic of Czechoslovakia from 1935 to 1938, and again from 1945 until 1948, when the communists took over the country.

Benes, 56, was born in Brandys, a small town just outside Prague, at a time when the nation of Czechoslovakia did not exist. When the Germans took over Czechoslovakia, Benes, along with other government officials, fled to London where a Czechoslovakian government-in-exile was established. After the war, he returned to Czechoslovakia.

Benes was a member of his country's delegation to the first meeting of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. He served as a member of the UN legal department before returning to Czechoslovakia, where he became head of the UN staff of that nation's ministry of foreign affairs.

After leaving the country in 1948, Benes came to the United States, where he joined the department of government at IU in 1951.

Benes views Germany as the "crux of the European problem." The question of German reunification and the eastern German borders along Poland still remain the major problems in Europe and the obstacles to a meaningful East-West detente.

He said it is "difficult to determine how far the changes in East Central Europe will go, since they will be made according to the interests of the ruling communist powers."

Benes does not think Rumania, which has been becoming more independent of the Soviet Union, will combine with Red China to form another bloc in the Communist world.

Mary O'Donnell Finds Beauty Everywhere

60 Drawings, Paintings at Art Center

NEENAH — The word "promising" is so often used to describe youthful artists that it has lost much of its power of affirmation.

But it is a word that perfectly applies, in a strongly positive sense, to the work of Mary O'Donnell, whose show, "M.F.A.", is currently on display at the Bergstrom Art Center, 165 N. Park Ave.

Miss O'Donnell, now a member of the art faculty at Moorhead State College, in Minnesota, produced the paintings, woodcuts and drawings — some 60 pictures in all — in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the Master of Fine Arts degree which she was granted at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in 1965.

A few of the pictures on view in the art center's main gallery were also part of her Master of Arts show, which was hung at the University in 1963.

Because these paintings and drawings were produced in lieu of writing a thesis for the two degrees, they attest to the evolving personal style of an artist whose future direction can only be surmised. But the present reality, as represented by the vigor and unmistakably "painterly" quality of the work, is exciting in itself, quite apart from the promise of greater achievement to come.

Miss O'Donnell works with remarkable facility in a variety of media — oil, mixed media, the woodcut, crayon, ink, asphaltum and wash drawings. To each form she brings imagination, sensitivity and unmistakable personal warmth.

She treats, with equal grace, scenes of action and repose, individual figures and groups. She seems most comfortable with the ordinary subjects of daily life — a gathering at a pier, a girl strumming a guitar, a dance rehearsal, a football game, a horse race.

If anything, her female figures are more persuasively rendered than the male, in several instances, it seemed to this observer, the men are faceless ambiguities, while the women are admirably realized as vital human beings.

Miss O'Donnell finds grace and beauty in many places — at a "Concert on the mall" and a "Spring Concert", and at a bathing beach. Her brush drawings — "Lotta" and "Portrait of a Girl" — are delicious, as is "Portrait in Red," rendered in conte crayon.

A quartet of oils devoted to sulky racing is particularly vivid, in its use of quick, brilliant strokes to represent speed and excitement. One of the oils, "Moon Racer," shows horse-drawn sulkeys in an entirely different context from the other three — fantastic, evocative, almost ethereal.

"Heightened Figure Drawing," a nude on a gray-green background, is a very accomplished work indeed, as is "Heiress," a woodcut.

Mary O'Donnell's paintings will be on display at the Bergstrom through Aug. 21. The art center is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Appleton Teachers Build Kiln

Japanese Raku Ware Fired By WSU-O Art Students

OSHKOSH — Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh art students are recreating a Japanese art form which dates back to the 13th century.

Students in the ceramics class of WSU-O art instructor Paul S. Donhauser are decorating and firing Raku ware in a special Raku kiln built by two graduate students in the class, Don Laedtke and Peter Carlson, both of Appleton. Laedtke is an art instructor at Madison Junior High School and Carlson is an art instructor at Appleton High School.

Tea Ceremonies

The Raku ware originated in conjunction with the oriental tea ceremonies. However, the pottery produced by American potters is distinctively different from that of the orientals in that it has assumed more sculptural forms rather than in conjunction with the traditional tea bowl.

The entire process of decorating and firing the Raku ware takes less than 30 minutes.

The kiln consists of a fire chamber built with insulating and fire brick. The floor and door of the kiln were built on a cast iron wagon so the entire unit could be removed with the red hot pots remaining on the silica-carbide shelf.

To prevent the pots from breaking under the stress of rapidly changing temperatures a clay mixture of fire clay and grog is used. Grog consists of pre-fired clay which has been reduced back to a pulverized state. The glaze is of a low-fire lead silicate type and the decorations are applied with solutions of various metal oxides.

Experimentation with cooling techniques and subjecting the glazed pot to carbon monoxide, produced from smoke created by igniting a combustible material with the red-hot pot and then covering the container, has added to the unlimited possibilities of this medium, Donhauser said.

When the pots are removed from the kiln they are either dropped into a straw-filled container, which is then covered, or they are dropped into water for rapid cooling. The carbon monoxide produces different patterns and tonal effects.

Temperature within the kiln, which is gas-fired, reaches about 1,800 degrees, Donhauser said.

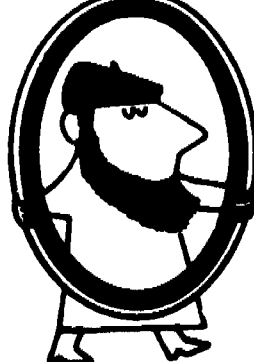

It is believed this is only the second time in the state this type of ceramic work has been done. A demonstration was conducted at Madison four years ago.

Paper Firm's New Name Given Okay

'Combined Paper Mills' Approved By Stockholders

COMBINED LOCKS — Stockholders of Combined Locks Paper Co. voted to adopt a new corporate name, Combined Paper Mills Inc., at the annual meeting of the group June 9, according to an official announcement.

Comprising the corporation is the Locks Mill and the Bare Mill with plants at Combined Locks and Roaring Spring, Penn. Each of the mills will continue to operate under resident management.

Stockholders also voted to adopt a new symbol and slogan indicative of increasing benefits the company is receiving from scientific research and development.

The changes made are expected to enhance the firm's growing reputation as a dynamic force in the promotion of new products and improved manufacturing methods according to company officials. A total of nearly 1,000 people are employed by the corporation.

At Combined Locks, it is the second name change since the original plant was built in 1888.

"Combined News" is the new name for the company's house organ. It had been known as "Lox News" from the time of its inception in 1937. The magazine is published six times annually.

Appleton's Talk of Bridges, Parking Space Is 'Old Hat'

1954 Study Suggested Measures That are Now Being Implemented

By William C. Carey

Talk of new bridges and parking problems on College Avenue is "old hat" in Appleton.

The city, now in the process of implementing a new comprehensive plan prepared in 1965 was told 12 years ago it should.

—Give consideration to the removal of all parking on the avenue through the heart of the business district.

—Build more bridges over the Fox River to improve traffic flow into and out of the central city.

Key To Future

The information, a key to the city's future, is contained in a page from the past — a study with recommendations made in 1954 by state, local and federal agencies.

It was plucked recently from a pile of wastepaper and other discards at city hall.

Looking back over the past decade, the city has managed to keep up with some of the recommendations and is now in the process of attacking the central city problem.

Consultants have recommended, and the common council has approved, reconstruction and redesign of College Avenue with angle parking being replaced by a roomier front-to-back parallel system.

Attractive Landscape

College Avenue would be "dressed up" with landscaping to make it more attractive to shoppers while eliminating traffic congestion.

The 1954 traffic survey and report was prepared by the State Highway Commission, in cooperation with the city, U.S.

Bureau of Public Roads and U.S. Department of Commerce.

"Its purpose was to obtain factual information and pertinent data to be used as the basis for the development of satisfactory plans for street and other civic improvements," according to the authors.

Commenting on College Avenue traffic congestion, the report suggested double the amount of traffic should be anticipated and prepared for. The need was shown for planning one of two parallel streets.

Remove Streets

These streets, the report said, would have to be removed from College Avenue at a practical distance "which will have the capacity required to carry the total volume of traffic."

"It may even become necessary at some future date to give consideration to the removal of all parking on College Avenue through the heart of the business district, in order to provide two more lanes for active travel," the report added.

Needless to say, the mention of taking parking off the avenue sparked near traumatic reactions from downtown merchants.

The report added that while Appleton had enough parking to meet the demand in 1954, this was not enough. It noted as traffic increased, parking needs would increase in direct proportion.

New Parking Areas

"Therefore, it becomes an additional responsibility of city planning to keep abreast of the increase in traffic by constantly providing for the development of new parking areas," the report recommended.

The city has provided the central business district with ramps and ground level facilities. Nearing construction stage is the city's third municipal ramp, a multi-level structure in Soldiers Square which will hold 450 cars.

"Locations for any new large parking areas should be selected to meet the needs and conditions of one-way streets," the 1954 report said. This the city has done.

The Fox River was considered both asset and liability, the latter presented by its southwest to northeast flow; it bisects the community.

Bridge Construction

A major remedial action taken by the city since the 1954 report was construction of the high-level East College Avenue bridge. Prior to then 84 per cent of Appleton's populace lived north of the river. Today the southside is one of the city's flourishing residential and commercial areas.

As a result of the rapid development south of the central business district, priority has been given in the 1965 comprehensive plan for another high level bridge crossing the Fox River in the vicinity of Oneida Street.

In 1954 it was estimated Appleton's traffic would be doubled by 1970. Recent counts indicate the estimate will be a close one. In 1954 vehicles passing over the Memorial Drive bridge totaled about 15,000 daily, and today's traffic count fluctuates well in excess of the 20,000 mark.

One thing is certain — the 1954 report hit the nail on the head with the observation, "Situated as it is, the traffic problems of the city are in reality those of a metropolitan area."

And this is the gospel that planners and others have been constantly preaching as Appleton prepares to embark on a conversion of its downtown, a longtime prosperous retail shopping center which is starting to show its years.

Officials Sound Wolf River, Hear Results by Headphone

Instrument Determines Velocity Of Water at New London Site

By Roger Pitt

NEW LONDON — When officials of the U.S. Geological Survey Department take soundings of the Wolf River here, they literally listen to the results.

A clicking in his headphone set tells Robert McLeod information about the velocity of the water passing beneath the Shawano Street Bridge.

The clicking is caused by a water wheel attached to a torpedo-shaped weight in the water. The current turns the wheel, and with each complete revolution a click is registered.

The number of clicks per minute is used to compute the velocity of the river at that particular point.

Civil Engineer Working

McLeod is a civil engineer working for the department who has been surveying the Wolf. The instrument he uses is a current meter. It is being employed by the department to determine the flow of water in numerous Wisconsin rivers.

McLeod said the inventory of state waters is growing in importance each year as the amount of available water diminishes and the demand from industry and citizens increases.

Study and inventory of state waters is a function which will not end with the completion of any given survey, he feels.

Readings, or soundings, are taken of the Wolf River here every four to six weeks. The readings are taken every five feet across the river to give an accurate measure of the flow of water.

Used for Chart

McLeod said data being gathered will be used in a chart of the flow of water, showing it at any given river stage. A water level gauge station is maintained in New London.

The water level is measured on a tape and contains accurate 24-hour records of the river level.

Data recorded by the USGS is sent to the Chicago regional U.S. Army Corps of Engineer office for use in studies and plans for rivers within Wisconsin.

The study being conducted would be useful in water resource studies, power interests, navigation and conservation studies, McLeod said. "People also are interested in such things as the amount of water flowing downstream, the highest level of the river, the greatest and least amounts of water being discharged and other bits of information," he added.

Greater on Surface

Velocity of the current is greater on the surface than the bottom of the river, but greatest just a little below the surface, according to McLeod.

Various gauges and timers on his instrument allow McLeod to measure river depth and velocity with one instrument.

Deaths Due to Tractors

"In our county alone we have several deaths each year due to tractors tipping over. Our department investigates a dozen cases each summer involving slow-moving farm vehicles, some of them involving injuries."

"The new diamond reflective signs being sold by 4-H and FFA groups are particularly helpful," he said. Vetch also suggested farmers place a red flag above their vehicles as a further warning to approaching drivers.

"Illinois has had a similar law along these lines for some years, and it would be just as applicable in Wisconsin," he said.

Nebraska will require the diamond signs on all slow-moving farm vehicles by Jan. 1, 1967, and 13 other states are reported studying the proposition.

He also wondered aloud whether the Soviet Union is actually opposed to Rumanian economic independence. "It is just possible," Benes mused, "that the Soviet Union supports Rumanian independence as this helps create some division among the other east central European nations. While Rumania wants to become industrialized, other east central European nations, like East Germany, do not want Rumania to become industrialized."

He indicated that as long as there are some divisive factors among East Central European nations, they would not be able to unite against the Soviet Union.

Benes said that while attempts are being made to establish a united Europe, it will be a long time, possibly generations, before the governments of the east central European nations shed any of their totalitarian characteristics.

As for Benes, who has lived through the birth, Nazi invasion, rebirth and communist takeover of Czechoslovakia, he seems to have resigned himself to the fact that he probably will never see his native land again.

Stolen Checks Cashed, Returned

Mrs. Mildred Van Horn, route 2, Shiocton, received three of six blank checks stolen with her purse New Years Eve the hard way — with her bank statement in the amount of $30.90.

Mrs. Van Horn had made a complaint to Appleton city police at the time the purse disappeared and as a precaution stopped payment on all checks at the time. After about a month the account was activated.

The checks made out to "Jerry Van Horn" were cashed at a westside supermarket and were returned to Mrs. Van Horn Friday.

Menominees' Spirit Rock

Dramatized Legend Will Highlight Fair

Special to the Post-Crescent

KESHENA — There is a popular well-known legend in Menominee County that when a certain rock finally crumbles away, the race will die. The legend of Spirit Rock will be dramatized in the Indian Pageant here at dusk Aug. 7 in the scenic, forest-fringed Woodland Bowl.

Officials say this will be the concluding highlight of the Menominee County Fair Aug. 5-7.

The story of Spirit Rock, located about two miles north of here on State 55, will be narrated by Mrs. Peter Martin and Mrs. Lynn Skenadore. Fred Ramsdall is in charge of lighting, sound, and set arrangements.

Fades Into West

As the sun fades into the west, the opening scene shows the Spirit speaking to the Menominees about their earthly affairs and advising ways to keep the tribe together.

As the pageant progresses, the disintegration of the unified Menominees is portrayed, with their history intrinsically related to the rock and its eventual dissolution.

The Spirit Rock Pageant was presented July 3 as the feature of the county's first open house.

The College Avenue skyline has changed for the best and the old street car disappeared from the scene since this picture of 1918 vintage. Angle parking Nomadic. Their culture was a highpoint in artistic achieve- ment of Woodland Indians, and their pottery is the most carefully designed.

The Late Woodland culture, 1,000 A.D. to 1,500 A.D., was composed of tribes which moved from the south during a warm spell and formed the historic tribes of this area.

Bits of chert (a flint-like substance found with limestone) were unearthed among many pieces of decorated pottery. Deer, bear and fish bones, some charred, also were found in the pits dug by the archaeological team.

The artifacts are found by playing dirt from a pit in a tray with a screen bottom, and shaking the dirt away, leaving pebbles, rocks and artifacts. The artifacts then are placed in sacks marked to identify the pit from which they were taken.

Lab work later consists of cleaning, cataloguing and evaluating the individual sites.

'Must Have Set,' Says McLaren

Adjustable Club Not Good Enough to Get Golfer on Lake Shore

OSHKOSH — You might say the gentleman was "teed-off" because he couldn't tee off—but rules are rules and at Lake Shore Municipal Golf Course the rules clearly state "Each player must have a SET of golf clubs."

The magic word here is "SET" and the golfer from West Allis who showed up at the course Wednesday with just one club couldn't understand why his adjustable golf club didn't serve the purpose.

Reportedly, the frustrated duffer, not satisfied with the interpretation of the regulations, took his problem to the Common Council meeting where he hoped to consult with City Manager Angus Crawford on the ruling. Crawford was out of the city (at Fort Polk, La.) after the meeting so could not be reached for comment.

Rules Made Long

However, Jock McLaren, the poor pro-manager who has to put up with such types of stellar sports personalities, told the Post-Crescent this was the first time he had run into the problem of the adjustable club.

"The rules were made long before I came here and they state that one club is not permitted. For instance, if someone saw this gentleman playing with one club he could come the next day and want to play with maybe a 5-iron."

Not only is it against the rules, it's bad for the course and particularly harmful to use the wrong implement on the putting greens.

What constitutes a "set?" The pro-manager agreed that a putter, wood and iron were "barely a set" but would probably be acceptable. However, he reported that the official starter set is made up of five irons and two woods.

"Thing of the Past"

Although adjustable golf clubs have been advertised in magazines and catalogs a check with Oshkosh sporting goods dealers revealed that they are not in stock and probably won't be. As one dealer put it, "They're a thing of the past. There were some out 10 to 15 years ago but they never seemed to catch on."

Through screws, the clubs can be adjusted to particular playing situations, including putting.

McLaren stated that rental clubs were available if the man in point really wanted to play the course. "He was not banned from the course but just advised that he would have to have a set of clubs to play."

McLaren explained, none the worse for wear but obviously weary of the whole subject.

Kroll Nears First in Men's Golf League

OSHKOSH — Darrell Kroll, a Radford Company employee, moved closer to the top spot in the Redeemer Men's golf league by defeating youthful Mike Malone, 4.3 by seven shots.

Kroll boosted his second round point total to 16, only two off the pace set by the Rev. Ray Stry. Kroll has lost twice in 10 contests, while Ray Stry has lost only once.

Tony Herber took over third place with 15 points, one more than Dick Schuff. Schuff was tied for the lead with Rev. Stry one week ago, but lost twice to Dick Moon. Clarence Klitzke and Don Brennenstuhl rank fifth and sixth with 13 and 12 points, while Moon is seventh with 10.

Next in line are Gib Gauger (9), Mike Malone (7) and Lee Smith (6), while Jack Malone, Dave Appel and Jim Novitch are tied with four points.

Kroll led the week's scoring parade with a 35, while Smith posted a net 36. Rev. Stry carded a 37, with Mike Malone at 38.

Los Angeles Tackle, Carollo, Signs Pact

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Rams offensive tackle Joe Carollo signed a 1966 contract Friday, leaving only one veteran left to sign.

Merlin Olsen, a member of the defensive squad, is in training camp, but simply hasn't taken time to sign his contract, according to Elroy Hirsch, assistant to the president of the National Football League club.

Oshkosh Sports Safari

SAIL AWAY, SAIL AWAY — Possession of one of the oldest and most cherished cups of yachting will be on the line Aug. 20 when the Oshkosh Yacht Club holds the annual Felker Trophy Cup races on Lake Winnebago.

The Felker Cup race was instituted in 1865, when the cup was put up by Charles W. Felker, Oshkosh attorney and Commodore of the Yacht Club. Last year's winner of the 12-mile race was Tom Warner of Lake Minnetonka, Minn., who upended defending champion Bill Perrigo of Pewaukee, who finished third. Clyde Buckstaff of Oshkosh came in second.

This year's race will be held the day before the start of the Inland Lakes Yachting Association Regatta, which is expected to draw at least 200 vessels.

Oshkosh joined the ILYA in 1898 and became host for the big triangular meet between France, Spain and Italy, but was not in the international competition.

The listed world record is 1:07.6 held by Cathy Ferguson of Stockton, Calif.

North Fond du Lac Has Some Of State's Best Swimmers

Coach Frank Cerney Star in His Own Right at MacAllister College

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NORTH FOND DU LAC — Some of the best young swimmers and divers in the state are proving that a city does not have to be big in order to compete on a "major league" level.

The swimmers are about 45 — this year, at least — who are under age 17 and like to spend their spare time getting wet and swimming faster than young people from other cities who like to get wet.

The North Fond du Lac swimming team, against some stiff competition, compiled a 10-4 record last year and earned itself special mention by the state Amateur Athletic Union.

Enough Incentive

The coach of the tankers, Frank Cerney Jr., 20, of North Fond du Lac, readily admits that the youngsters have enough incentive to push themselves through the water and use as much grace as possible while diving from a spring board. The incentive is the pushing of Cerney himself, who says he gets "kind of disgusted when I see a lack of enthusiasm" for the coolest summer sport.

Cerney ought to know what the sport is all about. He will return to MacAllister College, St. Paul, this fall for his junior year, where he stars in the freestyle and butterfly events. His college presently is the 3-time defending champion in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics swimming meet.

Being a major in pre-medical studies has been a driving factor in Cerney's work with the young swimmers. Through much scholastic research, he has uncovered a plethora of information regarding the heart rate and blood pressure of several top-flight athletes, with perhaps the two best being divers, Terry Fink and Rick Syms both compete in the 13-and-over class of diving and consistently bring the team many needed points.

No. 1 in State

Terry was No. 1 and Rick No. 2 in this year's state YMCA meet, both therefore qualifying for the national meet. Finances, however, will not let them test their abilities against national competition. And Cerney seems to have quite a bit of depth on his diving squad, with Terry's brother, Rick, and Rick's sister, Nancy, both excelling in the 12-and-under fivesome which has not lost a 200-yard freestyle medley relay match in two years. The boys on this fivesome — with only four entering any given meet — are John and Paul Galles, John Strong, Greg Provo and Joe Braun.

Without listing the remaining 40 members of his team, Cerney added that he regularly gets top performances from Mike Galles, Scott McCallum, Glenda Pomerich, Beth Traut, Mary Thornton and Patty Sonnenberg. And with many other youthful swimmers sitting on the pool edge waiting to get their feet wet in actual races, Cerney doesn't have too much trouble convincing his "starters" that they better keep putting out with their best. They do.

Chrysler Corp. Drops Stock Car Racing

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., which virtually swept the boards in stock car racing this year, is bowing out for 1967.

B. M. Rodger, Chrysler's special car manager, said the change was made to "encourage the return of stock car racing to a more independent status."

Chrysler reportedly poured about $3 million into its stock car racing program in the past year.

Chrysler said its drivers, including Richard Petty, Paul Goldsmith, Norm Nelson, Jim Hurtubise, Sam McQuagg and Dave Pearson, will finish out their 1966 contracts.

Ford withdrew earlier in a dispute over use of its overhead camshaft engine. Ford declined comment Friday on Chrysler's action, saying it will meet and decide next week what to do about 1967.

General Motors Corp., and American Motors Corp., have kept out of factory-sponsored racing, although some of their dealers have entered cars.

Norton and three other Dolphin quarterbacks ran 15 plays each and it was rookie George Wilson Jr., son of the coach, who came through with the best performance.

Wilson completed three of five passes, including one for the day's longest gain of 26 yards to flanker Bo Roberson, and drove his team to four first downs.

Norton connected with only one of nine throws. The knee held up as he was dumped twice and tackled hard once after a seven-yard ground gain.

Picked for the All-America team for 1966 is guard Bill Van Beckum of Green Bay East, while West halfback Dennis Gutzman was selected as one of the top 100 high-schoolers in the country. Search Underway for Director

WSU-O Selected for Nation's First Career Development Center

OSHKOSH — A nationwide search is underway for a pilot program, based on annual director to head the Fox Valley grant renewal at amounts di- Career Development Resource Center to be opened on the $40,000 made available to set up Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh campus this fall.

Dr. Harold Crouse, director of search, he said, it is such that it may prove of interest to the Department of Economic Development and the Department of Labor for further financing weeks.

Financed as a pilot project by a federal grant under the Higher Education Act, the center will serve the entire Fox Valley metropolitan area, Dr. Crouse said. Its ultimate purpose is to aid the people of the Valley to find job opportunities with an improved chance of success and advancement.

Desired Concept
One concept, Dr. Crouse said, he hopes the center will establish, is that the job seeker and the employer has the entire Fox Valley on which to draw rather than a single city within the area.

Dr. Crouse said the center may be the first of its kind in the country designed to implement, rather than duplicate, existing counseling services, employment agencies, and personnel programs.

It will consider existing training facilities, counseling agencies and employment opportunities and encourage Valley employers to study and plan for future developments and the skills their future operations will require.

The center's day-to-day function will be that of research into the practical problems facing the Valley employers and employees in matching skills to jobs and in identifying and predicting the required skills and techniques.

Ad Agencies
Dr. Crouse said the center will provide little in the way of person to person counseling because such services already are available throughout the Valley. Rather, the work will be in aiding the agencies, industries, and disciplines in such programs as initiating occupational testing and the interpretation of results, the techniques of writing job descriptions, and setting up training and re-training programs.

Persons with imagination and inventiveness are needed to head a career resource center that will in time prove its value to the employers, employment agencies, and guidance counselors of the Valley, Dr. Crouse said.

It's potential for basic research, he said, is such that it may prove of interest to the Department of Economic Development and the Department of Labor for further financing weeks.

Meanwhile, the university seeks to recruit a center director with a Ph.D. degree and experience in vocational guidance. In addition, Dr. Crouse said, his qualifications must include an interest in research and an ability to meet and work with the public.

The center will require one full-time assistant and a half-time assistant whose specific assignment will be in job opportunities for women offered in the valley area. The remainder of the time will be devoted to the work of continuing education for women, part of the extended services office of the university.

Dr. Crouse said the three center staffers would be assimilated into the faculty should the pilot project be abandoned.

New York Prospects
He was to interview three prospects in New York City this week and has scheduled interviews with others from Ohio State University and the University of Minnesota.

Also to be named is a center board of advisers. This will consist of a representative from each area vocational school, state employment agency, and cooperating collegiate institution.

In addition, one member representing industry will be named from Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha and Appleton.

In announcing the initial grant, Dr. Crouse listed nine areas of activity for center aid and research.

He said the center will undertake the following tasks: Providing and maintaining a comprehensive vocational and occupational library service; Providing a resource and information disseminating service regarding job opportunities and job requirements in the Fox River Valley from Appleton to Fond du Lac;

Assisting community and educational agencies in the development of and staffing for vocational guidance programs; Developing formal and informal educational programs in vocational guidance for personnel managers, school counselors, and others charged with such responsibilities;

Assisting industries, professional groups, trade associations, and area educational institutions in the identification of vocational education needs;

Serving as liaison between those groups in establishing comprehensive vocational and educational programs designed to meet educational needs and in the development of cooperative conceived area projects;

Assisting organizations in establishing and staffing of in-River Valley from Appleton to Fond du Lac;

Collecting, organizing and disseminating information regarding existing educational programs offered by area institutions;

Inner-Core Negroes Like Fox Valley

BY MALIA PENIKIS

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Put three or four children together and, regardless of the color of their skin, they will soon be playing games together.

This was the premise of members of St. James Methodist Church, under the guidance of their pastor, the Rev. James Vahey, who decided to participate in a project of bringing Negro children from Milwaukee's inner-core to visit with Appleton families.

The six youngsters, three boys and three girls, ranging in ages from 7 to 13, arrived in Appleton last Sunday to spend one week and participate in the family's everyday activities.

Families involved in the project, which also was carried on last summer, are the John Churches, Philipp Grafs, Vaheys, Norman Tebos, Charles Kleins, Thomas Zerbes, and Hugh Hesslers. The Tebos and Hesslers participated last year.

According to the Rev. Mr. Vahey, there are three reasons why he feels the program is a good one and why his congregation is so interested in its success.

"Combat Prejudice"
"For one thing," he said, "the Negro children get an idea of what it's like living outside the core area and at the same time this is a healthy way to introduce interracial experiences to the community and a good way to combat prejudice in our children before it begins."

The six families agree that the neighbors have been more than helpful and friendly and the neighborhood children have welcomed the six into their crowd.

"Our guest goes from one house to another all day long to play with the kids in the neighborhood," one mother remarked.

"If he isn't outside when the other children are, they're constantly knocking at the door asking where he is," another mother added.

Though the idea of the project was to let the youngsters spend a normal week with a normal children aren't all bad so we family, the inner-core children wanted to show our Appleton feel their stay has been any- neighbors the good side and we think we've succeeded," one father said.

In the comparatively short time they've been here, they have gone swimming at High Cliff Park, or one of the city pools, attended a Fox Cities' Foxes game, the county fair and the hectic sidewalk sale friendly.

"After all, we forget that the Negro child's idea of white where the child and my daughter's often is of them," he mother said.

WSU-O, Agencies Seek Grant for Head Start Project

Funds Requested for Program For Pre-School Youngsters

OSHKOSH — Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, in association with Oshkosh public schools and several community social service agencies, Friday submitted a revised application for a federal Project Head Start grant.

Funds, if they are approved, will be used to operate a pre-school program for four and five-year-old children.

John C. Follman, assistant professor in educational psychology, said the program would continue and expand the now four-year-old Infant Welfare Development Center. This program has been operated with Oshkosh Foundation funds at Peace Lutheran Church by the Infant Welfare Auxiliary of the Visiting Nurse Association. It is licensed for 20 pupils.

Expanded Program
Follman said the expanded program is proposed for operation on the campus in university facilities. He said it will serve as a teacher training laboratory at the same time its pupils are assisted to be competitive with other children by the time they enter school.

Staffed by university faculty, the Head Start Center is planned to provide student teacher training experience for WSU-O students interested in the pre-school level of development and in teaching programs for the culturally deprived. It is anticipated, Follman said, that the center will be integrated with the university's growing program to train teachers of the urban and rural disadvantaged groups.

As outlined in the application for a Head Start grant, there would be employment at the center for some parents and other family members of the pupils as teacher aides and in other positions. Some center duties will be open to volunteers from the community.

Advisory Board
A policy advisory board will be named from membership of the participating agencies and parents of children in the program, tying the community closely to administration of the center.

Follman said the program itself is designed to meet the needs of children whose intellectual, social, and physical development has been slowed by inadequate environment.

Pupil eligibility for the center will be determined by criteria established by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) and interpreted by community social agencies.

Plans are for two classes of 12 pupils each in morning and afternoon sessions, for a total of 48 children. The size of the center, Follman said, is based on the experience of the Infant Welfare Development operation.

Meet Needs
The proposed program involves medical, dental, health, nutrition, and family services as well as teaching disciplines in an effort to meet the outstanding needs of the children involved.

Classes will run for 3½ hours a day, four days a week, for 10 months in a year-round program. At least one full meal will be provided daily. The major concern of the teaching program will be language development since "school is basically a language activity," Follman continued. In addition, the program will be concerned with adequate physical health and nutrition, development of social skills required for youngsters in the pre-school situation, and development of a favorable self-concept and the pupil's ability to relate to others in school.

Valley Bands Picked To Entertain Directors

OSHKOSH — Two Fox Valley Clinic. Recent appearances high school bands are among the state's best which Music Clinic and the Tall Corn have been chosen to entertain delegates to the 14th annual Iowa convention of the American School and Band Directors' Association in Milwaukee Aug. 5-8.

Oshkosh and Omro will share the four-day program with the U.S. Air Force Band and the "Singing Sergeants".

The Fox Valley bands have been rehearsing through the summer in preparation for the concerts.

Six bandsmen at Omro, scholarship students at a music clinic at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, have organized home in the two-week period for band practice. Parents promised bandsmen would be available for rehearsals and the concert before Director Gerald Meuli accepted the invitation.

Oshkosh High School Band, directed by James Croft, will play the first concert at 8 p.m. Aug. 5 in the ballroom of the Pfister Hotel, convention headquarters. The band's guests will be the OHS Choir directed by Fred Leist and Jack Jarrett.

Ford Foundation composer-in-residence, Jarrett's unpublished music will be performed from manuscript by the groups.

Funds Asked To Help Start Theatre Project

Committee Seeks Oshkosh Backing In Buying Grand

OSHKOSH — The City of Oshkosh is being asked to provide $65,000 in the 1967 budget to purchase the Grand Theatre so the theatre can be restored to its original condition.

In addition, the council will be asked to provide $1,500 immediately so the Grand Opera House Committee can conduct a full-scale fund drive and meet operating expenses, including renewal of the option to purchase the building.

The requests were made in a letter from the Grand Opera House Committee to each of the Oshkosh councilmen.

Efforts to save the Grand started more than a year ago but have bogged down because of the vast amount of money which would be needed to restore the building to its original opera house condition, in addition to the $65,000 purchase price.

Plans are to restore the building, which was constructed in 1889, to its original condition so it could be used as a tourist attraction and a theatrical museum, in addition to living theater use.

In its letter to the councilmen, the committee said the request for the $65,000 was being made on the basis of information which indicated that private money would be available to restore the building if the purchase price could be met.

In its request for the $1,500, the committee noted the council had granted this amount of money to the Miss Wisconsin Pageant on the basis of the pageant's contribution to the prestige of the city. "The Grand Opera House project would have daily and year-round prestige and business value for Oshkosh," the letter said.

Fond du Lac's New $1 million public library is shown in this architect's drawing. The building, for which base bids totaling $982,699 were let last week, will be on the corner of Sheboygan and Portland streets. The Fond du Lac architectural firm of Stepnoski and Peterson, designer of the building, has made some changes in the entrance, and others inside, since this drawing was made.

World Affairs Lecture Set At WSU-O

Professor, Editor To Present Views to International Order

OSHKOSH — Dr. L. Larry Leonard, Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh professor and editor of the periodical "Current Thought on Peace and War", will present a special lecture on "The Scholar's Quest for International Order" to the university staff and students at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The lecture, to be presented at Clow Social Science Center, in Outagamie, Winnebago and Calumet counties had been drinking just prior to their deaths.

The rate of drinking driver fatality accidents in the three-county area closely parallels the state ratio.

According to figures compiled by the safety division of the Wisconsin Motor Vehicle Department, 60 per cent of drivers killed on Wisconsin roads had demonstrable volumes of alcohol in the blood.

Local figures were supplied by coroners Bernard H. Kemps, Outagamie County; Art C.

Miller, Winnebago County; and LeRoy Hughes, Calumet County. All three coroners have been working closely with the motor vehicle department in a relatively new program whereby blood of accident victims are sampled for alcohol content.

Obvious Menace
The trio of coroners said the drinking driver, a source of concern for law enforcement agencies throughout the nation, is an obvious menace in their respective counties.

Kemps, whose efforts at getting a centralized alcohol-blood testing program in the state paid off in 1964, said that in 1965, six of nine (66 per cent) of drivers killed in Outagamie County had been drinking just prior to their accidents.

Health Services Top County Board Agenda

OSHKOSH — Health services are expected to get top billing at the Winnebago County Board session Tuesday, and if the discussion gets too hot, supervisors also have courthouse air conditioning to talk about.

Three resolutions involving health services will be presented to the board, calling for a total appropriation of $3,800 for operation for the remainder of 1966.

A resolution calling for installation of air conditioning in the courthouse also will be introduced and probably referred to the special alterations and remodeling committee for cost estimates.

Former Resolution
A proposal for air conditioning the courthouse was submitted at the last county board meeting by the Winnebago County Bar Association, but Supv. Eugene Williams, Oshkosh, said he would submit a formal resolution Tuesday.

When the courthouse was built in 1938, ducts for air conditioning were included, but the system never was installed.

The county health committee is recommending hiring an additional public health nurse

Prof. Leon Wraga, extension agronomist from the University of Wisconsin will discuss small grain varieties. There are 12 oat varieties in the plot

The committee would consist of 15 members, appointed by the county board chairman

The welfare board is asking $800 to operate the committee for the remainder of the year.

Appointment of members to the Winnebago County Industrial Development Corp will be announced Tuesday. Formation of the corporation was approved at the June board meeting.

Bike Safety Meeting Set

Winnebago Dealers, Police Concerned Over Many Mishaps

OSHKOSH — A meeting of all motorcycle and motorbike dealers in Winnebago County has been called for Thursday night by Sheriff Marvin Pepler in an attempt to work out a safety program for the bike riders.

Pepler, along with other law enforcement officers in the county, has become concerned over the number of accidents involving motorcycles and motorbikes this year and are seeking, with the cooperation of the dealers, to work out a safety program.

Pepler said the dealers have expressed their desire to cooperate in the program.

Since the first of the year, there have been more than 40 accidents in the county involving motorbikes, almost all of them resulting in personal injury to the riders.

Pepler indicated that few of the enforcement officials have had any direct contact with motorbike riding so the dealers would be the logical persons to advance ideas and safety tips.

Several of the dealers have previously been considering conducting "riding schools" for purchasers of their equipment.

One of the problems faced with the young bike riders is that they do not have to pass any special test before they are allowed to drive a motorbike.

The only requirement is a conventional drivers license.

Germany Crux of Dilemma

Cold War Problems Unsolved

BY DAVE NOWAK

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Although the Cold War has ended, none of the major problems of that war has been solved, according to a former Czechoslovakian diplomat.

Benes

Dr. Vaclav Benes, who now teaches government at Indiana University, left Czechoslovakia two weeks before the communist coup in February, 1948. He has not been back to his native land since, and "won't go there as long as the situation stays the same."

Benes explained that he could not visit Czechoslovakia while there were persons in power who were responsible for "despicable acts" committed during and after the coup.

Benes, who was a guest lecturer at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, last week, is the nephew of the late Eduard Benes, who was the president of the Republic of Czechoslovakia from 1935 to 1938, and again from 1945 until 1948, when the communists took over the country.

Benes, 56, was born in Brandy, a small town just outside Prague, at a time when the nation of Czechoslovakia did not exist.

Prague was the capital of the province of Bohemia, which was a part of Austria-Hungary. It was not until after World War I, in 1918, that Czechoslovakia emerged as an independent republic.

He joined the Czechoslovakian foreign service in 1938, at the time of the Munich pact.

When the Germans took over Czechoslovakia, Benes, along with other government officials, fled to London where a Czechoslovakian government-in-exile was established. After the war, he returned to Czechoslovakia.

Benes was a member of his country's delegation to the first meeting of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. He served as a member of the UN legal department before returning to Czechoslovakia, where he became head of the UN staff of that nation's ministry of foreign affairs.

After leaving the country in 1948, Benes came to the United States, where he joined the department of government at IU in 1951.

Benes views Germany as the "crux of the European problem." The question of German reunification and the eastern German borders along Poland still remain the major problems in Europe and the obstacles to a meaningful East-West detente.

He said it is "difficult to determine how far the changes in East Central Europe will go, since they will be made according to the interests of the ruling communist powers."

Benes does not think Rumania, which has been becoming more independent of the Soviet Union, will combine with Red China to form another bloc in the Communist world.

Rumania is too close to the Soviet Union to align itself with China," he said, "although it will act against Soviet wishes when Rumania's national interest is involved."

Although Rumania has become economically independent of the Soviet Union, the communists continue to maintain

Junior Theatre Readies New Play

BY JUDY RUSSELL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — "If we ever get them all together, I think I'll faint." The person speaking was Mrs. James Alderson, who, with her husband, is directing "110 In The Shade," Oshkosh Junior Theatre's annual summer production.

Mrs. Alderson's reference was to the problems production officials are facing this summer trying to get actors, actresses and chorus members in one place at one time for rehearsals. "I think there's been too much recreation and not enough work," the director emphatically declared. Individual rehearsals have been held and the Aldersons were attempting to mold all the bits and pieces into a suitable unit during the past week.

Activities Delay Rehearsals

Full-scale rehearsals at the Playhouse were delayed by a number of outside activities, including the Lakeshore Kiwanis Club's late June production of "Showboat," the Miss Wisconsin Pageant and Oshkosh High School A Cappella Choir rehearsals. The Aldersons themselves were in the "Showboat" cast. Junior theatre members were singing in the glee club for the Miss Wisconsin Pageant and a number of students working on "110 In The Shade" are A Cappella Choir members.

Performance dates for the 13th annual musical production had to be changed due to a conflict with the choir's scheduled appearance at the American School Band Directors National Convention Aug. 5 at Milwaukee. As a result, "110 In The Shade" will not be presented on two weekends, as originally planned, but will open Aug. 10 for a four-night run.

Area Students

The two-act musical, based on N. Richard Nash's "The Rainmaker," is being produced by Thomas Wolangk, Junior Theatre president, and Miss Rhonda Laabs, Ronald Kostichka of Forestville, a senior at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, is musical director.

Miss Carol Buelow, who plays the part of Snookie in the show, has been named student director. The only cast change has Paul Muetzel taking the role of Jimmy.

Miss Buelow was active in many Oshkosh High School productions, including "My Fair Lady" and "Kismet," in which she played a leading lady. Kim Stoffel, WSU-O student, will portray Bill Starbuck. Costume chairmen Lenore Fox and Maria Kriha have chosen to costume the males in blue jeans and plaid shirts and the females in plain dresses hemmed below the knee.

Al Osmun, an art major at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, designed this year's set. He and Ruth Fraedrichs, also an art major at WSU-O, are directing the painting of the backdrops. Tom Wildman and Dion Fergot had the difficult task of constructing the highly mobile set, necessary to insure a faster change of scenes because changes are made in view of the audience. Most difficult was the construction of a complete wagon and a bandstand with Japanese lights.

Tickets are available at Mueller-Potter Drug Stores, the Oshkosh banks and from Junior Theatre members.

Members Of The Cast rehearse a scene from the play. They are Herb Nolte, Dan Carpenter and Ray LaPoint. The play will open Aug. 10 for four evenings.

Alcoholism Service Survey May Alter Future Fond du Lac County Treatment

Grade School Visit Planned By Officials

FOND DU LAC — Lincoln School's unique elementary summer school program will be viewed first-hand Wednesday morning by federal officials under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act's Title I.

Title I is concerned with better schooling for educationally deprived children and is provided for by the 1965 act through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Lincoln program contains more than 300 grade school pupils who participate in various projects intended to advance the learning process.

Part of the reason for the visit by federal officials, according to Edmund Kwaterski, the school district's director of business services, is that the State Department of Public Instruction "recommends this as one of the unique" such programs in the state.

Only four other schools in the state will be visited by the officials under Title I.

Woman Awarded UCP Scholarship At Fond du Lac

FOND DU LAC — A fourth successive scholarship from United Cerebral Palsy of Winnebago has been awarded to Maryruth Corvies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verne Corvies, 319 Doty St., for study at the University of Wisconsin.

Miss Corvies, 21, is a senior majoring in political science and Spanish. After graduation next spring she plans to work toward a master's degree in social work at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. She is a member of the university political science club, model United Nations Club and Wesley Foundation.

Mrs. Arthur Schnyder, route 2, Omro, treasurer of UCP of Winnebago, said, "We are proud of her industry and desire to learn. In spite of her physical handicap, she has been very successful."

Interviewed Persons, Agencies Ask Alcoholic Referral Center

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

FOND DU LAC — Interest has been high and the response good in a survey of services available and needed for alcoholics in Fond du Lac County. Frank Coogan, director of Alcoholism Services, Madison, reported this week.

Ronald Klimek, anthropology student working for his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, has spent two weeks on the survey. A full report and evaluation of the study will be ready for release by Sept. 1, Klimek said Friday.

"Every person and agency has been cooperative and there is an interest in providing services for the alcoholic," Klimek said. "Opinions on what is to be done vary, but the strongest area of agreement is that an information and referral center should be established in the county."

Ended Friday

Klimek interviewed approximately 25 persons during the survey, including hospital administrators, judges, family court personnel, the county welfare department, the guidance clinic, veterans service, vocational rehabilitation, probation and parole officials, children's board, local law enforcement officers and members of Alcoholics Anonymous.

"Personnel in the public welfare department, guidance clinic, sheriff and police departments were unanimous in their conclusions that disruptive drinking is a factor in a considerable number of the cases which come to their attention," Klimek said.

When the survey was announced early this month, there was a definite interest to look at alcoholism as it affects county citizens. It was centered in the alcoholism subcommittee of the Fond du Lac committee for the handicapped.

Fond du Lac County was chosen for the pilot study by Alcoholism Services, Department of Mental Hygiene, of the Division of Mental Hygiene.

The more than 200 questionnaires mailed to personnel, managers, clergymen and physicians in Fond du Lac County are still coming in, Klimek explained. No conclusions have been drawn from the information being furnished through this channel, he said.

Services to alcoholics in Fond du Lac County at this time include referrals to Alcoholics Anonymous and Alanon (the group which assists families of the alcoholic).

In the city of Fond du Lac, a full-time person works with the court and law enforcement officers, as well as personal physicians to help alcoholics. Treatment is available through the alcoholic's personal physician and in the general hospital or treatment can be given through court commitment to Winnebago State Hospital's alcoholic treatment unit.

When Klimek's report is complete it will be submitted to the Department of Public Welfare and the State Committee for the Handicapped. Its findings may result in the creating of a treatment center and a halfway house for preparing alcoholic patients' for release to society again.

Welfare Caseload Drops in June In Winnebago

OSHKOSH — The Winnebago County Welfare Department caseload declined slightly in June, according to the monthly report issued by Director Norman H. Whitford.

The total number of cases stood at 1,249, compared to 1,255 at the end of May. This total includes 477 child welfare and juvenile court service cases and 772 adults and family cases. Old age assistance is the largest single category, with 441 cases.

Payments during the month were $69,409 for health services and $62,722 for maintenance.

Also, there were 11,483 pounds of food distributed during June under the surplus foods program.

Ecumenical, Lab Sessions At Green Lake

More Than 500 Participating in NCC Conference

GREEN LAKE — While two laboratory schools and training courses for church workers are underway at the American Baptist Assembly here, more than 500 persons are participating this week in an ecumenical evangelism conference, sponsored by the National Council of Churches, Division of Christian Life and Mission.

The conference began Saturday and will continue through this week.

A panel discussion at Morehouse Hall this evening will feature Dr. Colin W. Williams, Australian Theologian and author; Dr. Benjamin Payton, director of the Council's religion and race section, and Dr. Sanford Gottlieb, political action director of the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and one of the planners of a recent White House conference.

Center on Peace

The public panel discussion will center on peace, politics, and the Christian's evangelistic responsibility.

Courses on ministry with adults and children began Saturday with the theme, "Educating for Renewal." The program will focus on development of leadership, motivation and spiritual enrichment.

A laboratory school for ministries with youth is planned to help workers broaden their understanding of the needs of the youth in a teaching-learning experience.

A laboratory school for ministry with children provides a church day camp experience with youngsters from fifth and sixth grades in Berlin and Ripon.

Directors include Miss Lois Blankenship, Dr. Kenneth L. Cober and Miss Evelyn Huber, Division of Christian Education, American Baptist Convention, Valley Forge, Pa.

With 17 dentists for 500,000 people, tuberculosis clinics for treatment of ambulatory patients, and other health services.

A student aid program paid expenses at a refugee college in return for 10 hours of work a week, a project financed half by American government funds and the rest by church groups.

Mrs. Gates' special contribution was organization of "Home for Homeless Girls," a project designed to house teenage girl refugees for a three-year period. It makes school possible and affords counseling and training for hundreds alone in Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong government gave some of the colony's precious scarce land for construction of Sunnyvale Hostel, built with U. S. funds. Work projects include production of such famous Hong Kong fashions as hand knits, smoked items, silk neckties, and crocheted garment. Buyers have included Harrods of London and Lord & Taylor, New York City.

Refuses Directorship

Offered the post of director of the Church World Service with principal concerns of Church headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, Dr. Gates turned it down to return to the U. S. and in Hong Kong. At one time, there were 120,000 ration cards issued for weekly distribution of the food over three-month periods. Backing the project was the refugee operation. "You felt American government and the Church Rural Overseas Program (CROP), an American food producers' organization which is currently reaching into mill."

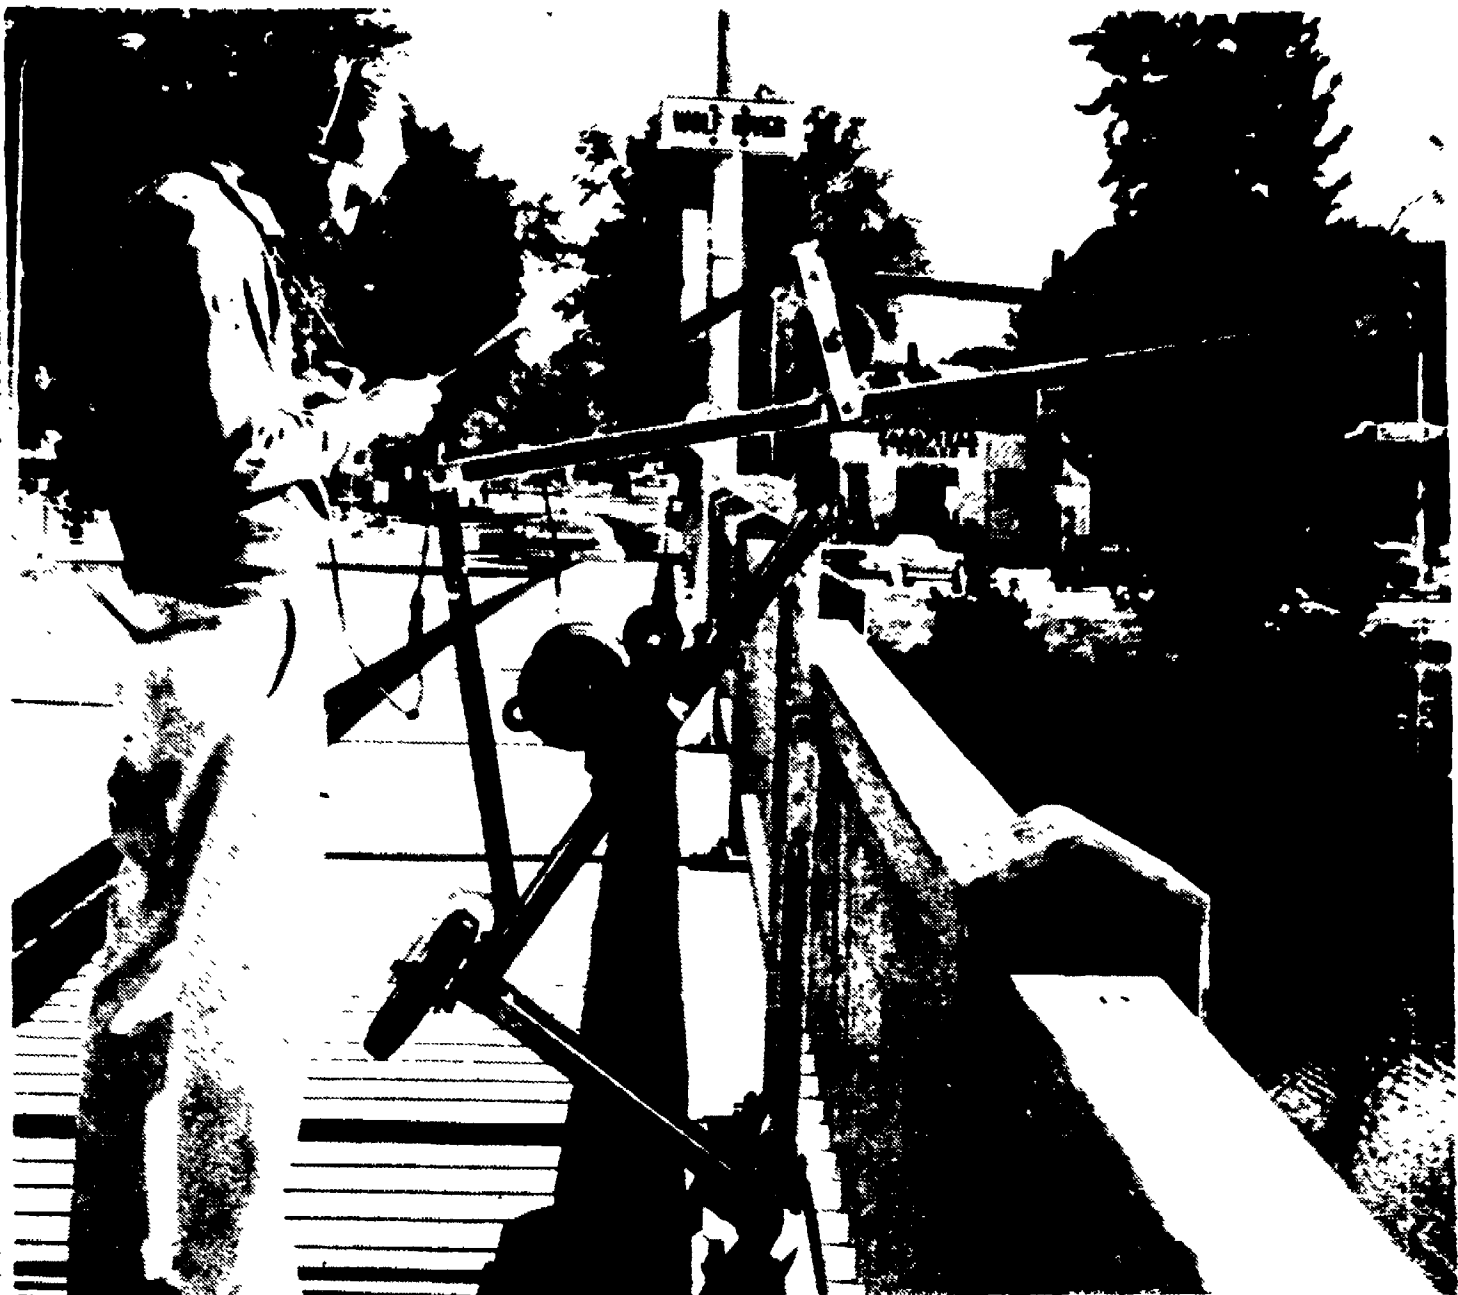

A talk he made at a Baptist From 10 stations, Church Youth Convention in Holyoke, World Service furnished a daily Mass, led to Dr. Gates' appointment in Hong Kong specially nourishing biscuit for some 60,000 refugee children, Dr. Gates said.

Perhaps Church World Service's proudest accomplishment was Children's Meals, Inc., a five-year feeding program which combined American aid to build two central food kitchens. CROP to furnish rice, the Canadian government's tin need pork, and many groups of governments to contribute operating funds and transportation equipment.

"It put an end to child hunger in Hong Kong," Dr. Gates said. "I wish it could be done in other cities and countries. Child hunger is an awful thing to see. When you hear that two-thirds of the world goes to bed hungry, remember that 80 per cent of those people are children because they don't live long enough to become adults."

Mobile Clinic

Ministries of Church World Service in Hong Kong included post mobile dental clinics for an area abroad.

Instrument Determines Velocity Of Water at New London Site

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEW LONDON — When officials of the U.S. Geological Survey Department take soundings of the Wolf River here, they literally listen to the results.

A clicking in his headphone set tells Robert McLeod information about the velocity of the water passing beneath the Shawano Street Bridge.

The clicking is caused by a water wheel attached to a torpedo-shaped weight in the water. The current turns the wheel, and with each complete revolution a click is registered. The number of clicks per minute is used to compute the velocity of the river at that particular point.

Civil Engineer Working

McLeod is a civil engineer working for the department who has been surveying the Wolf River. The instrument he uses is a current meter. It is being employed by the department to determine the flow of water in numerous Wisconsin rivers.

McLeod said the inventory of state waters is growing in importance each year as the amount of available water diminishes and the demand from industry and citizens increases. Study and inventory of state waters is a function which will not end with the completion of any given survey, he feels.

Readings, or soundings, are taken of the Wolf River here every four to six weeks. The readings are taken every five feet across the river to give an accurate measure of the flow of water.

Used for Chart

McLeod said data being gathered will be used in a chart of the flow of water, showing it at today at First Assembly of God any given river stage. A water level gauge station is maintained in New London.

The water level is measured on a tape and contains accurate 24-hour records of the river level.

Data recorded by the USGS is Thursday, with a guest speaker.

North Vietnamese Maul Company of U.S. Marines

Viet Cong Hit Outposts Near Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—North Vietnamese army regulars faded into the jungles near North Viet Nam's border today after mauling a U.S. Marine company in a blazing weekend fight. But the Viet Cong struck on the fringes of Saigon, blasting down a U.S. Air Force F100 jet fighter and attacking a string of government outposts.

Guerrilla groundfire brought down the jet 20 miles outside Saigon but U.S. military officials said the pilot was ejected and was recovered safely. It was the 11th U.S. Air Force plane lost in the South.

Hours earlier, the Viet Cong hit nine South Vietnamese outposts in a crescent south of the capital with machine gun and mortar fire. They also attacked a camp for Communist defectors 26 miles to the south, then withdrew after wounding several former comrades.

The wave of hit-and-run attacks south of Saigon was a Communist response to the large-scale ground and air operations elsewhere in the country by American, Korean and South Vietnamese troops.

In the far north just below the demilitarized zone, U.S. Marines continued to press into the rugged hills and deep jungles where 698 North Vietnamese regulars have been reported killed in an 11-day sweep.

The U.S. command in Saigon said the fighting had tapered off after rear-guard North Vietnamese troops inflicted heavy losses on a company of Marines. The enemy kept up harassing fire during the night but the bulk of the North Vietnamese 324B Division appeared to have fled toward Laos.

An American spokesman in Saigon said the division had been badly chewed up. The harried North Vietnamese regulars caught a rain of bombs this afternoon from high-altitude B52s. The Air Force said the B52 raid from Guam, the third in South Viet Nam today, hit a suspected regimental command post only two miles south of the 17th Parallel.

The nine guerrilla attacks south of Saigon were aimed at small outposts held by lightly armed South Vietnamese militia forces. Starting a few hours after midnight the Viet Cong began harassing posts strung in a crescent about 16 to 25 miles south of the city.

Most of the attacks were limited to mortar fire or machine-gun bursts from the darkness. The Viet Cong attempted to overrun two posts held by 25 or fewer South Vietnamese. In both cases the Viet Cong were

Green Beret's Chief Missing Over Pacific

Brig. Gen. Stilwell Believed Aboard Flight for Honolulu

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Brig. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell Jr., commander of the Army's special warfare center at Ft. Bragg, N.C., was aboard the twin-engine DC3 aircraft missing in flight between San Francisco and Honolulu, his mother said today.

His mother, widow of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell of Pacific war fame, confirmed at her Carmel home that he was on the plane. At the Presidio of San Francisco, it was learned Stilwell had been invited by a long-time personal friend, Hal Grimes, to make the flight. Grimes was piloting the missing plane.

Massive Search
A massive search for the plane is under way about 500 miles west of San Francisco. Mrs. Stilwell said her son went on the flight as copilot. He has a pilot's license and was working to obtain his instrument rating.

She said he and Grimes thought this would be an excellent opportunity to gain experience on the 20-hour plus, 2,400-mile overwater trip to the islands.

General Stilwell is 54. The plane, which left Saturday night, reported at 3:40 a.m. Sunday that one of its two engines had to be feathered. That was the last word from it.

The Coast Guard reported no trace of the old plane, or any wreckage had been sighted.

Search Path
The aircraft carrier Yorktown, three destroyers, three Coast Guard cutters and 20 Coast Guard Navy and Air Force planes searched the flight path the troubled plane would have taken had it succeeded in turning around for return to San Francisco.

Gen. Stilwell, commander of the rugged "Green Beret" troops at the North Carolina post, left Fort Bragg July 20 to make several speeches in the West and then take a three-day leave. He was due back at Ft. Bragg Tuesday.

Harriman, appearing on a locally televised program, "Meeting of the Minds," on WRC, also indicated that Hanoi has shown no willingness to exchange the U.S. airmen in the North for several hundred North Vietnamese prisoners held in the South.

Stilwell, son of Gen. Joseph W. (Vinegar Joe) Stilwell of Burma Road fame in World War II, is commandant of the John F. Kennedy Special Warfare Center at Ft. Bragg, N.C., where Special Forces troops receive training.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he had no timetable for possible floor action on a bill to halt the strike.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said he was drafting legislation that would force arbitration of the airlines dispute.

Guard Withdrawal
The first material step was taken today with the establishment of an employment center to find work for those who had lost their jobs at stores burned and looted during the week of violence.

Chief Wagner is expected to recommend withdrawal soon of National Guard troops. Relative violence

The rioting, which began last Monday night, left 4 dead, nearly 50 injured and heavy property damage.

As the unrest abated, white and Negro leaders got together over the weekend and formed a broader base of understanding in an effort to deal with some of the problems at the root of the violence.

White and Negro leaders looked today for ways to prevent a new outbreak of racial violence in Cleveland chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality, called Cleveland's East Side slums, wrecked with a week of sniping and incendiary fires before order was restored.

Police and National Guardsmen, helped by a heavy rain, maintained the peace for the second straight night, prompting Police Chief Richard R. Wagner to say: "We are not prophesying or predicting but we are hoping the riots are over."

One Hurt at Winneconne

Driverless Hydroplane Flies Into Crowd of Spectators

BY JOHN TORINUS JR.
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WINNECONNE — A runaway hydroplane racing boat, hurtling driverless at 60 miles an hour, leaped a bank of the Wolf River here Sunday and plunged into a throng of spectators.

Harry Kargus, Menasha park director was injured. Thousands of spectators along the river and on the Winneconne Bridge to watch the speedboat races saw the boat flip at the turn near the bridge, and then stood unbelieving as it took off at full speed toward the shore, several hundred yards away.

It was only some 30 feet off the shore before many of the spectators there realized it was coming directly at them.

Charles and Robert Kargus, sons of Harry, were watching the races from in front of their car, and five of Charles' children were with them.

Hit Father

"I threw two of the boys to the side," Charles said. "But it hit my father. Why didn't I grab my father?" he asked nearly in hysterics.

"Are the kids OK?"

Miraculously they were, as were five other persons sitting on the bank whom the boat flew over.

Harry Kargus and the driver of the hydroplane, John Talbot, a native of Oshkosh who now lives in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., were taken to Mercy Hospital, Oshkosh.

Kargus was placed in traction for back injuries, but was reported in satisfactory condition this morning with no broken bones. Talbot was also listed in satisfactory condition.

Span Out

The flat racing boat driven by Talbot "spun out" at the turn just south of the bridge to start the incident.

While in the water, Talbot was struggling to hold onto the grip handle which acts at the throttle to the 20-horsepower engine.

But a second boat rounding the corner, driven by Hank Menzies, crashed into it starting the boat on its grizzly course toward the spectators.

Cable From Ho Chi Minh

U.S. Officials Withhold Comment On 'No Trial' Statement to Network

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department withheld comment today on a cable from North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh to the Columbia Broadcasting System declaring there is "no trial in view" for captured American airmen.

CBS had sent a message Thursday to the North Vietnamese leader asking whether he had decided to place the airmen on trial. Ho's four-word reply, in English, was received Sunday.

The Hanoi government had indicated earlier that the captured pilots would be tried as war criminals. The Pentagon says about 45 Americans are captives in North Viet Nam and contends they should be treated as prisoners of war.

Cautious Hanoi
Roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman again cautioned Hanoi Sunday against going through with threats to try the Americans, but declined to predict what sanctions the United States would invoke if the trials were held.

Harriman, appearing on a locally televised program, "Meeting of the Minds," on WRC, also indicated that Hanoi has shown no willingness to exchange the U.S. airmen in the North for several hundred North Vietnamese prisoners held in the South.

But the ambassador, who heads U.S. efforts in behalf of the American prisoners, said prisoners if it does try the U.S. airmen.

Pucinski displayed a leaflet printed in both English and Vietnamese and signed "South Viet Nam Liberation Army."

"Obviously, you are a prisoner of war. You have no rights and no responsibilities to observe the code of conduct of the U.S. Army," the leaflet said in part.

"The South Viet Nam National Liberation Front is struggling for national independence, having justice and applying a human, lenient policy towards prisoners of war: no killing, no beating, no humiliating prisoners of war."

Official Policy
Pucinski apparently based his conclusion on the official U.S. policy that Hanoi controls and directs the operations of the National Liberation Front, or Viet Cong as it generally is known.

Thus, he said: "There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that Hanoi will commit a monumental violation of its own code for treatment of prisoners of war if it attempts to prosecute or otherwise punish our American soldiers."

South Vietnamese Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky repeated

$126 Million Loss Estimated In 18th Day of Airline Strike

Machinists, Management Still Far Apart After Sunday Session

By VERN HAUGLAND
WASHINGTON (AP) — The five airlines closed down by the machinists' strike estimated today their revenue losses so far total almost $126 million.

They estimated their strike, and furloughed employees have lost almost $29 million in pay since machinists walked off their jobs 18 days ago.

The airlines — Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United — listed the estimates as their representatives and those of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists prepared to resume negotiations.

A one-hour session Sunday produced no progress. Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds reported. He said the union and management were still far apart on all the issues.

Military Flights
Reynolds said a new disagreement involving Northwest Airlines' military and flights did not figure in the talks here.

He said that dispute would be taken up privately by the airline and the union. Northwest said three of its military flights were delayed Saturday night by the refusal of aircraft crews to cross picket lines in spite of an agreement that military flights would continue throughout the strike.

A union spokesman at negotiations here said he had not been informed of the difficulty and the airline had made no request for union help.

Eight Weekend Road Deaths Put Toll at 524

Fatality Total 3 Above Count for Period Last Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Eight weekend deaths and a fatal crash near Wisconsin Rapids today raised the state's traffic toll to 524, three more than had been recorded on this date a year ago.

Oliver Schultz, 48, of rural Wisconsin Rapids, was killed between 5 and 6 a.m. today when an automobile left the road just north of the city limits.

The body of Richard Collins, 23, of West Allis, was found late Sunday night on Highway 24, two miles west of Muskego. His motorcycle was found a short distance away. Authorities were unable to determine how the accident occurred.

Milwaukee Driver
A car-truck collision Sunday in Waushara County on Highway 51 claimed the life of Robert DePew, 60, of Milwaukee, driver of the car.

Jack Abbiehl, 22, of rural Sheldon was killed Sunday when his car overturned beside Highway 194 near Sheldon. He had been discharged from the Army in March after serving in Vietnam.

Paul Schwartz, 25, of Red Wing, Minn., died Saturday while walking along Highway 35 east of Hager City near Red Wing.

Failure a Mystery

UW Scientists Try to Learn Why Orbiting Astronomical Lab Is Silent

MADISON (AP)—Orbiting the earth is a two-ton satellite with 440,000 parts. It does absolutely nothing.

Its silence is a mystery scientists must solve to win a second attempt to look at the stars in the uncluttered space beyond the earth's layer of air.

The University of Wisconsin team of scientists which had a major role in building the first Orbiting Astronomical Observatory (OAO) that failed in April is tinkering with a second model. But the scientists fear a 1967 launch date will be scrubbed.

Old Schedule
"My guess is that the old schedule will not be maintained," said Robert Bless, one of the Wisconsin astronomers. The failure has raised a technological fallout which may help keep a stargazer's feet warm in the winter, and which someday may eliminate the huge and heavy domes that now house ground-based telescopes.

But the knowledge has not been enough to unravel what went wrong 500 miles above the earth.

What is now a multimillion dollar hunk of space junk rocketed off the ground April 8 as a sophisticated package of 10 telescopes designed to measure the intensity of light waves and learn how much starlight is ultraviolet.

Clues to Evolution
The quest might have produced clues to the evolution of the universe. The OAO sputtered and went silent after three days in orbit. Scientists with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) are trying to piece together the garbled messages received in OAO's short life.

Bless said no clear picture has been found. While they wait, the Wisconsin astronomers who designed seven of the original telescopes are working on a second OAO package that probably will have only one telescope — a larger one with a mirror a yard wide. Their labors are mocked by

Israel-Syria Spat To be Aired in U.N.

Both Sides File Complaints on Jordan River Damming, Bombing

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The U.N. Security Council meets today to discuss the Israeli raid on the Syrian project to divert waters of the River Jordan.

Syria and Israel each filed complaints against each other. The Syrian Ambassador George J. Tomeh and Israeli Ambassador Michael S. Comay were to speak first in the council debate.

Comay wrote the council that the raid was meant to show Syria how gravely Israel viewed "continued Syrian violence." He blamed Syria for four land-mine explosions in Israel that had killed two Israelis in the 24 hours before the raid.

Syria had previously accused Syria of being "the source, training ground, principal supplier and main support of a vicious terrorist organization variously known as El-Fatah (Conquest) and El-Asefa (Storm), organized to penetrate into Israeli territory and carry out acts of terrorism and sabotage."

Tomeh in a letter to the council denied that the mines were planted by infiltrators from Syria. He said Syria could not be held responsible for the activities of El-Fatah and El-Asefa. He declared that the Israeli planes had hit mechanical equipment, destroyed bulldozers and killed a woman.

The Syrian ambassador said the planes struck "the area in which an economic development plan of vital importance to Syria and neighboring countries is taking place."

He went on: "Israeli officials have made no secret that they will prevent the execution of this plan by force. The Israeli authorities, actively engaged as they are in usurping the Arab waters of the Jordan river, are determined to prevent any Arab country from proceeding to good use of its waters."

The Arab river-development scheme is a reaction to a similar Israeli scheme. In 1964 Israel started piping Jordan water to the Negev Desert and said it would keep the as-tronomer warm.

Telescopes work well only at air temperatures. On winter nights, astronomers often work in cold atmospheres to accommodate their equipment.

"Computers," Houck, said work on projects for the exploitation of the waters of the River Jordan and its tributaries.

Lynch said, "D. G. Weiford, another member, is city manager of Eau Claire, and municipal sewage plants are major polluters."

Lucey has said Potter's law firm represents a paper company, with the state's paper industry involved in the board's water pollution studies.

Lynch said he would even welcome "the president of the paper mill his law firm represents" as a board member.

Negro Groups Quietly Form To Settle Specific Problems

Independents Act as Carmichael Advises - Join for 'Black Power'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Militant in other words, organizing to civil rights marches and contro- versies are grabbing headlines these days, sometimes in a con- text of violence and trouble. However, there's another side to the picture. An Associated Press reporter who toured half a dozen Northern cities finds there's also a quiet move by Negroes to organize to meet specific social and economic problems.

Carmichael Demand

And that, Carmichael has said, is largely what he means in demanding "black power." At least two dozen self-help groups have sprung up in the past year or so in New York, Philadelphia, Newark, Bal- timore, Detroit and Chicago. "People have got to identify with the problem before they'll do anything about it," said 35-year-old Chester Robinson. He now heads the West Side Organi- zation's efforts to form a wel- fare union on Chicago's West Side.

"The problem of all the or- ganizations is they don't really try to reach the people in the ghetto," he said, sitting in his dimly lit storefront office under a framed picture of President John F. Kennedy. "We eat with them, we sleep with them, we march with them. We don't give an inch when we're right. When the people see the way, they'll follow."

Similar views are expressed by staff members from the Newark Community Union project, an offshoot of an at- tempt Students for a Demo- cratic Society started two years ago to organize the slums of Newark, N.J.

"Each organizer works in his own way," said Corinna Fales, 21, a white girl who lives with two white roommates in a run- down Negro neighborhood. "We held meetings on the block I was organizing and the people decided most of all they wanted a traffic light, so we campaigned for that."

"I think we shook up the older folks," said Charles Colding, one leader of a student boycott for better Negro education in Detroit. "I think students have to be active."

No Predictions

No one is predicting how ef- fective these groups will be. They still are new and small, and rather than do things for Negroes from above as many organizations did in the past, they are trying to involve large numbers of people in fighting for their own causes.

In many instances, however, old-line civil rights organiza- tions are willing to work side- by-side with the new groups. The Southern Christian Lead- ership Conference has loaned staff to help organize Chicago's East Garfield Park and Lawndale Tenant Unions, which start with the premise that a rental agree- ment is a contract with rights guaranteed to both sides.

Local chapters of the NAACP and CORE supported both the student boycott in Detroit with its "freedom school," and the SDS organizers in Newark.

CORE's summer campaign in Baltimore draws participants from groups all over the Negro area. Harlem's block associa- tions and youth groups help plan Negro art and culture festivals designed to show Negroes the power to change their own lives.

The issue here, say leaders of the new groups, is not so much integration but whether a man as gained should have a say in the things which touch his life every day: housing conditions, is own edu- cation and that of his children, welfare policies if he is on re- lief, employment with compa- nies from which he buys food, politics.

Whites are usually welcome if they accept the goals Negroes have set but they are not con- sidered necessary.

When three students led a four-day walkout of 2,300 stu- dents from Detroit's Negro Northern High School in April, the issue was not integration but quality education.

Their list of complaints in- cluded poor and inadequate equipment, plus a group of teachers who, they said, had no interest in teaching them.

Whites also are welcome in Philadelphia's opportunities in- dustrialization center, a series of industrial training centers run by the Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Negro minister.

They work in small numbers in Chicago's East Garfield Park and Lawndale Unions to end slums and in its West Side Or- ganization, which primarily hands together welfare recipi- ents, and in considerably larger numbers in Detroit's West Central Organization, put to- gether in an integrated poor neighborhood.

"We aren't hung up on color," said Mary Richardson, once a member of a Negro North Phil- adelphia gang and now a slum worker with the Episcopal Church. "We broke with our past when they brought us here. Our roots are in America."

There are exceptions. Ex- treme color-consciousness is common in the deprived depths of a Negro slum, and some of the more vocal young adults show considerable interests in the idea that whites can't be trusted where Negro interests are involved.

'Freedom School'

John Churchville, 23, an ex- music student at Temple Uni- versity, runs a "freedom school" in North Philadelphia's riot area open only to people "of Afro-American descent."

"The main thing is identity," Churchville said as he displayed a hand-written workbook for teaching 3-year-olds to read and write. The workbook contained a series of sentences copied over and over by the preschool youngsters: "I am black and beautiful. I am the greatest. I deserve the best. I want black power."

Churchville claims to have taught about eight preschoolers last year and expects about 15 more this year.

He concedes this isn't exactly a groundswell toward the school, located in a storefront in the heart of North Philadel- phia's Negro district of some 300,000.

Many observers feel that only a minority will remain "hung up on color." In at least one city, Chicago, leaders say they caught a glimpse of the future when the old-line organizations and most of the new ones united behind Dr. Martin Luther King.

"There was great trauma," said Chicago Urban League director Edwin Berry, de- scribing the birth of the coali- tion. "We had growing pains and midwives, sedatives and tranquilizers. But I think all of the new groups, is not so much integration but whether a man as gained should have a say in the things been spotty, partly because many are less than a year old. All have one technique in com- mon. They aim at immediate objectives, trying to give slum dwellers a voice in rental agree- ments, welfare policies and oth- er things they live with every day.

"A poor Negro doesn't think in terms of the future," said Livingston Wingate, director of Harlem's antipoverty program. "If a woman is hungry she wants bread, not power."

Applying this personalized technique to his poverty pro- gram brought Wingate the re- markable turnout of nearly 40 per cent in a neighborhood po- verty board election recently, a figure nearly 12 times the na- tional average.

His teams of paired workers criss-crossed the neighborhood learning about each eligible vot- er's problems, and trying to ex- plain how he could be helped directly if he turned out to vote.

A similar approach on Chic- ago's Negro and Puerto Rican West Side, where Dr. King's campaign to end slums is head- quartered, has brought a strange shadow-boxing match with an often-yielding city ad- ministration.

"We came in and we asked everybody we could find what was bothering them," said the Rev. James Bevel, a slim Southern Negro whose shaved head and skull cap make him instantly recognizable as one of King's top organizers.

End Slums

"The consensus was end slums. So that's what we based our campaign on."

"I think that King's coming has had a much greater effect on the white power structure

State Commission Studying Rowdy Motorcycle Gangs

MADISON (AP) — The chair- man of the Governor's Commis- sion on Law Enforcement and Crime has ordered a study into methods of helping municipali- ties control rowdy motorcycle gangs. Bruce F. Beaufort, state su- preme court justice and chair- man of the commission, ordered the study Friday after Gov. Warren P. Knowles said special help will be available to com- munities having trouble with cyclist groups. "Various local law enforce- ment units have been experi- encing difficulty in handling cer- tain lawless motorcycle gangs as they travel throughout the less urban areas of the state," the governor said in a letter to Beaufort. Knowles said deputized mem- bers of the Wisconsin National Guard, State Highway Patrol, Civil Defense units and conser- vation wardens have been alert- ed to help communities when needed.

The Political Muddle in Viet Nam

The intricacies of the political systems in Viet Nam are difficult for Americans to understand. Some behind-the-scenes activities in the efforts at pacification have now come to light to demonstrate further the ravette of our government in trying to insist that free elections can be held and that the results will be a democratic and representative government like our own.

An important part of the pacification program is the political action team, a group of armed propagandists who go to the villages to combat the efforts to win converts to the Viet Cong. Our Central Intelligence Agency was active in creating such teams so that by the end of 1965 there were about 19,000 trained personnel for them.

But one of the leaders among the teams was a Major Le Xuan Mai, a member of a political party called Dai Viet or Greater Viet Nam. The particular sect to which Major Mai belonged favored reunification of all of Viet Nam under neither Communist nor present South Vietnamese leadership. Obviously such a point of view could not be tolerated by Premier Ky and his assistants.

Before the Minister of Revolutionary Development found out about Major Mai, however, thousands of Vietnamese Political Action Teams had been indoctrinated in Mai's philosophy which was to give lip service to the present government but to await the right moment to replace it. Mai even conceived an emblem for the teams which cleverly included symbols of the Dai Viet party.

Major Mai was replaced although for a while it appeared that his supporters might openly revolt against the Saigon government orders. Reportedly the CIA wanted to retain Mai in a subordinate position but this was not acceptable to Saigon. Now the South Vietnamese government has taken far greater authority over the pacification program.

There are ramifications to this incident that are disturbing. Not only is the Saigon government in opposition to the Viet Cong and the Communist North Vietnamese. It must crush other political opposition to the way it is running the country. Apparently this also includes any suggestions about negotiations or compromise. So while President Johnson can grandly say that the United States will talk peace any time that Hanoi will, Saigon is saying no such thing. Instead its leaders are making statements about invasion of North Viet Nam, with United States troops in all probability.

In a country as widely split politically as in Viet Nam and with so little history of nationalism or a central government, different tactics are certainly needed to build for the future than in the United States. But this very fact makes all the more ridiculous the repeated statements from Washington about bringing democracy to Viet Nam. Premier Ky has no such illusions.

Secret Aeronautics Meetings

At some cost to the public in time and materials, Atty. Gen. Bronson La Follette and Thomas Jordan, director for the State Aeronautics Commission, have exchanged another batch of press releases and letters on the commission's meeting habits and the Wisconsin anti-secrecy law. It would seem that Mr. Jordan and the commission should settle the matter once and for all in favor of public announcements of the time and place of all sessions.

The latest dispute arose from a gathering of the commission the night before its July 12 session in Madison. The gathering was at a downtown hotel, and in a press release covering a two-page letter to the attorney general Jordan explained that "the alleged secret meeting was an information session of the commission and its staff" which, in effect, was open to any interested citizens who found out about it.

In his letter, Jordan said the commission, in accordance with its traditional practice, assembled at the site of the meeting (Madison) the night before the meeting. Jordan noted that copies of two commission memorandums were sent to the Department of Administration, the Department of Resource Development, and the attorney general's office "as being those who had an interest in the activities of the Commission" the evening preceding the regular meeting.

"It should be appreciated that aeronautics is a highly technical subject and that the development of a statewide system of airports is a very complex assignment. It is surely within the keeping of the responsibilities of the commissioners and staff that all reasonable steps be taken to secure knowledge relating to their responsibilities compatible with the conduct of government affairs and the transaction of government business. It certainly was not the intention of the statute on secret meetings to obstruct the flow of essential information between a commission and its staff," wrote Jordan with a fine choice of governmental language.

The public doubt over the Madison gathering and similar ones, which have resulted in trouble for the commission before, is that the commission and its staff are rehearsing the public meeting which is to take place the next day. It is noteworthy that the list of those who were notified of the gathering did not include a notice to the public, which is what the anti-secrecy law is all about.

If the commission wants to continue its "traditional practice" of getting together the night before sessions, there will be no objection as long as the public is notified. It may even be that the commission's business is so "highly technical" and so "very complex" that very few citizens will care very much. But it is difficult to accept the explanation that the pre-public meeting gatherings do not touch on the formal decisions to be made the next day, and those who have an interest should be made welcome to come and listen.

The World Court Sidesteps an Issue

The decision of the International Court of Justice that Liberia and Ethiopia do not have a sufficient interest to push a suit against the Republic of South Africa over its apartheid policies in Southwest Africa was a procedural one which indicated that the Court did not intend to start making political decisions. The United States Supreme Court at various times in its history has done much the same thing.

The case, which started six years ago, involved South Africa's refusal to accept any United Nations authority as far as Southwest Africa was concerned. South Africa was given mandate authority over the territory by the League of Nations in 1920 and naturally has carried out its own apartheid policies there. After the demise of the League and the subsequent organization of the United Nations, South Africa insisted that its mandate still existed.

Ethiopia and Liberia, representing most of black Africa, brought the suit in November, 1960. The World Court agreed, in a split decision, that the two countries had enough standing to bring the suit. But since that time, there have been some changes made in membership of the World Court. Its decision last Monday was that the two countries did not have enough standing to make the suit stand. It specifically stated that it was "necessary not to confuse the moral ideal with the legal rules." The duty of the World Court is to apply the law as it finds it, not to make it.

This has been the point of view of many critics of United States Supreme Court decisions, especially the precedent shattering one involving racial segregation in the public schools. It also to a great extent was the argument used by the late Justice Felix Frankfurter in insisting that massive changes in society should not be made by the courts. The most telling part of this argument is that people will not accept such changes unless they come gradually and with their consent. To some extent this is being borne out by the problems surrounding integration and racial cooperation.

It is not yet clear what will be the practical result of the World Court decision. Had the finding gone the other way — and it was necessary for the President of the Court, Sir Percy Spender, to vote to break a seven to seven tie — the United Nations would have had more official authority to put its own trusteeship over Southwest Africa but it might even have encountered military opposition from South Africa.

Now there is the obvious possibility of revolt in Southwest Africa, aided to some extent at least by black African nations. But in the practical sense, few of those nations have the money to finance any sort of a war.

It should be noted that the World Court decision was a procedural one and only that the two nations that brought suit did not have a case. It in no way overturned the 1950 advisory opinion of the Court that the United Nations had supervisory authority over Southwest Africa and the Republic of South Africa was obliged to report to the U.N. about its rule in Southwest Africa. At present this is clearly an authority that is impossible to uphold just as are most of those of the United Nations.

Recalling Chinese History Vital In Considering Vietnamese War

If the Viet Nam problem is a political albatross around President Johnson's neck it's going to be there a mighty long time. Thinking of Hanoi peace feelers in terms of November elections is a pebble that doesn't fill the chasm.

The classic Chinese view of Western leadership? The Dowager Empress Tsu-shi once said of Britain's Queen Victoria: "Who is this upstart? My ancestors were drinking from porcelain teacups when hers were still swinging by their tails in trees."

We Westerners look with awe on Hadrian's Wall, which the Romans built some 18 centuries ago across Britain — six feet high, eight feet thick, stretching 73 miles from the North Sea to the Solway Firth.

MILLION CHINESE DIED

Two thousand years ago every third man in China was conscripted to build its wall — averaging 25 feet high, 15 to 30 feet thick, 1,500 miles long. The Romans used rough stone. The Chinese used polished brick and granite, and they put a watchtower every 300 yards.

A million Chinese died in this 10-year undertaking and are buried in the Great Wall. Their spirits guarded it.

Then it was the Chinese themselves who crossed out of their Great Wall. They even probed as far as the outposts of the Roman Empire.

I've always admired and liked the Chinese. Most of those I've known — especially in their villages, uncorrupted — have something really fine about them. But at the national level the Communists did not create a new, aggressive idea in China: they merely organized and harnessed an old one.

Asia is like a great human hand with 12 fingers. China is the body of the hand. Korea, Malaya, the Viet Nam areas, the Indian Peninsula, the Indonesian archipelago, etc., are the fingers. And the weight of the body of the hand presses on the whole.

Between 1840 and 1940 one European nation after another, along with Japan, encroached on that weight. But China has been colonizing for 2,500 years—intermarrying with others and making them Chinese.

Mao Tse-tung did not win China by Leninist slogans. He won it by shouting: "China for the Chinese. Throw out the foreigners." Had our ally, President Chiang Kai-shek, been free (and willing) to use that appeal he would still be China's leader today, not Mao. It is Chiang who is paying the penalty for loyalty to the United States, the nation that saved his country from the Japanese.

If fact, Chiang warned his fellow-countrymen: "The Japanese? They are only a skin disease here. But communism, that is a mortal disease of the heart."

MILITARY SUCCESSES

Within only four years after seizing power the Red leadership, within a single year, fought the great United States to a stalemate in Korea and won a second war in Indo-China against the French. Thus emboldened, Red China occupied Tibet, despoiled Laos and invaded India.

As one example of the effect on populations, when new waves of Red Chinese terror and aggression swept their country, more than 50,000 Tibetans fled to northern India. Donations from the American people under the leadership of Lowell Thomas and a relief organization he formed are today these refugees' chief succor.

The long built-up toward peace talks with Peking and Hanoi tends to put the problem in a false projection. When they talk with us they will talk like Suleman the Magnificent addressing an earthworm. The effect is bound to madden, not satisfy, the American people. There can be no neat ending in Viet Nam. And surely the problem will extend through President Johnson's full term of office — and probably through his next term, too, if he wins again in 1968.

News Conference Has Been Abused by Some Into Publicity Tool

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The degeneration of the news conference technique of public communication among the contemporary generation of major office candidates is one of the curious sidelights of present day politics.

The news conference in public affairs is a peculiarly American contribution to democratic politics, and more particularly, an offshoot of the evolution of the American press in this century.

Wyngaard

In its original purpose and method, the news conference was a mutual convenience and advantage to the public official or the political leader and the agencies of news dissemination. The public man had something to say. The news service and newspapers were in the business of presenting news to the ultimate consumer — who is the voter. Implicit in the arrangement was the idea that the public man submitted himself to free interrogation. In turn, the representatives of the press, as voluntary agents of the people, would have the opportunity to obtain amplification, explanation and meaning according to their own professional judgment and their familiarity with the issues of the day and the background of the subject and his record.

BUT NOW

Implicit in the method also was the idea that news conferences to which the general press is invited are necessarily limited to persons and issues of considerable consequences, and that such conferences are conducted infrequently. The average reporter on a public affairs beat does not have the resources to attend such affairs called by minor functionaries, or splinter candidates, or those men who are more concerned about their egos than about serious communication with the electorate.

Yet it appears that there are comparatively few politicians now operating on the Wisconsin stage who understand such considerations or are willing to accommodate themselves to such reasonable conditions.

A few days ago this correspondent received an indignant telephone call from a candidate for nomination for state office who demanded to know why I hadn't attended his "news conference" held that day. Evidently there were others who ignored his summons, with some hurt to his self-esteem. The reason was that the man had confounded the news conference with the stump speech and regards professional reporters as a kind of captive audience.

At such a typical meeting the candidate will rent a hotel room for a few hours, get up behind the lectern, and laboriously read a long statement prepared by his publicity man. Long before the time for questioning comes, those reporters who have attended are ready to leave. When there is questioning, it is usually unproductive, with the candidate declaring that his views are set out in his written statement.

SUGGESTIONS

On the basis of some 30 years experience in Wisconsin public affairs reporting, this correspondent would remind the candidate in an election that the device of the news conference is easily abused, cheapened and rendered useless. For the man in office, the news conference is a legitimate and useful method in the upper realms of administration and policy, but it can be productive only if the public officer remembers always the mutuality of purpose intended to be served. Although there may be some skeptics about, the reporter can read and doesn't expect or desire that the news source will laboriously recite the prepared hand-out statement for his benefit. The essential idea of the conference is imaginative and constructive interrogation, with the freely given consent of the news source.

The professional politician and the professional reporter should respect each other. Too often today their news conference relations, at least hereabout, exhibit a cynical desire for space-grabbing, on the one hand, and a resentful impatience on the other.

Laser Beam About to Replace Lumberjacks

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

At the sixth World Forestry Congress meeting in Madrid last month, old-fashioned wood sawing and axing were dismissed as "antique techniques" by one of the experts in modern forestry.

The congress was told that wood can be cut far more efficiently by the use of rapidly oscillating steel wires, needle-thin high pressure water jets, high energy electronic rays, and laser beams.

Harris

And so falls the last citadel of man's mighty muscle. For centuries, the lumberjack has been the symbol of strength and skill, daring and perseverance. Legends of the feats of lumberjacks have provided a large and colorful chapter in American folklore.

Now it is to be no more. Technology has stormed and subdued the last rampart of strength and dexterity: Paul Bunyan himself would cut a sorry figure next to a high energy electronic ray or a high pressure water jet. What the computer has done to the old-fashioned bookkeeper, the laser beam is about to do to the lumberjack.

And what about all our inspirational proverbs and mottoes, with which we used to try to instill the virtues of hard work into the young — all the maxims about the wheel, and honest sweat, and all that jazz?

Every year, it becomes more difficult to preach the doctrine of hard work to the young — for work becomes less and less hard, it scarcely resembles what used to be called "work" a century ago, and the less we work, the more we prosper! This has been the great revolution of industrial capitalism — beside which, the revolution of Marx is only a transitory disease.

The lumberjack will soon be merely a dim figure in the history books, taking his place with all the other heroic characters who tamed nature and wrested wealth from the soil. To our children, and even more to their children, such figures will be as mythic as Jack the Giant Killer.

The skill called for in the world ahead will be that of deciding more than of doing, which spared; which made which sared; which made into planks and which into paper; which sawed by steel, which by water, which by electronic ray. The big muscle in the arm will be replaced by the little muscle in the head.

Something is lost, of course — it always is when civilization takes a step forward. And it may turn out to be that our prime social task in the future is to provide some satisfactory substitutes for the young, some model of courage and diligence, as the lumberjack was a century ago. The laser beam, however useful its function, can hardly be expected to develop character, gumption, or guts.

Now that Medicare is in operation, the AMA realizes its mistake. Before the bill was passed, they should have had their lobbyist make more House calls.

Civil Rights Factions Fight In Mississippi

Grenada Held Up
As Example of Waste of Efforts

BY ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

GRENADA, Miss. — The background and techniques of Dr. Martin Luther King's summer campaign in this sleepy little north Mississippi town raise serious doubts about his methods under present conditions in the South.

Dr. King is still the one leader who can energize the adult Southern Negro. His Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) is the best-financed of all civil rights groups, but a good case can be made that these formidable assets are being wasted and misused in Grenada.

This is not to say that Grenada (population approximately 13,000, 45 per cent of it Negro) couldn't use an effective civil rights campaign. In civil rights parlance it is a "closed" — that is, highly segregated — town. Rather than accept Federal guidelines for school desegregation, for instance, Grenada surrendered Federal school aid.

Internal Politics
Yet dozens of other communities in Mississippi also fit that description. Why then is Grenada and Grenada alone the subject of Dr. King's attention? The reason stems from internal politics of the civil rights movement.

In an informal division of the South among civil rights organizations, King had agreed to stay out of Mississippi (which he recognized as the NAACP's domain). But with SCLC's national convention scheduled in Jackson, Miss., this August, other civil rights leaders here predicted King would have to make his presence felt in Mississippi.

It was not until last month's "A RESTFUL VACATION" that King went, the radical Stokely Carmichael of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) may move in. Carmichael turned up here one day, was refused permission by SCLC officials to address a rally, and retired, promising to return when SCLC leaves.

To many civil rights leaders, Dr. King has taken the wrong course the past year. Following passage of the 1965 voting rights bill, they feel, he should have launched a Southwide voter registration program — using his immense prestige to break Negro fear and apathy. In contrast, his major Southern effort today consists of being bogged down in Grenada, Miss.

(Copyright, 1966)

Mississippi march that Grenada was selected, however. Actually, the town received the marchers courteously and assigned extra voting registrars to accommodate them. But Grenada had one great asset for King: it was virgin territory, free of other civil rights organizers. SCLC could move in without stepping on any toes.

No Homework
So hasty was the SCLC decision for a Grenada campaign that no homework was done, as shown by the list of 51 demands. Desegregation of the hospital is demanded, though it has been certified as desegregated by the federal government. Desegregation of the local newspaper is demanded, though half its employees are Negro. Desegregation of bowling alleys is demanded, though Grenada has no bowling alleys.

This less than meticulous attention to detail fits in with a broader criticism of King's tactics here. SCLC always had emphasized the highly publicized march and demonstration in its campaigns, not so much to alleviate local conditions but to create a national climate of sympathy for civil rights. Bully boy tactics by Bull Connor in Birmingham and Jim Clark in Selma perfectly fit King's campaigns in the past.

But the white Southerner has grown foxier. In Grenada local police do not harass but instead protect demonstrators (chasing away sullen-looking whites who might cause trouble). Even if Dr. King himself comes here to take personal command, the odds are against Grenada's becoming another Selma.

Militancy Hurts Negroes
If the campaign has no national implications, its sole value is what it accomplishes in Grenada. It is obvious that no civil rights progress here could come without protest, but the current protest campaign — marches and economic boycott — without negotiations — has led to stalemate here. Influential citizens in Grenada who recognize that change is inevitable believe that the militancy of the current campaign is only strengthening the obstinacy of the bitter-end segregationists.

To other civil rights leaders, however, the great failing of the Grenada campaign and all SCLC efforts is its reliance on the SCLC professional staff and volunteers rather than local Negroes (in contrast to the NAACP's Mississippi campaign). By past experience, whites here are justified in believing that they can wait for King to pull out and let things settle back to segregated normality.

But when King goes, the radical Stokely Carmichael of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) may move in. Carmichael turned up here one day, was refused permission by SCLC officials to address a rally, and retired, promising to return when SCLC leaves.

Your Money's Worth New. U. S. Bond Rate May Top 5 Per Cent

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Late this Wednesday afternoon, July 27, the U.S. Treasury will announce how much interest it will pay to holders of more than $3 billion of its maturing 10 U's if they will accept new 10 U's instead of demanding cash.

The 10 U's which are coming due Aug. 15 — and of which the public owns $3.2 billion — carry coupons of 3 and 4 per cent. The new 10 U's the Treasury will offer must return an historically high rate substantially above 5 per cent. Assuming no imminent drastic change in the interest rate level, the return may be in the neighborhood of 5 1/4 per cent or even more.

The details of coupon and maturity of the new 10 U's are still to be decided. Tomorrow and Wednesday, the treasury's debt managers will meet behind closed doors in Washington with their advisory committees of leading investment and commercial bankers to discuss terms. The treasury will not make a decision until its own deadline Wednesday and then it will immediately announce what it is.

Break Above 5 Per Cent.
Nevertheless, it is a certainty that the interest return on this new 10 U will set another high for a direct obligation of the U.S. Treasury. It will signal a decisive break above the once "magic" 5 per cent level.

It will add more millions to the already record cost of carrying the national debt, an interest burden on all of us who pay taxes. Our national debt interest burden is soaring ever upward to new peaks not because the debt itself is skyrocketing; actually, the national debt total is rising very slowly. The burden is soaring because interest rate levels are skyrocketing and compelling the treasury to pay peak rates on every obligation it issues to cover new deficits or to refund old debts.

When the terms on this offering are publicized in Thursday's newspapers, there will be another loud outcry from Congressmen and others deeply concerned about the degree to which interest rates have climbed in this era of great demand for credit and a pinch on the supply of credit.

But the Treasury has no alternative except to pay the interest rate the market dictates. It must roll over this $3 billion of debt. It must avoid a massive turn in of the maturing 10 U's for cash and the violent complications that would create. It must, therefore, compete for available funds against other borrowers in the open market. This means it must make its new 10 U's attractive against the market's current level. While some corporations, states, cities, etc., may shelve new 2 1/4 per cent coupon and maturity — when they'll get borrowing plans in protest maturing, say, in 1970, will back 100 cents for every 100 cents invested — or they must sell at enormous losses.

Of course, the squeeze will end at a future date, interest rates will turn down U.S. bond prices will turn up and traders with ice in their veins will make fortunes. But as of this week, the squeeze is still on, and on Wednesday, it will be the treasury's turn to acknowledge by its refunding terms just how rough logically declined in response, holding these deep discount is.

As interest rates have soared, and 3 1/2 per cent coupons and the prices of bonds issued with distant maturity dates are previously at lower rates have quoted in the low 8s. Investors logically declined in response, holding these deep discount is.

A government spokesman said the South Vietnamese suffered no casualties in most of the brief fights and the Viet Cong carried off all except three of their dead.

Although weather hampered air assaults in the North, a military spokesman said Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots flew 72 missions Sunday against fuel dumps, supply lines, trucks, barges and bridges. American pilots did not sight any MIGs or surface-to-air missiles, he said.

In South Viet Nam Sunday Air Force, Navy Marine and Communist Vietnamese pilots flew 549 strike sorties, many of them in support of the Marines fighting in Operation Hastings.

Frinzi Wants New Status for Postmasters

SHEBOYGAN (AP)—Dominic H. Frinzi, one of four Democrats seeking their party's nomination for governor, says civil service reform must accompany taking postmaster appointments out of patronage and partisan politics.

Frinzi told a Sheboygan County Democratic rally Sunday he has been retained as attorney for Mrs. Yvonne Brandstetter, a widow who he said is not being considered for appointment as postmaster of Elroy in June County, although she scored higher on an examination than three men who are being considered.

He said he is backing a bill by Sen. E. William Proxmire D-Wis. to take postmaster appointments out of patronage so that we can get the best qualified government help.

Later he told a Wash. Post County Democratic group not in the administrative budget and guidance of the University of Wisconsin scholars.

his contention that only a military invasion of the North can bring complete victory in the war.

No Real Peace

He explained in a copyright interview in the current issue of U.S. News & World report. As long as the North, beyond the 17th Parallel, is safe and they will be able to continue to send troops down here — as long as they continue infiltration, subversion, it means we'll continue to have ambushes, assassinations. There will be no real peace.

When asked whether an invasion would bring Communist China into the war, Ky told the magazine.

The real enemy, the real danger for the present and particularly for the future in Southeast Asia is the Chinese Communists. And with their policy of aggression, expansion, domination, I think, sooner or later, we as free men have to face the Chinese Communists. And I think it's better to face them right now than in five or 10 years.

Death Valley Hike at Most Torrid Stage

DEATH VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—The 100-mile hike of French adventurer Jean Pierre Marquant across Death Valley entered its most torrid, trying section today — across the dry, shimmering valley floor.

Marquant, 26, who said he is hiking to prove there is still adventure in America, walked out of the rugged dry Panamint Mountains Sunday, saying he was feeling fine.

Marquant entered the hottest portion of the valley, planning to hike from Shorty's Well through the area of salt pools and the jagged pinnacles of Devil's Golf Course to Larzac Creek and the sand dunes at Stove Pipe Wells.

With the first half of the hike behind him, Marquant said "I was certain I could make the first 50 miles, but as for the final half of the hike I do not know."

So far Marquant has encountered heat ranging from 100 degrees up to 130 — with worse to come.

He intended to be in the low portion of the valley — almost 230 feet below sea level at Badwater — Tuesday and Wednesday.

During this part of the trek, park rangers said, they can keep an eye on Marquant as he marches along with his backpack, carrying his umbrella

The Cadillac car holds its value far beyond any other automobile at or near its price. Let your Cadillac dealer explain today why now, more than ever it's great... going Cadillac!

There is one simple way to measure the worth of any other luxury car compared to the way a Cadillac keeps its value. For Cadillac is the grand champion in the most telling of all motor car tests — and it's resale returns a higher percentage of its original cost than any other car built in the land. There are many reasons. The first is Cadillac quality — recognized wherever automobiles are known. Then there's Cadillac beauty and luxury — so advanced that the car retains its desirability long after others have lost the luster. And there is Cadillac's proven performance, dependability and operating economy. What's your car worth a year — or even three years — from now? If it's a Cadillac, the answer is predictable. Repeat. Get the facts today from your authorized dealer. # Ace's Toughest Battle Was Getting Into War

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Major James H. Kasler had a hard time getting into this war. He volunteered five times before the U.S. Air Force transferred him from Germany last March.

Today, Kasler is the hottest jet pilot around.

He has probably inflicted more damage on North Viet Nam than any other individual.

He led the first raid on Hanoi's suburban oil installations. He has flown more than 70 missions against the Communists. Kasler, 40, is quiet, serious, a

Kasler flies against North Viet Nam from a base in Thailand.

"On most missions," he said, "I refuel twice in the air, going in and coming back. I've almost always had tanker planes available when I wanted them. Only once did I have to make it to an emergency base, because I couldn't find a tanker in the area."

Kasler led a devastating attack in May on the Yen Bai military complex. Using improved cluster bomb units, called CBUs, Kasler's flight was credited with destroying 25 anti-aircraft guns and most of the personnel manning them.

A CBU is a canister containing 800 small bombs which explode near the ground, spewing shrapnel over a wide area. They have recently been made more devastating by the addition of napalm.

Hit in Wing

Returning from the Yen Bai raid, Kasler's plane was hit through the wing but he made it back to base after lingering in the area to fly protective cover for other U.S. airmen.

"We're concentrating now on more missions that will do permanent damage instead of just hitting roads and things like that, which can be easily repaired," he said. "I think this is going to start hurting them."

"I think our air effort is going to have a very demoralizing effect on North Viet Nam."

Kasler feels U.S. pilots coming into the Viet Nam war are better trained and more experienced than ever before.

"In my squadron," he says, "there are 12 captains who have more than 10 years in the service. All of them have 1,000 hours or more in the F105 Thunderchief."

New Lieutenants

"We have eight new lieutenants in our squadron. A new pilot will go one way or the other—either he will be cautious or he will develop a high degree of aggressiveness."

"I've always thought that being aggressive is the safest way to fly in combat. We're indoctrinating these new men in the aggressive role. Every one of them fortunately is aggressive."

Kasler just managed to get into World War II. He was 18 in 1944, and he squeezed in six combat missions as a tail gunner before the war ended in 1945. During the Korean War, he served 10 months in combat, flying 100 missions in F86 Sabre Jets and downing six MIGs.

Kasler's wife, Martha, lives with their three children in Indianapolis, Ind.

How's Your AUTOBiography?

By Sy

(The following questions sent in by interested readers have been answered by area representatives of the Wisconsin Motor Vehicle Department under the leadership of license examiner John Syboldon.)

QUESTION: What is the Smith System of driving I hear so much about?

ANSWER: It is a system of defensive driving, that is, driving in such a manner as to be able to prevent being involved in an accident in spite of the incorrect actions of others, or the presence of adverse driving conditions.

The Smith System of driving has five basic rules that will help each driver: (1) Aim high in steering. (2) Keep your eyes moving. (3) Get the big picture. (4) Leave yourself an out. (5) Make sure you are seen.

In the next five columns each point will be explained in more detail.

QUESTION: What is the penalty for going into the wrong lane when turning onto a one-way street?

ANSWER: For turning into the wrong lane your penalty would be a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $20 on the first offense, and not less than $25 nor more than $50 on second and thereafter offenses. Also, a three point assessment on your driving record goes with each violation.

QUESTION: Could I lose points on my driving record for faulty lights on a vehicle?

ANSWER: Yes, you may. In fact it would be three points.

Questions on driving may be sent to Sy in care of the Post-Crescent or directly to the Driver License Division, Motor Vehicle Department, 517 N. Appleton St., Appleton.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Pagans!" "Frauds!" In such caustic terms, members of Roman Catholic and Masonic fraternal orders have sometimes regarded each other in the past. But the distrust is disappearing.

"Those days are gone," says John W. McDevitt, supreme knight of the Catholic men's order, the Knights of Columbus. "We're encouraging closer rapport."

The change has meant not only a fading away of the mutual aspersions, once uttered in the separate organizational quarters, but has also brought about joint discussions and prospects of cooperation.

Welcoming the new friendlier relationship, Wendell K. Walker, Masonic grand secretary in New York State, said, "It's been so good so far, it seems likely to develop still further."

Brotherhood Breakfasts

Across the country, Masonic lodges and councils of the Knights have met together in many communities at "brotherhood breakfasts" and similar affairs — for the first time in history.

With growing frequency, officials of both groups have been guests at meetings of the other.

The Rev. John A. O'Brien, a Catholic theologian at Notre Dame University, has spoken at several Masonic gatherings lately in the Midwest, stressing greater Catholic esteem for Masons.

He predicts the time is rapidly approaching "when officials of the Catholic Church will re-examine the causes and circumstances of its ban against Catholics joining a Masonic lodge."

That ban was first imposed by Pope Clement XII in 1738, the beginning of a long succession of papal condemnations, edicts and censures imposing excommunication on Catholics joining or prompting Masonry.

Pope Pius IX, in the mid-19th century, characterized Masonry as insidious, fraudulent, perverse, "injurious both to religion and society." Other harsh charges also were hurled.

Because Masonry is nonsectarian, open to men of varying faiths, past popes accused it of a false tolerance, creating religious indifference and undermining Catholicism.

Masonry, which bars atheists and agnostics, obligates members to broad religious principles and, in the words of early constitutions, "to be good men and true — by whatever denomination or persuasion."

It regularly has denied opposing Catholicism. But edged feelings existed in both camps. The Catholic magazine, America, comments:

"Many a Knight will doubtless recall less fraternal days, when Masonry, particularly in the South, harbored a good deal of anti-Catholicism, and when Catholics rather commonly tarred all Masons with the same brush."

4 Million Masons
The Masonic order includes about four million members in the United States, their lodges stressing rules of brotherliness, help to the needy and civic virtues.

The Knights of Columbus, including about 1.2 million members in this country, also carry on works of civic and social service.

McDevitt, of the Knights' headquarters in New Haven, Conn., said the beginning job of reconciliation between the fraternal orders is "to get rid of derogatory" impressions of each other.

"Neither side has had a monopoly on this," he said. But he added that the mood and manners have changed as a "dividend of the ecumenical spirit."

He foresees numerous fields of cooperation ahead.

Urging such steps at a joint meeting of Knights and Masons in Sharon, Mass., recently, he said the two groups should work together in "the spread and defense of belief in God, the promotion of patriotism and the safeguarding of national morality."

Maurice M. Witherspoon, publications executive for New York Masons, said such cooperation in athletic and social events already has spread widely.

"It marks a tremendous changeover in the last two years," he said, "and it's growing fast."

Father O'Brien, emphasizing that he was expressing a personal view, told a Masonic convention in French Lick, Ind., that the Catholic ban on Masonry stemmed from conditions in Europe at the time.

Belief in God

In France and Italy, he said, Masonic lodges had become centers of irreligion, involved in politics, but that Masonry in Britain and America has always required belief in God.

American Masonry, he added, "far from being the enemy of religion, is a mighty and powerful ally of religion." He said it was unfortunate and unnatural that Catholics may not be active members.

He expressed confidence that continuing exchanges "would clear away all misunderstandings" between Catholics and Masonry.

As a symbol of the new "esteem which Catholics hold for Masons," he presented pairs of cuff links to Masonic officers in Indiana and Ohio at meetings in those states.

Comments the Masonic general grand treasurer, Charles K. McGaughey, of Lexington, Ky.: "A lot of barriers are coming down."

Major James Kasler

veteran of both World War II and Korea

Of the raid he led on oil installations three miles from the heart of Hanoi June 29, Kasler said.

Beautiful Mission

"It was really a beautiful mission. It went precisely as planned."

"It was one of those missions when we had clouds all the way. We refueled from aerial tankers in the clouds on the way in. We didn't break through the clouds until we were three minutes from the target. Luckily, I was dead on course in my navigation and my timing was only 10 seconds off of what I had computed it would be. So everything worked out real good."

"As soon as we broke out of the clouds, they opened up on us with their big guns. We were 20 miles from Hanoi and we picked up intense flak. It was the heavy stuff—the 85mm guns. You can tell these because you see a big red ball and then a black puff when it explodes."

Tank Bombing

"They have flak guns all up and down the Red River Valley. On the way back, we spotted 25 trucks on a mountain road and we shot up 12 of them."

'F Troop' Is Evidence Slapstick Still Alive

Producer Says TV Show Takes Full Advantage of Classic Comedy Form

By HY AVERBACK
For CYNTHIA LOWRY

EDITOR'S NOTE—Hy Averbach is the producer of ABC's "F Troop," a sort of 1880 Bilko show set in the Old West. It is notable for the fact that it contains what are called "blocked-comedy sequences" and plenty of slapstick. Averbach is an actor and director who specializes in broad comedy.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Slapstick buffs bemoan the fact that the great physical comedians are all gone. They cry that no new stars in this genre have come along to replace them. I don't agree.

Of course we miss Buster Keaton. Certainly there were too few Stan Laurels. And most of us look fondly at those old Charlie Chaplin two-reelers whenever they are shown. However, as long as there are talents around like my gang in "F Troop," there will always be slapstick on tap for those who enjoy it—and I think that takes in most of us.

"F Troop" is one of the very few shows on television today that can take full advantage of this classic comedy form. Most series are handicapped because their formats preclude the strictly physical joke—or because their performers aren't capable of handing this sort of humor.

Broad-Sight Gags

Broad-sight gags were part of the original blueprint for "F Troop," and the show was intentionally cast with people who had ability in this field. We've even made actors out of stunt men in some instances.

In the great slapstick comedies of the past, the audience always knew something funny was going to happen to the comic—and soon. When the camera was on Chaplin as he walked in his peculiar way, it was inevitable that something hilarious would happen to him.

To watch Ken Berry, who plays our Capt. Parmenter, walk across the Ft. Courage compound is to watch a disaster in the making. You know that before he reaches the assembly hall he will have tripped over the hitching rail, tangled his scabbard in a horse's bridle, or accidentally fired the fort's only cannon and shot down the lookout tower—again.

Trained Dancer

Only a trained dancer like Berry could manage this.

Forrest Tucker and Larry Storch—two more inventive low comedians have never existed. Larry has revived one of the finest old bits in vaudeville, using his battered hat as a disciplinary weapon. Tucker is the scheming, expressive con man in the best burlesque tradition.

They're all not only willing but capable of going the slapstick route, playing it to the hilt. Very few of their contemporaries are willing to fall down, mug, cry or take a pie in the face in every series outing—even to get good solid laughs.

Quite often our scripts carry this notation: "Physical business to be worked out by cast and director." This means they are working out a new way to fall from a horse, a different way to walk blindly into a flagpole, to fall down the well, or yet another way to step into a bear trap.

And they've always found the different way.

Hullabaloo Welcomes Meredith

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7 — Channels 4-5 — Hullabaloo has plenty of "soul" and "shout" music. Hosts are The Righteous Brothers, former gospel singers, now high priests of rock 'n' roll. More subdued guests include Nancy Sinatra, Mel Carter, Paul and Barry Ryan and Paul Revere and the Raiders. (R-Color)

7:30-8 — Channels 4-5 — Dr. Kildare begins a six-part series which pits an atheist with a "true believer." There's some good acting in this from Jack Hawkins as a non-believer whose heart stops for two minutes and from Bradford Dillman as a modern evangelist with vintage ideas. (R-Color)

7:30-8 — Channels 2-12 — "Frank Merriwell" is the Vacation Playhouse offering, and it's a wacky, busy comedy lightly based on the Burt L. Standish tales of the all-American hero. Jeff Cooper is the loosejointed stalwart and before it's over he is mixed up with villains, a balloon ride, and a zany auto chase.

8-8:30 — Channels 11-4-9 — "The Lost Diablo" is a wistful little mystery for A Man Called Peter Lawford to the U.S. Shenandoah. On the border of Mexico, Robert Horton comes across a Wells Fargo safety deposit box which he is convinced contains the secret of his identity. Now the trick is to open it before gunman James Gregory shoots him down. (R)

8-9 — Channels 4-5 — The Summer Music Hall has another bouncy, tuneful session. As usual, the music is more grown-up than the soporific comedy. Host John Davidson is at his dimpled, pleasing best and his guests are Joe and Eddy, who sing, and Richard Pryor, who offers humor. (Color)

9-10 — Channels 2-12 — Hollywood Talent Scouts once more drags out "big stars" like Audrey Meadows, Robert Horton and Jan Murray to introduce a flock of lesser lights. Highlight of the questionable hour is a stage session in which a team of Hollywood stunt men, led by Dean Smith, display their prowess in tearing a Western saloon apart. (R-Color)

9-10 — Channels 11-4-9 — "Under a Dark Star" is a gray script for The Big Valley. It's almost completely implausible — unless you can believe that a prosecuting attorney would go out of his way to befriend an exconvict he sent to the pokey for nine years. (R-Color)

9-10 — Channels 4-5-7 — Run For Your Life invades a colorful Rio de Janeiro carnival for a suspenseful drama. Ben Gazzara is out to aid a former sweetheart in returning murlittle mystery for A Man Called Peter Lawford to the U.S. Shenandoah. On the border of Mexico, Robert Horton comes across a Wells Fargo safety deposit box which he is convinced contains the secret of his identity. Now the trick is to open it before gunman James Gregory shoots him down. (R)

Jackie, Children Among 'Most Traveled' Families

(Editor's Note — Shortly after the United States to prepare for her current junket to Hawaii year of mourning for her assassinated husband, she began a series of trips that have carried her across three continents. She returned Sunday from her latest journey, an extended visit to the Hawaiian Islands.)

By JEAN HELLER

NEW YORK (AP) — In the past 19 months, Mrs. John F. Kennedy has done enough world traveling to exhaust an experienced member of the set.

She's ranged across three continents, stopping in five foreign countries and touching at American cities from Boston to Honolulu. At her side have been the children — Caroline and John Jr. — and, a close aide says, they're the reason for much of the traveling.

Mrs. Kennedy went into a year of mourning after President Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22, 1963.

Then, on Dec. 26, 1964, she began her whirlwind travels with a weeklong skiing holiday in Aspen, Colo.

On May 12, 1965, Mrs. Kennedy was off to London, a sentimental trip made primarily for the dedication to the late president of an acre of ground at Runnymede.

On June 2, 1965, she was back in the United States at Hyannis Port, Mass., celebrating her 36th birthday at the Kennedy family compound.

On Aug. 28, 1965, she was in Newport, R.I., seeing her mother. On Dec. 26, 1965, it was the start of another ski holiday, beginning at Sun Valley, Idaho, and moving to Gstaad, Switzerland, on Jan. 14, 1966.

After two weeks at Gstaad, Mrs. Kennedy flew to Rome for a week of shopping and an audience with Pope Paul VI — and, on Feb. 3, she returned to Gstaad.

In New York

Then there was a brief trip back to her New York City home until April 5, when she flew to Cordoba, Argentina, for the Easter holiday with friends.

From Cordoba, she flew to Spain — Madrid to Sevilla — for a round of balls and a bull fight, then returned again briefly to

A spokesman for Mrs. Kennedy said no more foreign travel is scheduled for now, but domestic trips will fill the rest of the summer.

Sister's Wedding
At the end of the month, Mrs. Kennedy will be in Newport again, for her sister's wedding, then she will spend the rest of the summer in Hyannis Port. Mrs. Kennedy's children, Caroline, 9, and John Jr., 5, accompany her on most of the trips and, Mrs. Kennedy's spokesman said, much of the traveling is done for the children.

"The traveling alone is an educational experience for the children," the spokesman said. "And Mrs. Kennedy takes it even one step further."

"They had the opportunity to go to a French school in Gstaad and they learned quite a bit of Spanish in Argentina. And think of all the history they pick up along the way."

Accompanied
Mrs. Kennedy and the children never travel alone. Besides the Secret Service agents assigned to them, they often are accompanied by large numbers of the Kennedy clan. On the trip to Aspen, for example, the entourage numbered 15.

Mrs. Kennedy flew to Honolulu with her two children and her former brother-in-law, actor Peter Lawford and his two children. There were anxious moments on the Hawaiian trip, where young John fell into an outdoor fire and was burned, requiring minor plastic surgery.

On all her trips, Mrs. Kennedy draws large crowds.

On her first two weeks in Gstaad, Mrs. Kennedy tried hard to get in some skiing. But she was so badgered by crowds that she had to give up.

At one ski lift police were unable to handle the mob scene and the lifting operator finally shut down the operation.

Met En Masse
Six hundred people gathered at the Denver airport when the Kennedys flew in for their Aspen holiday.

And when the former first lady took her children to see the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace in London, they were recognized by the crowds and had to be rescued by police before they were swamped.

Some 1,000 turned out to see her at Cordoba, and 5,000 greeted her at Honolulu airport.

Mrs. Kennedy rarely makes any overt effort to avoid such jams of humanity — and she is publicly quite gracious about enduring them.

But occasionally, when things get as serious as they were at Gstaad, reports filter through her spokesman that she is upset.

Makes Effort
Sometimes, Mrs. Kennedy purposely tries to oblige the crowds.

As she left Rome, she held a rare news conference in Italian, during which she said: "I would like to say that I am sorry that the work of the photographers has been so difficult. I promise that today I will leave by the front doors."

"It's all part of the job of being Jackie Kennedy," Mrs. Kennedy's spokesman said.

Hobos Take Over City Playgrounds

Normally scrubbed and brushed Appleton youngsters gave up the grooming Thursday as the 13 Recreation Dept. playgrounds held a hobo day. Rags and oversize clothes — undoubtedly garnered along the country's highways — were the order of the day. No one paid any attention to patches and tears. To knights of the road, they are badges of honor.

The program at all the playgrounds included a hobo supper. Many of the groups hiked through surrounding neighborhoods, bandanas tied to sticks over their shoulders, before going back to their 'jungle' to dine on picnic fare.

After supper, the young hobos sat around the campfires, telling stories of their adventures since their reunion last summer.

Then it was home to bathtub and bed.

One of the more dapper hobos, who sported a tie and wore a butterfly on his hat, was Steven LeFevre, who took a look at the make-shift plate used by Mike Josephs. While the Edison playground stew cooked over a wood fire, the youngsters played games and waited what seemed an endless time. At left, waiting no more, is Sara White. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Dry Conditions Force New Ban on Sprinkling

Action Taken For 3rd Time This Summer

For the third time this summer, Appleton residents have been forced to turn off their sprinklers. The latest sprinkling ban went into effect today. The reason, according to Water Plant Superintendent William Gallaher — continued scorching hot weather, no rain and too much municipal water consumption coupled with not enough municipal water.

Dr. Gallaher said this is the first time in his 32 years on the water utility he can recall tight restrictions being necessary more than twice in a single summer.

"There has been no rain to speak of for two weeks," Gallaher explained.

Just Meet Demand

He said that pumps could "just about keep up with the demand" Sunday, but added that without restrictions, "the limits would in all likelihood be exceeded early this week unless there is a significant amount of rain."

Appleton residents used about 10 million gallons of water Sunday, Gallaher said. More normally is used on weekdays, he explained. Normal use this time of the year, he said, is about 6½ million gallons daily, while the limit that can be handled by municipal facilities supplying the water is about 11 million gallons a day.

Gallaher said the present tight restrictions will remain in effect "until it rains or gets cooler."

He said residents also are being asked "not to use water unnecessarily." Gallaher could foresee no ban on the city's swimming pools which recirculate their water.

'Unusual Year'

Gallaher termed this "a most unusual year" from the standpoint of his department's operations.

It is generally agreed that Appleton is going through the severest water shortage problem in three decades.

The "drought" began about the third week in June and it was not long before officials imposed partial water use restrictions. Major among the restrictions was an order designating days when persons living at odd and even numbered addresses could sprinkle their lawns.

Then, on June 29, following days of 90-degree plus temperatures and little rain, a ban was placed on all sprinkling and

Priest Sees Realignment of American Political Parties

DARBOY — The fragmentation of the two political parties is an American political dilemma, Dr. Marvin Kagen, Democratic candidate for the 8th Congressional District seat, said today.

Kagen's campaign for the congressional seat, he said, is a campaign for the re-alignment of the two major parties.

Approximately 135 persons attended the $15-a-plate dinner liberal and conservative parties.

The priest said part of the problem arises from the fact that the two major parties are modeled and fears the new "Fa-

He said the campaign between Kagen and Byrnes "should not be one of personalities, but rather one based on issues with two different approaches."

The audience also heard some folksongs, including a campaign song, by Marve and Arlene Zelonyk, and a brief talk by Outagamie County Judge Gustav Keller on the responsibility of citizens to participate in politics.

New Disorders At Reformatory

Inmates Start Fires In Cells at Facility At Green Bay

GREEN BAY (AP) — A new disorder broke out at the Wisconsin State Reformatory Sunday night when inmates started fires in their cells and tossed bedding into the cell block halls.

The reformatory was quiet this morning after two inmates, described as ringleaders, were placed in solitary confinement.

The cause of the disturbance was not immediately ascertained and Warden Michel Skaff was unavailable to newsmen this morning.

On July 15, following the death of an inmate who had been involved in a fight with another prisoner, a riot broke out in the recreation area. Authorities said the disorder appeared to have racial overtones. An autopsy disclosed that the death of the inmate involved in the fight had suffered from a heart ailment.

Sunday's disorder began about 9:30 p.m. County officers were summoned at 11:30 and five of them remained throughout the night. Green Bay and DePere police were placed on a standby basis in the event the trouble recurred.

Shiocton Man Pleads Innocent

GARY F. Lemere, 21, Shiocton, pleaded innocent this morning to charges of operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol brought against him Sunday.

Police Chief Raymond Muskevitch arrested Lemere in the Village of Shiocton. Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Judge Gustave J. Keller set bond at $250. Lemere's trial date has not yet been scheduled.

13 Performers Felled During Drill Festival

Milwaukee Group First; Sweltering Heat Takes Toll

The Imperials of St. Patrick, a Milwaukee drum and bugle corps, marched to first place honors Sunday afternoon in the seventh annual Fiesta Musicana, an event which saw 13 competitors collapse in sweltering heat at the Lawrence University Bowl.

Three persons were hospitalized. Most of the competitors who were felled by the 90-degree heat suffered from exhaustion or sunstroke. A Fort Dodge, Iowa, girl suffered an asthma attack and was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Lindy's Ambulance. She was Pat Holstein, 17, who collapsed near the end of the festivities.

Other performers stricken by heat exhaustion were Deborah Bowden, 16, 2817 E. Wisconsin Ave., Appleton; Janice Behr, 15, Milwaukee; Paulette Greunwald, 15, Fort Dodge; Joyce Hieley, 15, Fort Dodge; Dorothy Waskka, 20, Fort Dodge; Dave Dixon, 15, Menominee, Mich.; and Christine Stoder, 15, Milwaukee.

Assist Firemen

Assisting Robert Recker and Clarence Kersten of the Fire Department rescue squad were Capt. Vilas Burnmeister and Patrolman Michael Phillips, Appleton Police Department.

Appleton firemen, who were at the Lawrence University Bowl with their large rescue bus, treated 10 persons. They used oxygen to revive most of those treated.

Two persons reportedly were taken to hospitals in private cars.

Attendees from both Lindy's and Larry's ambulance services said cold towels were used to

Reservists in Louisiana

Valley Men Learn to Train Recruits

BY DOUG KOPLIEN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

FORT POLK, La. — Excess civilian pounds are being sweated off as Army Reservists of the First Battalion, 27th Regiment of the 84th Division reach the midpoint in the annual summer camp.

The Reservists, part of 1,850 Division personnel here, normally meet at the Appleton Reserve Center at 1824 Ballard Road.

They are training recruits while satelitted with regular training companies in the First and Fourth Training Brigades at Fort Polk.

The Fox Valley men are learning why Fort Polk was chosen to train troops destined for duty in Viet Nam. Temperatures during the first week have been consistently in the high 90s, with humidity in the high 80s and low 90s.

Designated for Training Companies A, B, C and D, which comprise the First Battalion, are designated as basic training companies, as is most of the 84th Division. For two weeks they are working side-by-side with their regular Army counterparts training recruits to fight.

This matching process is true from the battalion commander, Maj. Roy A. Lenhardt, Clintonville, right down to the company clerks.

Some reservists are matched with graduate drill instructors, who have completed the Army Drill Instructor's Academy here.

During the past week and this week they will learn how to train troops during the eight week basic training period.

Drill Recruits
One of the most important lessons being taught by drill instructors is how to instill discipline into recruits who a matter of days ago were civilians.

According to Army personnel, the first week, sometimes called "zero week" or "fill week," is the most important.

As one first sergeant put it, "If we don't get to the recruits during the first week, we never will."

Reserve Company A is satelitted with Regular Army Company B of the First Brigade. Reserve Company B is with Regular Army C Company. Reserve C Company is with Regular Army D Company and the 84th's D Company is with Regular Army A Company of the Fourth Battalion.

During the first week at Fort Polk, A and B companies were training first-week trainees. C Company was in the processing of receiving a new group of trainees to start training Monday and D Company was working with more experienced trainees in their fifth week of basic training.

From all indications, the Reservists are doing the job very well. Lenhardt said, "Things are going so well that I can't believe it."

Doing Very Well

Remarks of the permanent party personnel also have indicated that the battalion non-commissioned officers (NCO's) are doing well.

In addition to marching the recruits to and from the training areas, Reservists are teaching classes in physical training, military courtesy and traditions.

Other Reservists are involved in teaching hand-to-hand combat, bayonet and intelligence.

Taught Procedure

During the first week at Polk, Companies A and B taught recruits the basic fundamentals of Army discipline and procedure. This week the Reservists will familiarize the recruits with the

Outstanding Acting by Leads Tops Attic Theatre's Show Production

BY DAVID F. WAGNER

Attic Theatre's presentation of George Bernard Shaw's large-than-life drama, "Caesar and Cleopatra," opened a nine-performance run Saturday night at the Lawrence University Music-Drama Center's Experimental Theatre.

Clumsy timing on the part of several extras detracted from youthful emotion, but also turned around to be a believable young diplomat.

The acting of the principals and brave bull-headed when was up to the usual high Attic standard, tender when needed — all displaying his immense acting ability.

Judi Jones approaches her date by interpreting Shaw's well-read prologue in which Cleopatra as an adventurous schoolgirl sort who has a shrewd mind and a streak of ruthlessness. Miss Jones makes a zesty Cleo in rages of Cleopatra's household, the unpronounceable (to Caesar and friends) Ftataetea, was soberly, yet richly depicted by

Teen-ager Questions Advice Ann Gave to Worried Mother

BY ANN LANDERS

ANN LANDERS: I am not addressing you as "dear" because you are not dear to me. When you agreed with that miserable, overprotective mother, I could have wrung your neck. There is no reason a 17-year-old girl should not rent an apartment for a month to be able to express yourself in crisp, forthright language. Thank you very much.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are in our 70's but we still enjoy life as much as we did 40 years ago. Maybe even more.

Orville and I like to dance. Of course, we do the old style dances, the same ones we have done for a good many years.

Last Saturday we attended a wedding reception and the music was wonderful. Orville and I did enjoy the dancing so much. At the buffet table I overheard some folks talking — they didn't realize I was standing behind them. Both women were criticizing us. They said we were old fools, that we look ridiculous out there on the dance floor, trying to act like a spring chicken and a young rooster.

I was very hurt and have been thinking about it ever since. What are your ideas? — Bay City Heartache contract bridge is a game of skill. More often, Marks makes the kind of play shown in today's hand.

West led the deuce of spades, and Marks thought carefully. Then he made the key play of finessing with dummy's nine of spades.

When East played low, dummy won the first trick. Declarer cashed the top diamonds, ruffed a diamond with the jack of spades, got to dummy with a club and ruffed another diamond with the queen of spades.

Marks then cashed the ace of spades and gave up a heart. No matter what was returned, declarer could ruff the next heart in dummy and draw the last trump with the king of spades. Dummy's good diamond and declarer's good clubs took the rest of the tricks.

The hand is far more difficult if South plays a low trump from dummy at the first trick. He wins with the jack of spades and can start the diamonds and ruff a diamond with the queen of spades.

South gets to dummy with a club, ruffs another diamond with the ace of spades and then can stake the slam on leading the five of spades and finessing with dummy's nine. If this lost, South would be down.

Marks took his finesse with the nine of spades when there was no risk. If East produced the ten of spades, South could win and perhaps play for the hearts instead of the diamonds.

The time to take a risk is when you can recover from bad luck. Only a gambler would group correspond to 40 et 8 meetings, with the auxiliary take his risk when it was to late to recover, and Burt Marks has participating in the 3 p.m. Aug. 6 memorial services, 6 p.m. already demonstrated that contract bridge is not a gambling game.

Johnson's Fear of Overspending Comes Too Late, Charges Laird

BY FRANCES MCKUSICK

WASHINGTON — President Johnson pushed the panic on government extravagance just a year too late, according to a Seventh District Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Marshfield) during House debate on the Defense Appropriations Bill for the present fiscal year.

After an earlier visit to the White House, when the Chief Executive "admonished, warned and counseled" him and other members of the appropriations committee to "tighten their belts," Laird reminded the House that "we Republicans saw the handwriting on the wall" 12 months ago. At that time, he urged reduction of non-essential domestic expenditures, the chairman of the House Republican Conference declared.

He recalled, however, that whenever one of the President's favorite domestic programs comes up for funding, "the White House has the whole force working" to see that any cut would be restored.

"The priorities that we called for last year are here to haunt us today," Laird continued. "But we should not be misled by the fancy bookkeeping of the Secretary of Defense, who would lead one to believe that he is saving millions of dollars while at the same time, his appropriation requests are going up by the billions."

An example of this "fancy bookkeeping," according to Laird, was the time the Department of Defense claimed it saved $400 million because it did not purchase some tanks which "had never been authorized, and were not on any shopping list." That would be like my driving past a Cadillac garage and claiming I saved $5,000 or so because I did not purchase a Cadillac," he quipped.

Speaking of the Department of Defense budget, Laird predicted that the $58 billion bill later approved by House with only one dissenting vote, would fall short by "at least $7 billion" of the amount needed before June 30, 1967, the end of the current fiscal year.

He pointed out that a "long-term program was needed for the Department of Defense as recommended by the Congressional Armed Services Committee and the Joint Atomic Energy Committee. "This would cover both the country's defense strategy and its national security programs," he said.

Although Laird spoke for half an hour on national defense matters and the need for a special "Blue-Ribbon" committee to review our military policies, his statements were not contested by any Democratic member of the house.

As a matter of fact, Rep. J. L. Whitten of Mississippi, the Democrat who followed Laird in the debate, handed him an endorsement.

Stating that he had "sympathy" for Laird's feelings, Whitten added, "I do not want to be held responsible as an individual for many of the things I see in this overall situation...which is most disconcerting."

"I believe it is high time for the leaders of both our political parties to begin to review our overall foreign policy."

In the event the Reservists would be called to active duty, they would be working as cadre on a post similar to Fort Polk, preparing recruits for battlefield duty.

With most of the military subjects being taught by company personnel, Reservists have been gaining experience in case a call-up occurs.

Teach Principles

Company D cadre spent most of the first week teaching the principles of bayonet fighting. They coached trainees during practice both with the bayonet and the pugal stick, a device used by the Army to give the trainees actual experience with a simulated bayonet battle condition.

Company C did not start conducting actual troop training until today. During the past week, recruits were brought into the company area from the reception station and received their platoon and barracks assignment.

All companies will enter the more advanced stages of training this week to enhance their experience in their respective positions.

Saturday morning the main body of the Division will board a train to head back to Wisconsin, another summer camp completed.

Outstanding Acting Marks Shaw Drama

Marilyn Auer, Mrs. Auer also designed the costumes, which were colorful (except for Caesar's white garb) tunics and gowns.

As Caesar's secretary, Britannus, Shaw's means of ribbing the British, John Burr was surly but lovable. In his Attic debut, Burr enjoyed his best-cast role yet. He has been seen in several Oshkosh Community Players productions.

Play Lesser Roles

In important lesser roles were James Mills, the worried Theodotus; David Hensley, adequate as Rufio, Caesar's "shield"; Arthur Peekle, a handsome Lucius Septimus; Nicki Jurgensen, a cute King Ptolemy; Dan Bystrom, a delightful Apollodorus; and Victor Espensen, an interesting Pothinus. The latter, however, looked like a member of the Army Signal Corps each time he gestured.

Poor timing and stilled gesturing aside, the primary problem with Attie's "Caesar and Cleopatra" is its staging.

The play just does not lend itself to "theatre in the corner." Shaw's larger-than-lifeless cried out for a proscenium stage, as did "The Skin of Our Teeth" earlier this season.

In this play, Shaw knowingly depicted the Egyptians as a people used to doing things in a grandiose manner. As expressed in sculpture, their gods and kings were colossal. The Romans, especially Caesar, seemed perfect living examples of those gods.

Coming to Eat Here

Even Cleopatra, in the play, thinks the Romans are coming to devour her. "They all have long noses, and ivory tusks, and little tails, and seven arms with Sunday. Showtime is 8:15 p.m. The mid-year convention this winter will be in Appleton.

Institute President Speaks at Leadership Training Conference

MARSHFIELD — Representative emphasized that the growth had times of the state Jaycee been accomplished without federal aid.

Leadership training conference Friday and Saturday that if representing 77 clubs, including Americans were not of service most of those from the Fox Valley, attended the conference. Interests would bring about a "Our institution was founded on the basis of free enterprise."

Arthur Turner, 34, president of Northwood Institute, Midland, all parts of the country believe Michigan, and a 1965-66 winner of the United States Jaycee outstanding young man award, was featured speaker for the conference.

Turner said the U.S. and its people have to do all that is possible to aid to Latin America.

"American businesses encouraged us to set up extension centers of the school to teach business management to middle class Latin Americans," he said.

"Opportunities are everywhere. All we have to do is look for them," he challenged. Turner started Northwood, a business education school, in 1959 with 100 students and assets of $100,000.

Since then the school has grown to almost 1,000 students and assets of $6 million. Turner live on human flesh," she says.

This feeling of grandeur cannot be backed into a corner. Fortunately, Shaw's writing is so compelling that the play's could be performed in the city's parking ramp and it would be a gem.

Working within restricted space, Dwayne Jurgensen accomplished an authentic set. It was delectable, though, to see Norman, Wauwatosa, administrative assistant, between scenes. In this case, the scene changes should have been hidden.

"Caesar and Cleopatra," the third Attie play of the summer, will continue nightly through development seminar Nov. 5. The mid-year convention this winter will be in Appleton.

Tonight's forecast includes rain in the northern Plains and south central and Gulf coast states. It will be cooler in the northern Plains and Plateau. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Power Failure In Astrodome; Houston Loses

Los Angeles Sweeps Pair From Mets; Cubs, Cards Split

By MURRAY CHASS Associated Press Sports Writer

The delay came in the eighth inning of the game between Houston and Pittsburgh as rain splattered the outside of the dome. However, that was as far as the rain got.

Under the dome everything was dry. Everything was bright though.

By coincidence, a power failure knocked out some lights and the umpires wanted them repaired before the game continued.

Torrid Hitting The Pirates on the other hand didn't have a power failure. They continued their torrid hitting, whipping the Astros 11-6 and maintaining a one game lead in the National League pennant race.

The light failure came shortly after the Pirates broke a 5-5 deadlock with a four-run rally in the seventh.

Repairmen checked the situation but decided the work would have to wait until after the game.

As far as the Astros were concerned, though, the damage the Pirates had done the inning before was irreparable.

Giants Win In other NL games, San Francisco defeated Philadelphia 4-1. Los Angeles swept New York 5-0 and 6-0. St. Louis trimmed Chicago 7-4 in 10 innings after losing 10-7 and Cincinnati edged Atlanta 4-3 in 10 innings before bowing 5-4, also in 10.

The Pirates' hitting was almost as hot as the lights. Down 4-1, they scored three runs in the fourth inning, the last two on Bob Bailey's homer.

Willie Mays hit his 22nd homer of the season and 527th of his career in the Giants' victory over Philadelphia. Tito Fuentes, whose single triggered a two-run first inning, also singled before Mays connected.

Don Drysdale pitched a six-hitter and hit his 29th career homer in Los Angeles' opening game victory. John Kennedy and John Roseboro also homered for the Dodgers.

Combine on 5-Hitter In the nightcap, Joe Moeller and Phil Regan combined to blank the Mets on five hits. Lou Johnson and Tommy Davis each drove in two Dodger runs with singles.

Chicago's George Altman collected three hits in the first.

Casey, Ted Inducted Into Hall of Fame

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Casey Stengel and Ted Williams were formally inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame today.

Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert presided at the 10 a.m. EDT. ceremonies marking the admission to the Hall of Stengel, one of the game's most successful managers, and Williams, the last of the 400 hitters.

Stengel, who won 10 American League pennants and seven world championships in 12 years with the New York Yankees, was named to the Hall in a special election held in March after the normal five-year, post-retirement waiting period had been waived. Casey retired last August as manager of the New York Mets.

Williams, now No. 4 on the all-time home run list, was voted in with 93.5 per cent of the ballots cast by 10-year veterans of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Westphal, Hank Peerenboom Hit 3-Run Homers

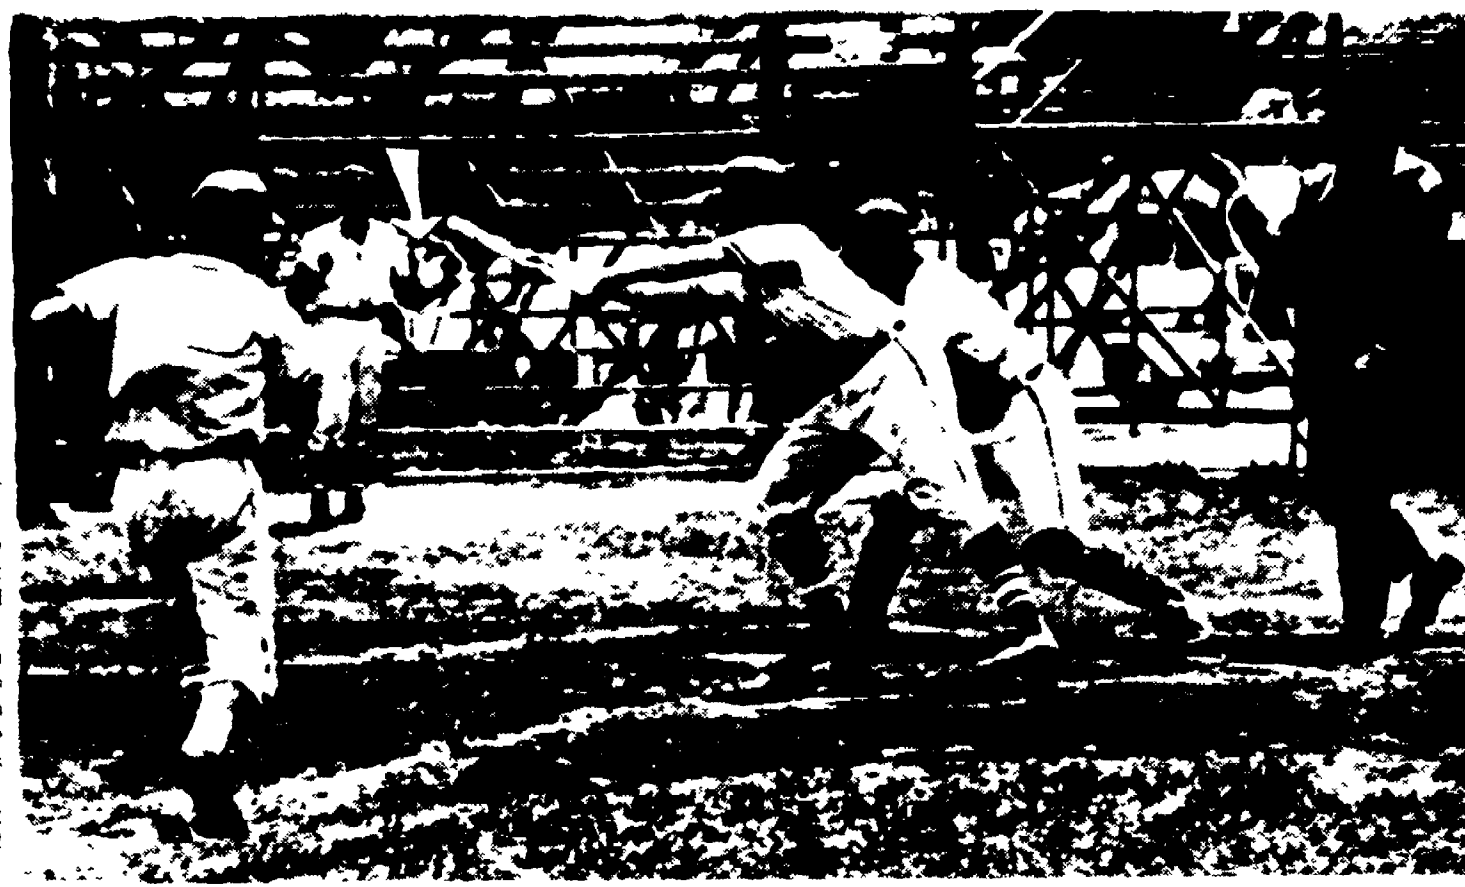

LC-K Whips Macs, Clinches Loop Title

LITTLE CHUTE — A pair of 3-run homers, one by Lee Westphal and the other by Hank Peerenboom, paired Little Chute 1-0 in a 163-run romp over the Menasha Macs in a Fox River Valley Baseball League game here Sunday afternoon.

The win enabled the Papermakers to wrap up an undefeated FBV season with seven consecutive victories. LC-K won the first two, with a 10-run lead Sunday's triumph completed the sweep for the team's second league championship in the last three years.

The Papermakers pounded out 12 base hits and were aided by seven Mac errors and eight bases on balls issued by a pair of Menasha hurlers.

Socks Homer Westphal socked a 400-foot plus homer in the third inning to highlight a 5-run uprising. Peerenboom's smash came in Mike Henk Steals Home with Menasha's second run in the first inning of its game with Appleton in the State Babe Ruth Tournament at Goodland Field Sunday. Paul Drezewicki had just stolen home on the previous pitch for the first marker. The batter John Walbrun.

Wysong Finishes Second Geiberger Wins PGA Crown by 4 Strokes on Even-Par 280 Total

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Al Geiberger, the new PGA champion, doesn't have the colorful personality traits of golfing heroes Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

But they may have to make room at the top for this gangling beanpole who has to munch on peanut butter and jelly sandwiches to keep his stomach presented with a three-pound jar of peanut butter and a loaf of bread when he took his seat in the press tent.

Geiberger, who appears to be loose and unassuming on the golf course, says he is highly nervous — so much so that he must get something in his stomach.

Actually, it started at the PGA last year. Geiberger said, "I was playing with Arnold Palmer and the galleries were so big that I couldn't get to the red fresh stand to get a sandwich."

So I started carrying peanut butter and jelly sandwiches in my bag. I ate one third of a sandwich on the ninth hole and another third on the 14th. I think my caddy ate the other third.

Why peanut butter and jelly? "Did you ever carry a tuna sandwich in your bag and then forget to eat it?" asked Geiberger. "My golf bag would soon smell like a garbage can."

LANSING, Ill. (AP) — Tony Lema, the delightful Champagne Kid whose quick wit and flashing smile had charmed the golfing millions of two continents, died as he had lived—on the golf course.

Appleton '9' Rallies Twice, Gains Finals Of BR Tournament

Host Team Meets Janesville After Edging Menasha, Dodgeville

BY TIM PETERMANN Post-Crescent Staff Writer

An inspired Appleton Babe Ruth League team bounced back from two apparent defeats, either of which would have prevented it from continuing in the double-elimination State Babe Ruth Tournament being played at Goodland Field and moved into the finals against Janesville at 3 p.m. today.

The Appleton unit edged Menasha, 5-4, and squeaked by Dodgeville, 8-7, Sunday, to drop both teams from any further tourney action. The victories for Appleton earned it the right to face defending champion Janesville, which gained the finals by winning all three of its previous engagements.

The hometown team is now faced with the same situation that confronted the Appleton team of '65. That is, meeting a tough, well-rested, undefeated squad with its two best pitchers ready to throw.

Must Win Two Appleton must win two games to gain the state crown, while a win for Janesville in the first or the Packers today began guarding second game would clinch the for Thursday night's intra-squad title and a trip to the regionals game in Lambeau Field, which in Newark, Ohio.

In the tourney last year, Appleton did win its second day game against Janesville to even the series at one loss apiece, but then bowed in the championship game.

Appleton has a limited pitching staff after all of its pitchers agreed on one point, there is not an inferior football player among the 56 currently holding forth on the Pack's South Oneida St. practice fields.

Longtime railbirds, most of whom are daily observers and self-styled experts on football flesh, are of a like. In recent seasons, they customarily have declared, "It looks like Vince is going to have quite a job cutting this team." They again are making the same observation only with greater fervor.

All of which suggests that the struggle for positions should make Thursday night's offense-defense match one to remember. Sponsored by the police and fire benevolent fund which will share in the proceeds, the 8 p.m. clash is expected to draw the largest crowd in the game's history.

Aides Direct Plan As per custom, Lombardi will view the proceedings from the press box, while his aides direct the rival squads. Red Cochran, Ray Weitecha and new offensive end Coach Bob Schnelker will handle the offense and Phil Bengtson, Dave Hanmer and Jerry Burns, Norb Hecker's successor as defensive backfield coach, will put the ball in play from the 20-yard-line and proceed until forced to punt.

When the defense acquires possession via punt interception or fumble, the second offensive and defensive units will take over at the point the defender is brought to earth.

To avoid delay, however, the offense will reverse its position each time and head in the opposite direction.

All of which means, of course, that the defense will be able to score only by going all the way with an interception, fumble or punt.

Surprisingly enough, considering the disparity in opportunity, the offense holds a mere 4-2-1 edge in the "series," launched when Lombardi became the Pack's headmaster in 1959.

Thursday night's exchange will be the first full scale test of the season for the National Football League's kingpins, who open their pre-season campaign struck by a pitch Saturday night against the College All Stars in the Boston Red Sox pitcher Jim Chicago's Soldier Field Friday.

Hodge Edges Toomey For Decathlon Title in International Track Test

By FRANK O'REILLY (AP) — Two who missed by only .8 seconds, world records were broken and was the winner with 8,230 three American marks fell, but points, and was voted the a pair of weary decathlon men meet's outstanding performer, gasping through the shadows of Toomey trailed with 8,219, evening climaxed the drama.

Track and field stars in the two-day Los Angeles Times International Games were plentiful Saturday and Sunday.

John Pennel set a world pole vault mark of 17 feet 6 1/4 inches; Australian distance phenomenon Ron Clark was a double winner at 5,000 and 10,000 meters; Jim Ryan won the half-mile, and the U.S. 1,600-meter relay team clipped a second off the world record.

But as the sun set on the rim of Memorial Coliseum Sunday night, 25,000 of the 34,150 attending remained. Russ Hodge and Bill Toomey, after consecutive afternoons of exertion in 90-degree heat, faced the concluding 1,500 meters with a possible world decathlon mark in sight.

Holds Pending Mark
Toomey holds the pending mark of 8,234 points, set in Salina, Kan., earlier this month. He broke fast and set the pace.

As the track announcer called the lap times, the crowd stood to cheer the struggling runners to the tape. Toomey crossed the finish line and collapsed into the arms of teammates. Hodge followed.

The only world mark to be broken Sunday was the 1,600-meter relay standard. The U.S. team of Bob Frey, Lee Evans, Tommie Smith and Theron Lewis clocked a 2:59.6, eclipsing the 3:00.7 run by the American team in the 1964 Olympics.

Smith, who returned to competition after a leg injury, won the 200 meters in 20.5 before racing an incredible 43.8, 400-meter leg in the relay.

Ryan Unenthused

Ryan ran a record-breaking 3:51.3 mile last weekend in Berkeley, Calif., but was unenthusiastic about his half-mile time of 1:46.2 and 800-meter clocking of 1:45.5 Sunday.

The 19-year-old Kansas freshman said, "I wasn't really sure about getting a record, since it's pretty hard to get yourself keyed up every week. Something went wrong with the pace, and then I felt heavy the last 200 yards."

Pennel's vault broke the record of 17-5 1/2, set by his to the tape. Toomey crossed the apartment roommate Bob Seagraves and collapsed into the arms of teammates. Hodge followed.

lead into the final round over Wyson. Both took bogeys on the first two holes.

Wyson rallied with a birdie three on No. 3 and when Geiberger took a bogey five on No. 4, his lead had diminished to two strokes. Although he had taken bogeys on three of the first four holes, the 6-foot-2 1/2, 160-pound Geiberger was whistling as he went from the fourth green to the fifth tee.

He nailed a birdie two on the fifth when he dropped a 20 foot putt and never was in danger again. He clinched it with a birdie three on No. 9 to move four shots ahead.

"Just Consistent"
"It might appear that I'm not nervous out there," said Geiberger. "That's probably because I try not to show any emotion. I'm not dramatic. I'm not a charger. I'm just consistent."

Probably the best description of Geiberger was given by Palmer, who finished with 287 and in a tie for sixth place when he shot a final round of 68.

"Geiberger has the right temperament for this type of course," said Palmer. "It is long, demanding and you need big shots all the time. It can wear you down. Al rambles along like a rolling stone."

"He has a certain pace and it's the same whether he's leading or he's behind. I made a run at him last year in the Classic but it didn't bother him at all. He didn't even know I was there and what really burned me up," laughed Palmer, "he didn't care."

Worth $25,000

Geiberger's victory was worth $25,000. It also gave him a berth in the World Series of Golf next month which carries a top prize of $50,000. It will be played at Firestone Sept. 11-12. Geiberger's foes will be Nicklaus, Casper and Gene Littler.

Nicklaus was tied for 22nd in the PGA with a 292. Casper tied for third with Littler and Player, all finishing with 296.

Sam Snead, who led the tournament after 36 holes, had a final round of 73 and tied for sixth along with Palmer. Doug Sanders, Julius Boros and Jacky Cupit.
